DERRY HARBOUR WORKS TO COST £40,000.

The Derby Harbour Commissioners are at present engaged upon the construction of a reinforced concrete wharf, 400 feet in length, in extension of the Queen's quay. It is also proposed to reconstruct a portion of the wooden wharf in ferro-concrete to form a suitable junction with the new quay. A shed, measuring 300 feet in length, will be erected on the new wharf when completed, and the berth is being dredged to 25 feet at low water of ordinary spring tides.

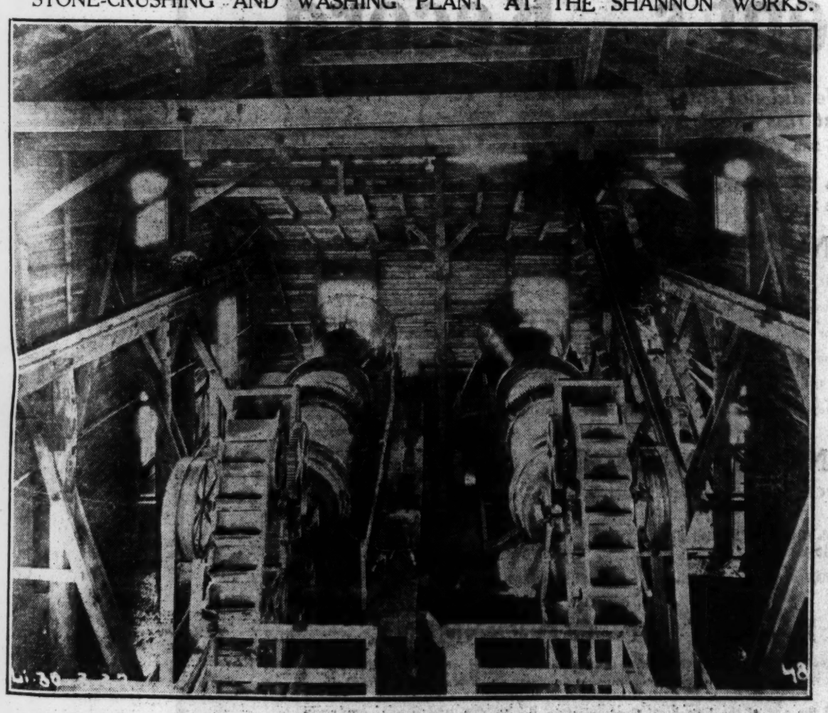

This new deep-water berth is intended principally to provide more accommodation for the development of the foreign trade.

The cost of the new works is estimated at £40,000, and it is expected that they will be completed in about twelve months.

DIFFICULT ENGINEERING WORK.

An interesting and difficult engineering task has just been begun by the London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company at Swinton, where the bridge which carries the railway over the South Yorkshire Canal is to be raised 4½ft. The work has been necessitated by subsidences, which have brought the bridge so low that, at present, empty barges have difficulty in getting under it. The bridge is on the main line between London and the North, and nearly 300 trains pass over it daily. This lift is being done 10in. at a time, on Sundays, and a year will be required for the completion of the work. Some alterations are also being carried out at Swinton Station, where the waiting-rooms are being raised 2ft. in order to allow for the elevation of the line 100 yards away.

STONE-CRUSHING AND WASHING PLANT AT THE SHANNON WORKS.

Two belts and washing machines in the plant at Ardnacrusha.

A large part of the sound limestone which is won by excavating the head and tail races and the site of the Power House is utilised to satisfy the demands of the building sites themselves. As this material is of good quality and does not possess any chemical disadvantages, it can be safely used for concrete, road metal, railway ballast and rip-rap for dressing the bed and the sides of the head race. About 290,000 cm. are needed for concrete, for the dressing of the head-race 570,000 cm. are necessary, and for roads and railway tracks, as well as for various other needs, 45,000 cm. of broken stone will approximately be needed.

The rock is crushed into sand, aggregate and rip rap in two large stone crushing and washing plants, which are situated in convenient places close to the rock sections, one on the upper part of the tail race and near Clonlark. In each stone crushing and washing plant the machinery is concentrated in one building, and the silos, which receive part of the broken stone and sand, are directly attached to this building. The whole process is arranged in such a way that the material goes through a certain number of machines and transport appliances from the moment that it leaves special trucks until it reaches the silos. No hand work of any kind is necessary, and only a few workmen are required to attend to the plant. The following descriptions of the method of working of the chief stone crushing and washing plant at Ardnacrusha is given by Messrs. Siemens Schuckertwerke :—

The trucks are drawn up an incline, supported on wooden trestles, by a winch on to the upper floor of the building, after having been filled from excavators. A workman opens the side of the truck, and the material drops into a large receptacle, which has a movable bottom. From the above-mentioned receptacle the blocks of rock are conveyed into the large crusher, which has an aperture of 1,200 x 900 mm., and can easily crush blocks up to 2 cm. in size. This plant makes it possible directly to use the rock in its original form after blasting operations, and as loaded by the steam shovels into the trucks, and the expensive work of dividing the large blocks of rock by hand or by further blasting is avoided. The main or preliminary crusher breaks the rock into pieces of a maximum size of 20 cm. The material is then conveyed on slides through three other crushers, of which two have an aperture of 650 x 300 mm., and the third an aperture of 750 x 400 mm. These crushers finally reduce the material to rip-rap, coarse and fine aggregate and sand. Two belts now convey the material up again to the two washing machines above the silos, where a final cleansing of the material from earth is undertaken. The washing drums contain screws perforated with holes which convey the stones through the flowing water. The sand aggregate and rip rap gets thoroughly cleansed as it is being continually shaken while water is being poured over it. The necessary water is pumped by a large pump at Ardnacrusha from the Blackwater. Perforated drums are attached to the washing plant, and these divide the material into sand, fine and coarse aggregate, and the so-called overflow. The three first kinds of material fall into the silos intended for each kind, to which they are conveyed on shutes. The overflow, which can be used for the slopes of the head race and for road metal and railway ballast, falls directly into the trucks of the transport railway; a small intermediary silo makes it possible to dump the material temporarily while the trucks have to be moved.

The silos for sand, fine and coarse aggregate, are built in such a way that the material can be emptied into the trucks of the train or also into the lorries. It is therefore possible to supply even the most distant building sites with the necessary sand aggregate and road metal quite conveniently.

The 15-ton crane which runs alongside the crushing plant facilitates any repairs which might be necessary.

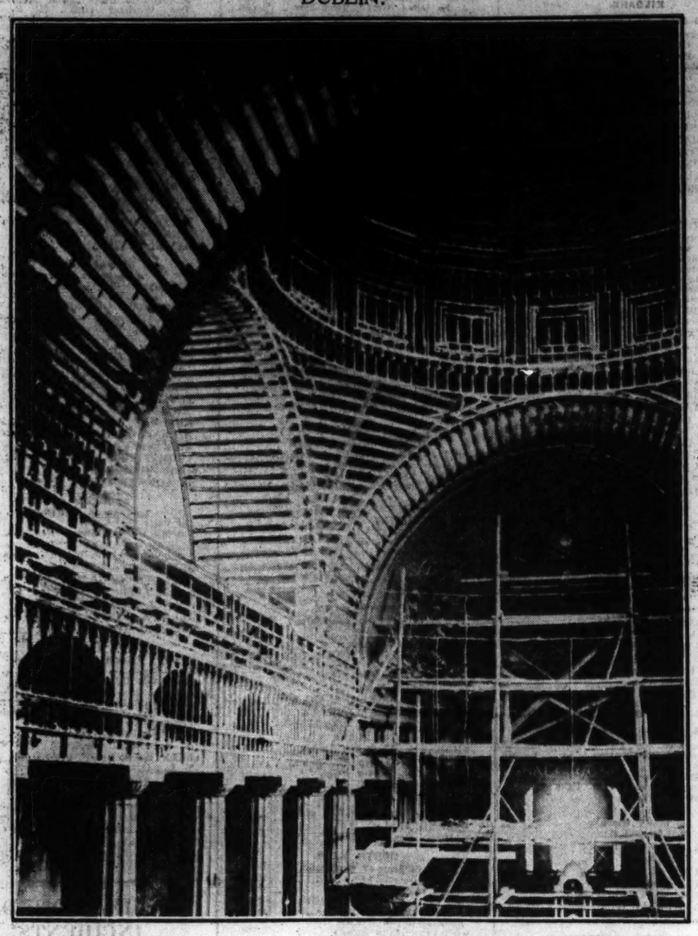

The stone-crushing and washing plant at Ardnacrusha is capable of crushing and washing from 40 to 50 cm. of sand aggregate and rip rap in an hour.

The crushing and washing plant at Clonlara is on somewhat a smaller scale, but is otherwise built on the same principle as the one at Ardnacrusha. Two crushers are provided, one with an aperture of 1,000 x 600 mm. and one with an aperture 750 x 400 mm. After being crushed, the material is washed in a special drum provided for this purpose. This arrangement of the silos is similar to that in Ardnacrusha.

RESTORATION OF THE PRO-CATHEDRAL, MARLBOROUGH STREET, DUBLIN.

This photograph shows the Pro-Cathedral, which is at present undergoing repairs which are necessary for its preservation. During the progress of the work it was found necessary to make some alterations in the building itself. This has resulted in St. Kevin's being added to the church. By this change very considerably increased accommodation has been provided for the congregation.

While the work was in progress it was found that portions of the timber-work supporting the roof and dome were in a decaying condition. This necessitated cutting and entirely replacing the timber by steel in some places, and in other parts supporting the old timber by steel columns.

In order to bring up the roof of St. Kevin's chapel to the same level as that of the main building the jacking system was employed by the general contractors, Messrs. James Clarke, Clanbrassil street, Dublin, twelve screw jacks being used. This modern method saved the laborious task of stripping and re-building the roof, which was raised three feet by jacking.

The plaster work is in the hands of Messrs. J. Ryan, Orion Works, North Strand.

The steel work is being carried out by Messrs. J. and C. McGloughlin, Ltd., Pearse street, Dublin.

The architects for the work are Messrs. W. H. Byrne and Son, 20 Suffolk street, Dublin.

NEW GRAND STANDS AT EPSOM.

REINFORCED CONCRETE FLOORS.

Work on the new stands at Epsom began on June 14th, 1926, and was at once held up by the coal dispute, which necessitated immediate extraordinary measures being taken to get the work done. Accommodation was found for 12,000 people for the Spring Meeting at Epsom in April this year, but the whole of the stands were ready yesterday.

The new stands, which accommodate 20,000 people instead of the 6,600 accommodated in the old stands, are about 700 ft. long and 70 ft. high. The whole of the structure is in three sections : the West Stand (including the Royal suite), the Centre Stand, and the East Stand.

The length and height of each respective stand are as follows :—

West Stand—Length, 150 ft.; height, 60 ft.
Centre Stand—Length, 330 ft.; height, 70 ft.
East Stand—Length, 210 ft.; height, 40 ft.

There are also 215 private boxes provided, and for each stand separate bar, luncheon room and lavatory accommodation is provided. The whole of the original stand fronting the racecourse has been pulled down. Of the old stand only the more recently erected diningrooms at the back remain, and the new stands, extending both east and west, are built over the space once occupied by Langlands' No. 1 and Barnard's No. 1 stands. Special attention has been paid throughout in the design and planning to ensure unobstructed angle of vision for everyone, and the elimination of the usual large number of supporting stanchions. The main girders spanning the front are 60 ft. in length and weigh nearly 40 tons each.

The West Stand is opposite the winning post. Its length is 150 ft., and it is of four tiers. Here, on the ground floor, are the jockeys' dressing and weighing-in rooms. Their Majesties' suite, on the top floor, comprises dining and withdrawing rooms, and a large terrace box, which is placed directly opposite the winning post. The Press box is on the top tier of this stand, and all the tiers are carried on huge cantilevers, so that there are no supporting posts on the front to obscure the view. Along the first terrace at the back, behind the boxes, runs a large diningroom, 150 ft. long.

The floors are of reinforced concrete, and the tiers themselves of terra-cotta blocks, this being the first time these blocks have been used for this purpose. The outside walls are of hollow terra-cotta blocks formed as panels between the steel girders.

All the balcony fronts and the portions facing the lawn are in Atlas White stucco. The back and side portions are treated in a similar manner.

There are two lifts : that for the Royal suite in the West Stand, and that for ladies in the West Stand.

In order to provide against the wind pressure, to which the stand is frequently exposed, particulars of the wind pressures over the Forth Bridge for the last twenty years were obtained, and an ample margin of safety has been allowed in the new stands, and a special system of stanchions and steel bracing has been devised to meet the peculiar conditions of the structure. To ease the wind pressure—a dangerous factor in the erection of such buildings—safety valves in the form of openings have been fixed in the back walls.

59 MESPIL ROAD.

THE MODERN CONCRETE ROAD.

ILLUMINATING FIGURES.

Mr. Henry S. Horne, at the general meeting of the Holborough Cement Company in London, said :—I do not desire the foregoing remarks to indicate a lack of confidence in the industry. Greater attention could be paid by cement manufacturers as a whole to carrying out more systematic and extensive publicity as to the many uses to which cement can be put, and to giving the widest information possible as to the various new uses that are being discovered almost daily; and if every maker would contribute—as they do in America—so much on their tonnage to a central association, a national service could be maintained to furnish builders and others with advice on a larger scale than has been hitherto attempted.

In my estimation, Mr. Horne continued, there will be a great increase in consumption in this country, but it will take time and will need constant propaganda. I think one of the most fruitful sources for increasing consumption is in relation to roads, and, sooner or later, motorists will demand concrete highways. In America for the year 1926, for this purpose alone, over 8,000,000 tons were consumed. This quantity of cement allowed for some 6,000 miles of roadways, 2,000 miles of city streets, and an undetermined mileage of roads, in which cement was employed as a foundation material. As showing how the use of cement for roadways has increased in the United States, in 1909 there were only three miles of concrete highways in the United States, in 1917 there were 3,500 miles, and this total had been increased to 37,000 miles, by December 31, 1925—in other words, an average of almost 5,000 miles a year of new construction since 1919. Careful tests have shown that modern concrete roads require less upkeep and reduce materially the wear and tear on motor vehicles; and motorists themselves are beginning to appreciate that the mileage per gallon is greater when travelling on concrete, that tyres last longer, and that the death of the car is postponed. At the end of 1925 the expenditure for this type of road in the United States constituted 40 per cent. of the toal constructed or contemplated.

ELECTRIC WALLS FOR BANK OF ENGLAND.

Defences such as fortify no other place in England are included in the rebuilding of the Bank of England. It will be possible, in case of invasion or other emergency, to flood the vaults from three points—one in the Bank, one elsewhere in London, and one ten miles out of London. The walls are constructed of reinforced concrete blocks, six feet long by two feet wide by two feet thick. The reinforcement is made from old steel-wire ships' cables, which are separated into single strands. These steel wires are interlaced into panels six feet by two feet, and placed in the mould, one on top of the other, until the mould is full of steel-wire matting. Liquid concrete is then poured in the moulds, and the whole is shaken to work the concrete into every crack and corner. All these concrete blocks have "key" at each end to interlock them when in position. There are also semi-circular grooves at the ends of the blocks. Two blocks together form a circular groove up and down which pass electric wires. An attempt to displace a block breaks these wires and an alarm is immediately sounded.

NOMINATION DAY INCIDENTS.

CANDIDATES WHO WERE TOO LATE.

Yesterday was the last day for the nomination of candidates for the General Election.

Dr. Lorcan G. Sherlock, the Returning Officer, sat in Green street Courthouse, Dublin, from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. to receive the nominations for the two city constituencies. There was very little excitement.

In the South City Division there was only one candidate nominated in addition to those already in the field. The newcomer was Mr. Charles Murphy, 217 South Circular road, described as a financial secretary; he standing as a Republican. His nomination brought the number of candidates up to 15 for the 7 vacancies.

There were 10 nominations handed in for the North City Division. Thus, there are nineteen candidates for the eight seats in the Division.

The last nomination received—a couple of minutes before 1 o'clock—was that of Mr. B. C. Hackett, a National League candidate, who was proposed by Mr. John Dillon, ex-M.P., and seconded by Mr. T. J. Hanna, for many years secretary to the late Mr. John Redmond.

A Donegal lady, who had intended to be nominated, spent the forenoon in Strabane, and then motored to Lifford. It was four minutes after one o'clock when she reached the return officer, however, and her papers could not be accepted.

In addition to the papers on which they relied, Messrs. A. J. Cassidy and Denis Houston, the Labour candidates, handed in 101 nomination papers, signed by 1,010 electors. Some of the papers were signed exclusively by the unemployed.

"A FOOL LOOSE ON FIGURES."

"It, the so-called adverse balance of trade . . . was the normal thing . . . In 1917 it was £14,624,000; in 1918 it was as high as £26,915,000 and in 1919 it was £17,336,000."—Mr. Cosgrave at Kilkenny, August 23rd, 1925.

(IN THESE YEARS THERE WAS IN FACT A CREDIT BALANCE OF TRADE OF £13,816,000; £26,915,000 AND £17,336,000 RESPECTIVELY).

The Free State Government's Record

"The last five years had been a period of extraordinary advancement. He did not think that any country in the world had made such progress from 1922 to 1927 that this country had."

—MR. DESMOND FITZGERALD, Feb. 28th, 1927, at Dun Laoghaire.

The Free State Government say they are ready to depend on their "record" to be returned to power. This is their record taken from their own official statistics:—

DECLINE IN POPULATION.

In 1922 the Registrar-General estimated the population of Ireland at 4,440,000.

In 1926 the Census taken in Ireland showed the population had fallen to 4,229,124.

The Census taken by the Gaeltacht Commission showed that the Irish-speaking population, which numbered 436,758 in 1911, had fallen to 299,249 in 1925.

INCREASE IN EMIGRATION.

The Census discloses that between 1911 and 1926, 502,012 people left Ireland. "Thom's Official Directory" shows that, of this number, 283,216 left since 1922.

This represents an emigration of 70,804 a year, or 1.6 per cent. of the population. The emigration in the decade after the Famine was 1.7 per cent. Free State Government has had almost the same effect as the Famine.

DECLINE IN LIVE STOCK.

Live Stock represents a great part of the wealth of Ireland. In 1920 there were 8,771,577 farm animals (horses, sheep, pigs, cattle), in the Free State.

By 1926 this figure had fallen to 8,213,932, a decline of 557,645.

DECLINE OF TILLAGE.

In 1920 the acreage under tillage, exclusive of hay, was 1,984,517.

By 1926 this had fallen by 433,145 acres to 1,551,372.

Only little more than half this decline was made up by land under hay, which increased in the same period from 2,024,608 to 2,287,874.

In tilled land of all kinds there was a decrease of 169,879 acres.

DECLINE IN TRADE.

In 1921 the import and export trade of Ireland was valued at £248,592,000, and showed a profit or credit balance of £10,650,000.

No trade returns were made in 1922 or 1923. Since 1924 the trade of the Free State has steadily fallen.

In 1924 it totalled £120,475,051, and showed a loss of £17,305,730.

In 1925 it fell by £13,600,000 to £106,879,296, and showed a loss of £18,137,600.

In 1926 it fell by a further £6,700,000 to £100,091,000, and showed a loss of £18,201,000.

Thus, though the trade of 1926 was less by £20,300,000 than the trade of 1924, the loss on it was greater by almost a million.

DECLINE IN BANK DEPOSITS.

Bank Deposits represent the savings of the people. According to "Thom's Official Directory," 1927:—

In 1923 the Bank Deposits totalled	£188,028,147
In 1924 they had fallen to	£167,484,458
In 1925 they fell further to	£161,614,435
In 1926 they declined again to	£157,842,089

In four years, therefore, the people lost more than £30,000,000 of their savings.

DECLINE IN BANK CLEARANCES.

In the last six years the Bank Clearances (which are the measure of internal trade) fell by the enormous total of £209,427,000.

During 1925 the decline in Bank Clearances totalled £16,000,000.
The decline during 1926 was £18,454,000.

In the first thirteen weeks of 1927 there was an additional fall of £1,675,000.

THE INCREASE IN COST OF GOVERNMENT.

During the five years of the Great War (1914-1919) the British taxation in this country totalled £116,606,500, and British expenditure for the whole of Ireland (exclusive of Imperial Contribution) averaged £14,636,500 a year.

During the five years 1922-1927 the cost of the Free State Government in the 26 Counties alone totalled £148,703,343, an average of £29,740,668 a year, or more than TWICE the British cost for the whole of Ireland.

In the same period £68,347,049 was spent on governing the Six Counties, so that for the whole of Ireland the average yearly cost for the last five years was £43,410,078 (over £10 per head), or more than THREE TIMES as much as during 1914-1919.

Since the Free State came into being government in this country has cost £217,050,394, or £59,208,305 more than the total deposits in Irish Banks in 1926.

GOVERNMENT PARTY.

AT CASTLEBLAYNEY.

MR. BLYTHE ON EFFORTS TO SUPPRESS SPEAKERS.

CASTLEBLAYNEY, Wednesday.

In the main street of Castleblayney this afternoon two cheering crowds gathered around meetings in support of Cumann na mBaedheal and Fianna Fail candidates, which were held simultaneously. A large number of people were present for the usual monthly fair.

The Government supporters began their meeting at 3 o'clock. The Fianna Fail party then drove up in a motor lorry, but were compelled to halt about one hundred yards away. A strong force of Civic Guards was present, and the few interrupters at the Government supporters' meeting were promptly removed. One man fell as he was being hustled out of the crowd, and there was some booing. The meeting generally was quiet, and the speakers were loudly cheered, but there was considerable counter cheering from the opposition platform.

Mr. T. McAree, M.C.C., presided at the Cumann na nGaedheal meeting.

Mr. Blythe, who was very cordially received, said that he was glad to have that opportunity of addressing the people of Castleblayney. He had already spoken in many parts of the district, and at most of those places the meetings were quiet, but in a few instances small groups of people tried to prevent the speakers from being heard. That was not an attack on the speakers at all, but on the electors, and was really another version of the attack that was made on the people by gunmen three or four years ago.

NATIONAL LEAGUE CANDIDATES.

Mr. Blythe then referred to Capt. Redmond, and said that he walked out of the Dail when certain important divisions were taking place. "He was in the minority," said an interrupter. "He was," replied Mr. Blythe, "in a minority of one, and had not the courage to say yes or no." (Cries of "Up Redmond!"). They had standing for the National League three days ago Jerry MacVeagh. (Cheers and shouts of "Up MacVeagh!") Mr. MacVeagh stood for a Socialist constituency in Sunderland. (A Voice: "You're a liar.") "No, my friend," said the Minister, "but you are." "He was defeated there," continued Mr. Blythe. He was willing to go into the British Parliament as a Labour member. He is now going on here as a member of the National Party, and he would go on as a Cumann na nGaedheal supporter, or anything, else. All he wants is to be a member of Parliament in any Parliament whatever. His candidature is the most selfish of any candidate's in the country."

There were a number of Independent candidates, he continued, and he would prefer any of them to Dr. McCarville. The electors of Monaghan should vote in such a way that there would be no irregular representative in the Dail for that county. (Cheers, shouts of "Up McCarville," and boohs). Anyone that voted for an Independent candidate was voting against the Government, because the present Government could only remain in office if it had a majority.

Mr. Blythe was proceeding to detail the beneficial Acts passed by the Government, when loud cheers announced the arrival of the Fianna Fail supporters in a motor lorry flying the Tricolour. The lorry took up a position about one hundred yards distant, and a portion of the crowd were attracted to it. Speakers from that lorry then harangued those nearest, and both meetings continued without any disorder.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION.

Mr. Blythe next turned to the Boundary question, and said that the only hope of its solution was good government in the Free State which would attract the people of the Six Counties. (Cheers.)

Mr. Richard Mulcahy, who got a cordial reception, said that the Government Party was the only one with a policy which would work in the interests of the country. The record of work which the Government could lay claim to had simply outflanked the people who were trying to destroy that work. They all stood for a complete and sovereign Ireland, and one of the things that was supposed to be the result of their work was that the Six Counties were cut away from the rest of Ireland. One of the things their work had done was that as soon as the majority of the people in the North of Ireland wanted to enjoy the sovereign freedom that they had in the South they could have it. As soon as they were Irish and manly enough to say that they were going to be Irish people within their own country and were not going to be interfered with by anybody they could to-morrow be part of a united Ireland, with complete control of their own national work and destiny. In building Ireland up every man and woman must do his or her part, and must see to it that they had not a ricketty Government.

Nothing could be effected by cheering, and some people had not much cheering when the grim hard work of the past ten years was being done. Now, the Government asked the people to accept the responsibility of saying who was to govern them during the next five years. (Cheers.)

Mr. P. Duffy, candidate, got a hearty greeting. Dr. Ward, who was in the Free State Army in 1921, would be very glad, he said, to take the oath if he got the chance. Dr. McCarville was attesting the young men for the Free State Army, while earlier Mr. Brady was recruiting the young men to go to France and Flanders.

The Fianna Fail meeting was addressed by Dr. McCarville and Dr. Ward, the two candidates, and the Rev. Father Coyle, P.P.

GET BACK TO MIXED FARMING.

MINISTER'S ADVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

ENNISCORTHY Wednesday Night.

Mr. Hogan, Minister for Agriculture, addressed a very large meeting in Enniscorthy to-night. It was nearly dark when he arrived, accompanied by the County Wexford candidates, and the large crowd, which had waited patiently from 9 p.m. to hear him, listened quietly, with few interruptions, while he placed before them what he termed "a few facts on which to base their decisions when they go to poll."

The people were told, he said, that taxation is high; it is high, but the Government Party are the only party who have done anything to reduce it. In five years they had reduced taxation from £11 10s. to £7 5s. per head of the population. Income tax was reduced from 6s. to 3s.; tax on sugar was reduced from 2½d. to 1d. The very people who spoke most about taxation were the people who imposed £25,000,000 on the country for destruction.

THE BEET INDUSTRY.

Referring to what the Government had done for agriculture, Mr. Hogan said that the farmers of Wexford were not heard to complain of the price that they got for sugar beet. Who established the sugar beet industry? The Government. Who helped them? Nobody; they had to establish it against the criticism of every party. If the farmers of Wexford are doing well out of sugar beet the Government are entitled to the credit for it.

A Voice—Some of them did not get paid for it yet; why is not sugar beet allowed to be grown for the factory by everyone; how is it that some people will not get the chance?

Mr. Hogan—I will explain. The present factory is the biggest factory in the world. It handles 15,000 acres of beet; it cannot handle any more. A particularly high subsidy had to be paid to induce the foreigner to invest £400,000 of his good money in establishing it in this country. We must now wait until we see the results. So far the results could not be better. If you get the same results for two years more you will have half a dozen factories at a smaller subsidy, and every farmer in Ireland will get the benefit of it. (Applause.)

A Voice—Why did you have to get the Belgian money?

Mr. Hogan—Because we could not get money from you. (Laughter.)

THE PRICE OF BARLEY.

Two interrupters were shouting at this stage, one asking what about barley and the other what about the Belgian money.

"Oh, shut up," said Mr. Hogan, "there are people interested in barley here, and they want to hear it discussed. I would like to talk about it if the financiers would stop." (Laughter.)

The price of barley, he said, has been very low for the past two or three years. He could not understand how it pays the farmer to grow it at 16s. a barrel. He had as high a percentage of tillage on his own land as any other farmer, and he knew 16s. a barrel would not pay. The suggestion was that the Government should put a tariff on barley. A tariff would not increase the price. If Messrs. Guinness had to pay more for his barley at the North Wall it would not make him pay a penny more for the home barley. If they elected Mr. Roche, the Fianna Fail candidate, he would go back and advocate a tariff on Guinness's barley.

A Voice—"He is giving employment, anyway."

Mr. Hogan went on to advise the farmers to get back to mixed farming, to sell only the choicest barley, and feed the rest to the stock. There was no excuse for any district now not to have a creamery. Last year the Co. Wexford farmer sold his butter for 8d. a pound, and bought creamery butter at 1s. 3½d. He lost the difference in price because he had not creameries. The Government voted £100,000 last year to establish new creameries. County Wexford should go and look for some of it. Captain Redmond gave the Government very little aid to provide it.

Replying to an interruption, Mr. Hogan said: "I will tell you what I am in favour of—the same law for everyone, rich and poor, gentle and simple, everybody and every citizen." (Cheers.)

FREE STATE'S CREDIT.

MR. HOGAN AND COST OF THE CIVIL WAR.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

GOREY, Wednesday.

Mr. Patrick Hogan, Minister for Lands and Agriculture, addressing a large and orderly meeting outside the Market House, Gorey, this evening at 8 o'clock, said that it had been stated that they were young when they went into power and that they had made mistakes; but he asked them what mistakes did they make? He would tell them that they reduced taxation and had to meet the 25 millions of money, the cost of the destruction in the country. (A Voice—"You reduced the old age pensions.")

He denied that the Government did that; the man that reduced the old age pension allowance was de Valera. How many millions, he asked, could they have added to the old age pensions if they had the 25 millions the cost of the civil war?

Proceeding, Mr. Hogan said that what was good enough for Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins ought be good enough for de Valera and party.

THE TREATY.

Alluding to the Treaty, he said that in 1921 they were debating the Treaty, and he spoke in favour of it. He never had any doubts about the Treaty, and never made a single reservation about it; he believed in it, and stood by it. If the Fianna Fail, or any of the other parties, were returned to power the credit of the nation would be gone, and the National Loan would fall. de Valera's party, he added, would not get 20 seats.

Captain Redmond said that he had no quarrel with de Valera; but he (Mr. Hogan) said that he had, and anyone who took an interest in his country should. The National League had no policy.

TARIFFS.

Referring to tariffs, Mr. Hogan said that if they put a tariff of 5s. on barley it would not improve the price. Concluding his address, he asked them to consider the matter seriously, and return the Government candidates. If they returned a number of small parties to the Dail they would have to pay nine or ten per cent. for their money; and if the outgoing Government was returned they would get it at 4½ per cent., as they had the credit. If they returned the Republicans they would have to pay 100 per cent. for the money. (Laughter and cheers.)

PRESIDENT IN THE WEST.

REMARKABLE WELCOME.

BALLINA, Wednesday.

President Cosgrave had a remarkable welcome when he spoke here to-night. A great crowd cheered him for several minutes, and it was only an appeal by the Chairman to the audience to desist that enabled him to make a beginning.

After five years of government, he said, in which there was not only the necessity of restoring order, but a still greater necessity of laying down lines for the future Government of the country, we come before you now to ask merely that you record your votes next Thursday according to your conscience. You have every sorehead in the country to-day dragging his grievance and parading his slave mind before the world. There is not from one of them a word of pride in his nationhood, a word of pride in that possession of his birthright. The cry instead to the outside world is this—a poor and distressful country, a beggar nation.

"Well, I say to you that it is not the mentality upon which decent citizenship can be built. It is not on men like Captain Redmond and Mr. de Valera that the future of this nation is going to rest. It was not on these men that the nation was able to depend before. Its mainstay was the commonsense of the people, the commonsense on which was founded the Government of the people's choice, and that Government, I submit, has done its duty fearlessly, courageously, and tirelessly for the five years in which it has been in office.

EVERY MAN'S DUTY.

To-day you are a free people. Are you in this hour of trial for your country going to discharge the duties of your citizenship? Are you going to see that every man and woman of your acquaintance will go to the polls on the 9th of June to discharge in accordance with their best judgment the privilege, as well as the responsibility, of electing a Government to guide the destinies of this nation for five years to come? Will you see to it when you have now the opportunity, and when there is at last peace, order, stability and security for life and property and some consideration for the Ten Commandments, that all those small-minded, slave-minded parties who would drag us down from the proud position in which we have established ourselves are taught the lesson that future elections must be fought on bigger policies and nobler and loftier conceptions of citizenship and nationhood?

"For all the criticisms of pettifogging lawyers, the Government of this small State, I say, has as high a conception of national duty as the Government of the oldest nation in Europe. After our four years of office we leave this country without a penny of debt for the great war. We have reduced taxation by £4 per head of the population. We come fearlessly before the people asking for their judgment on our work, and if they are satisfied with it, I am sure that they will have no hesitation in recording it either in this or any other constituency."

The President's speech was punctuated by cheers, his concluding remarks being drowned in a storm of applause.

AT SWINFORD.

This was the second meeting he addressed during the day, but only one of the many that he will address during the six or seven days' tour on which he has embarked.

Leaving Dublin about 10 o'clock in the morning, he motored to Charlestown, Co. Mayo, where he was met by the three candidates for Mayo constituency, with a number of their local supporters. After a short stay in Charlestown for lunch, he travelled with the candidates, and escorted by five or six motor cars to Swinford, to address there a fair day meeting.

The Dean of Swinford, who presided over the Ministerial meeting, in a reply to criticisms of the salary of the Governor-General, asked his hearers where they would have been without "Tim," and caused applause by adding that "Tim" was worth every penny he got.

President Cosgrave, who had a remarkably good reception, made a short speech.

On his way to Ballina from Swinford the President paid a visit to Foxford woollen mills, which are owned and managed by the Sisters of Charity. He was shown over the factory, and expressed pleasure in the excellent quality of its products.

THE NORTH-EAST.

ONLY ONE WAY TO UNITY.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ATHLONE, Wednesday.

Following a question by an interrupter at a largely attended meeting in Athlone this evening, presided over by Very Rev. Canon Crowe, P.P., Mr. Kevin O'Higgins referred at length to the North-East.

He said:—I am going to talk very straight about the North. I believe that you will only get unity, you will only get this entire country within a single political system, by agreement, and I believe that you will only get agreement by going ahead and building up conditions here that will constitute an attraction to the good people who have been led to believe that the greatest calamity, the greatest disaster that could possibly happen to them, would be to be included in a single political system with the rest of their countrymen.

You cannot solve the problem by the strong hand. You cannot solve it by force. You can only go ahead multiplying contrasts—favourable contrasts—between the conditions that exist here and the conditions that exist north of the line, so that in time these people will begin to think for themselves and begin to see for themselves, and will begin to wonder if it is really true what they have been taught by their leaders, and whether the ideal state of affairs is to be shut off by themselves in a little Pale.

CONTRASTS.

There are some contrasts already. We have the 3s. income tax here and the 4s. tax on the other side of the border. We have contrasts, again, like the Shannon scheme and the Silent Valley, dropping rates in Dublin and soaring rates in Belfast. We should go ahead multiplying those contracts, by increasing the efficiency of our public services, reducing taxation, adding to our productivity and diminishing unemployment. I know of no other solution for that problem of the North-East.

Has Mr. de Valera one, or has Miss MacSwiney one? Do you think that you will secure unity by denouncing the Treaty? Do you thing that you will secure unity on the basis of Anglophobia? I believe that Mr. de Valera doubts it, and that Miss MacSwiney doubts it. They go along repeating this parrot-cry of the rock of the Republic. In 1921 we were not able to do with the British what Brian Boru did with the Danes at Clontarf; we were not able to drive the British into the sea; and so we agreed to enter into negotiations, and the men who negotiated on behalf of the country signed a Treaty that was accepted and ratified by the Dail. The pity of it is that there was found in the country a minority who, with arms, challenged the right of the people to accept the Treaty.

If we could have proceeded without that cruel war, how far might we be to-day on the road of progress, and how many more favourable contrasts we would be able to show between conditions here and conditions on the other side of the line? (Applause.)

Mr. O'Higgins spoke of the Government's work in establishing the rights of the majority and restoring peace, and of the measures that it has passed for the improvement of industries, including agriculture.

THE ISSUE.

STABILITY OR INSECURITY.

Addressing a meeting at midnight in the Market square, Mullingar, Mr. O'Higgins said that he placed the issue before the people as jurors to decide what was in the best interests of the country. He described the Dail as a committee of the people. The Government had been addressing them through the representatives in the Dail; they now addressed them directly. They had given to every person of twenty-one years and upwards the right to vote and responsibility for the future of the country.

He dealt in detail with the constructive work of the Government in restoring stability, relieving unemployment, helping the great industry of agriculture, and, at the same time, reducing taxation and doing everything possible to assist urban dwellers as well as the agricultural community. He referred to the various Acts passed for these purposes and on the tasks confronting the Government when they took up office. He said that if the electors thought that the Government had not been faithful to their stewardship, they should carefully consider when they went to vote how the best interests of the country could be served and what conditions they wished for the future. They must remember that at present there was a number of small parties representing sectional interests, and all nibbling at the strength of the Treaty. No one of those groups could form a cohesive Government. Did the people want stability and the building up of the country, or did they want insecurity and instability? That was the issue. The return of the Government Party would mean stability and progress.

MINISTERS AT KILMALLOCK.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

KILMALLOCK, Wednesday.

Mr. P. McGilligan, Minister for Industry and Commerce, and Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister for External Affairs, were the principal speakers at a meeting in Kilmallock to-night in support of the Cumann na nGaedheal candidates for County Limerick.

Mr. McGilligan said that if the next Government of the Free State were to be drawn from any party other than the Cumann na nGaedheal Party, which was putting forward sufficient candidates for the purpose, only bewilderment and amazement could result. The efforts of the Government during the past four years had been calculated to induce people to put capital into industries in the Free State and to build up the entire country.

The Minister referred to the Shannon scheme and denied that confiscation of private electrical undertakings would take place without due compensation being paid. Everything the Government would do would be in the interests of the State, he said.

Mr. Fitzgerald declared that the only flaw in the Settlement of Ireland Act lay in the fact that the Six Counties were not with them. That was so for the reason that that portion of Ireland did not want to be with them, and the flaw was not inherent with the Treaty, but rather with the people of the North. The Government of the Free State, he added, had taken over the country on a falling market and by their efforts had restored it to peaceable and staple conditions. They had no doubt as to the result of the election.

MR. FITZGERALD AT MALLOW.

Mr. Desmond FitzGerald, Minister for External Affairs, addressed an exceedingly large meeting at Mallow last evening, and during a speech, which lasted from 10 to 12 p.m., was subjected to a number of interruptions. He asked why did Mr. de Valera change his policy. (Voices—He never did.) Mr. de Valera admitted himself that he changed his policy. Why did he leave Sinn Finn? What had Mary MacSwiney to say about it? She said that with his present policy if he did not change it he would go down in Irish history as a murderer of nationalism.

INDEPENDENT.

STATE EMPLOYMENT AND TARIFFS.

MAJOR BRYAN COOPER'S VIEWS.

A meeting in support of the candidature of Major Bryan Cooper was held in the Town Hall, Rathmines, last night. The proceedings generally were of a harmonious nature until the candidate was interrupted by a man at the rear of the hall, who wanted to know where Major Cooper fought. The questioner continued to interrupt until he was removed.

Professor W. E. Thrift, F.T.C.D., who presided, said that he thought that it was one of the first essentials that the present Government should be returned with a working majority, and that the stabilisation which they had begun so well should be completed. He thought that everyone with judgment as to what had happened, and what was due to the country, to put it properly on its feet, would say that that should take place. It was the duty of everyone, in his opinion, to take an active part in the election, and to vote in accordance with his conscience, and show that he had a real, deep interest in the welfare of the country.

If it was a good thing that the present Government should be returned by a working majority he thought it was an excellent thing that there should be returned men like Major Bryan Cooper—(applause)—who had a knowledge of Parliamentary work, and the experience, and ability enough to take an active and effective part in the criticisms of the Government's proposals.

SIR WILLIAM HICKIE.

Major-General Sir William Hickie, who announced that he was no politician and belonged to no political party, said that he had consented to speak on behalf of Major Bryan Cooper's candidature, because he was full of admiration for the manner in which Major Cooper had carried out his duties in the Dail since he was elected, and because, hard as had been the times through which they had passed, there were still difficult days ahead, and they wanted experienced and earnest workers in their Parliament. If one read all that was said by the various candidates in their election speeches, one was struck at the small reference to Ireland, her needs, and her future, and how much time was given to the vilification of opponents, and the thought came to them, how far were they from unity!

"In our hearts," said General Hickie, "all Irishmen would love to see the Northern Six Counties joined up again to us for good and all; but, as a most worthy priest said in my hearing only a few days ago, 'How can we hope for union with the North when we are ourselves so far from being united?'

"There are many thousands of Irishmen who feel as I do," he added, "and would give a great deal to see a united Ireland, with a national flag that all would love and cherish, with an Irish National Anthem that all could sing with devotion. (Applause.) These things will, doubtless, come some day, but we want them to come quickly, or many of us will not see them. I feel that Major Bryan Cooper has done much, and will do still more, to bring about these ideals."

There was nothing in the Treaty, he went on, to prevent them from developing the Irish national ideals. All they really wanted were unity, peace, and the help of God. The Government under which they had lived for the past four years had not been very popular. The reason for that was that the Government really had governed a nation which did not take very kindly to being governed. It had been a strong Government. If it had been a weak Government it would not have had any friends at all. At times there had been a tendency to autocracy, and it was here that Major Bryan Cooper and other County Dublin representatives had acted as a salutary check. (Applause.)

THE CANDIDATE.

Major Bryan Cooper said that a united Ireland, sharing the same ideals, could only be reached by goodwill. He had been criticised for his methods in the Dail as being too mild. He pleaded guilty of trying to attain his objects by goodwill rather than by violence. The country had been through two revolutions, and if the wounds were to disappear they must learn to work together and respect each other's point of view.

The only opposition party that had a definite programme that they could carry into effect if they came into office were the Labour Party. He thought that it was a useful thing to have a Labour Party. One fundamental plank in their platform that he disagreed with was that every citizen was entitled to employment by the State. He maintained that State employment was costly, and destructive of private enterprise. The province of the State was to create conditions under which private enterprise could flourish, and not create big business enterprises of its own.

Mr. Cosgrave had stated that there were going to be more tariffs. The object of a protective tariff was to assist industries. He welcomed the appointment of a Tariff Commission, but he was afraid that the position of the Commission was being prejudiced. The Commission was to consider tariffs, but Ministers were going about the country saying that there would be more tariffs.

He had tried to have the tariffs classified, as they had ridiculous anomalies in what was liable to be taxed.

There was laughter when Major Cooper said that one of the most extraordinary things was that a diver's helmet was classed as wearing apparel.

A wide range of tariffs, he said, covering articles which they could not produce on a commercial scale was insanity.

THE QUESTION.

Some people advocated the closing of the ports against the foreigner. What, he asked, would happen if the foreigner closed his ports against us?

Major Cooper was making reference to the recent troubled times in Ireland when a voice asked, "Where did Major Cooper fight?"

Major Cooper (warmly)—In Gallipoli, and was mentioned in despatches. There were more men killed in my division in Gallipoli than in the whole Irish war. There are several people in this hall who can tell you whether I fought or not.

The interrupter, who was at the end of the hall, continued to make remarks which were not audible, and was eventually put out.

Major Cooper, continuing, said that the Government had been attacked for waste and extravagance. There was, he said, not now much waste, but there was some extravagance. There were ways by which they could get greater economy without sacrificing efficiency, and he had shown the way to practical economy. Finally, he said he would work to see Ireland a force in the British Empire and in the universe.

SIR S. MADDOCK.

Sir Simon Maddock said that Major Cooper was a born parliamentarian. He was more than a mere student of economics. He was a distinguished soldier, and, whatever their particular brand of politics might be, they all could admire a man who served his King and country as gallantly as Bryan Cooper at a time when many of those who posed now as Ireland's saviours were sitting comfortably in their chairs at home. Since his return from the war, Major Cooper had done much to alleviate the sufferings of his comrades whose lot was cast in less fortunate places. Major Bryan Cooper had stood, and still stood, for progress; but was opposed to hasty advances over ground that had not been properly prepared. He was in favour of harnessing the Shannon, but he opposed the ill-advised legislation by which the Government sought to precipitate an electrical millenium. When the Government was right it could be sure of Major Cooper's whole-hearted co-operation; when it was wrong it could be equally sure of his unstinted opposition.

LAND ANNUITIES.

PLEA FOR EXTENSION OF TIME FORESHADOWED.

FROM OUR REPORTER.

CASTLEBLAYNEY, Wednesday.

To-night, at 8 o'clock, a meeting was held in the Town Hall, Castleblayney, in support of the candidature of Mr. Alex. Hazlett, Independent. The hall was filled.

Mr. James Gray, Chairman, said that it was the first time he presided at such a meeting. He was not there as an opponent of the Government candidate, but they wanted to get their own man in.

Mr. M. E. Knight said that they had no quarrel with any candidate. They were not out as opponents of the Government. Mr. Hazlett was in the field as a Protestant candidate. The Protestant population of the county was 25 per cent. of the whole population, and they were entitled to proper representation Mr. Hazlett had insuperable claims on the electors.

Mr. John Beatty said the Government was costing far too much. They objected to the out-and-out Government policy of protection in the Free State, which was not an industrial country, because it increased the cost of living.

Mr. Hazlett said he examined all the nomination papers that day, and he was the only candidate described as a farmer, and he was proud of it. He also favoured industries which had a prospect of success. He agreed with Mr. Hogan's agricultural policy in the main. The best thing for this country was co-operation and better selling. The money spent on unemployment might be augmented and used for productive purposes. He favoured the labourer buying out his cottage and plot on fair terms. If there was not some improvement in agriculture in this country he thought that the British Government should be asked for an extension of the time for repayment of the land purchase annuities. If any persons wished to learn Irish let them learn it, but it should not be made compulsory at the cost of the groundwork, the foundation of education of the young. As regards the customs carrier, he favoured facilitating trade and the crossing of the border in connection with business. (Applause.)

Speaking at the Fianna Fail meeting this afternoon, Mr. Eamonn Donnelly, M.P., said that he had been asked by the people of Monaghan to take control of the election, and he would consider himself false to the interests of his own constituency of Armagh if he did not do his utmost in the present crisis to see that any signatory to the Boundary Pact was defeated. There was special significance for the people of the North-East in the defeat of those directly concerned in the betrayal of the Nationalists of that area.

FARMERS' PARTY.

GRANARD LIVELINESS.

NATIONAL LEAGUE AND FARMERS FRATERNISE.

Simultaneous appeals to the electors by representatives of the Farmers' Party, the National League and Fianna Fail created considerable excitement in Granard yesterday.

Mr. M. J. Lyons, Secretary of the Farmers' Union, spoke amidst continued uproar, and at one stage threatened to have the interrupters removed by the Civic Guards. Later he appealed to Mr. Victory (Fianna Fail) for a hearing, but when the latter gentleman was about to get up on the car of the Farmers' Party Mr. Lyons refused to let him do so. Mr. Victory then walked away, and Mr. Lyons continued his speech amidst prolonged uproar.

"Give Redmond a chance" was inscribed in large letters on the car from which Mr. Joseph Cooney spoke on behalf of Mr. Richard Cleary, the National League candidate. When he was alluding to the policy of Parnell, a man in the crowd cried: "He never asked the Irish youth to fight England's battles." Mr. Cooney retorted that Captain Redmond asked nobody to do what he was not prepared to do himself.

Mr. Cleary said that he was not a politician, but a farmer, and he was in that election because he realised that if the present Government was returned to power with a free hand the Irish farmers would be taxed out of existence. He had stood under Parnell's banner when he had few supporters, but Parnell had made himself the saviour of the people, and he was confident that Captain Redmond's party would save the present generation. (Applause.)

A RAPPROCHEMENT.

Mr. M. J. Lyons asked permission to speak for the Farmers' Union from the car.

Mr. Cleary said that he had no objection. He (Mr. Cleary) had been a member of the Westmeath Farmers' Union, and the Farmers' Union and the National League would have been united last November but for the fact that Mr. Gorey and Senator O'Hanlon turned traitors and went over to the Government. (A Voice—"The National League and Farmers' Party will be one in the near future.") Mr. Cleary said that he hoped so.

Mr. Lyons said that it was a happy incident, and it showed that at least two of the parties in the election fight had no hostility to each other. The other parties were hostile to each other, but they were united in their attacks on the Farmers' Party. The Government Party as well as the Fianna Fail Party were controlled by the city influence, by shopkeepers or solicitors, and knew nothing about the needs of the farmers. The Farmers' Party had been long enough buffeted between the Republican and Government sections, and it was time for them to do something for themselves.

SPEAKING AGAINST ODDS.

Whilst Mr. Lyons was dealing with the tariff question the Fianna Fail speakers came up beside the car, amidst loud cheers for de Valera. Mr. Lyons called the Fianna Fail speakers cowards, and said that they were afraid to hear the farmers' case.

The bulk of the crowd surged round the other car, where Mr. Victory, the Fianna Fail candidate declared that he could remain no longer silent to the conscriptionists and spokesman for the graziers and Freemasons' union, known as the Farmers' Party.

"Coward," interjected Mr. Lyons.

Mr. Victory said that it was all very well to talk about tariffs and the graziers' interests, while 70,000 of the youth of the country had to fly from the land in the last twelve months. The policy of the Farmers' Union and the Government Party was to make their country into ranches for tourists.

Mr. J. Kennedy, Fianna Fail candidate, said that there were two classes of farmers. Messrs. Victory, Killen and O'Higgins were farmers of the people, and not the graziers represented by the Farmers' Union, as led by retired colonels and Freemasons.

Mr. Lyons resumed his speech before Mr. Kennedy had concluded, and continued speaking, despite interrupters.

A Voice—What about the land annuities.

CAUSE OF THE CIVIL WAR.

Mr. Lyons—We, in the Farmers' Union, got the list of the land purchase defaulters published.

A Voice—Never in the Press.

Mr. Lyons—It was circulated amongst the members of the Farmers' Union.

A Voice—You may get down.

Another Voice—It is a pity you had not the petticoat, as you would make a nice old woman. (Laughter and cheers.)

Mr. Lyons—I am going to be heard, whether you like or not. Continuing, amidst interruptions, he said that in supporting the farmers' candidates they would be supporting genuine Irishmen and not following shadows.

They had been told that if the Government were given six months' chance the goods would be delivered. The goods that had been delivered were the quarrel amongst the leaders about the spoils of office, and because some of them would rather lead in hell than serve under others, they had civil war.

FARMERS' CONFERENCE.

MR. WILSON REPLIES TO MR. O'HIGGINS.

Mr. Wilson, Farmers' Party candidate for Co. Wicklow, speaking yesterday at Bray, replied to the observations made by Mr. O'Higgins, Minister for Justice, who on the previous day accused Mr. Wilson of having obeyed the order to "Right wheel" given by the "colonels" at the Farmers' conference which decided against fusion with Cumann na nGaedheal.

Mr. Wilson said that personally he thought the farmers ought to join up with the Government in order that they might be returned with a very large majority. Mr. O had said that he (Mr. Wilson) was an overtimorous man. There was a vote of 50 to 30 against fusion, and there were only two or three "colonels" present. The "colonels" did not matter a two-penny ticket, but they had the common farmers against it. When he saw that the farmers were against the fusion policy, what was the good of his going contrary! He could not bring the farmers with him, and if he had gone he would have been labelled a Government man ever after. He only wished to serve the farmers, as he had done faithfully as a deputy in the Dail. He had served on half-a-dozen commissions without receiving a penny, and had lost votes because of his connection with the Liquor Commission, but he only acted as he thought best in the interests of the country, and not of any section of it.

Mr. G. Heatley, Co.C., presided, and Mr. J. J. Metcalfe, Co.C., and Mr. W. Tighe also spoke.

A NOVEL SUGGESTION.

APPEAL TO POLITICIANS TO BE "IRISHMEN FIRST."

Speaking at Mullagh, West Clare, in support of Mr. Thomas Falvey, the Clare Farmers' candidate, Colonel O'Callaghan Westropp, President of the Clare Farmers' Association, said that no party in the State had the slightest chance of obtaining a decisive majority as a result of the present election. There would undoubtedly be two large parties, but neither of them would be strong enough to form a Government, unless joined by one, or, perhaps, two of the independent groups in the form of a coalition. That, however, would not stop the sniping and cross-firing which went on at present, and which was so destructive at a time when the best men of all parties ought to concentrate upon the economic welfare of the people as a whole. No one could take up the daily newspapers, reporting, as they did, hundreds of election meetings without being struck by the fact that if there was any proportion of truth in the descriptions which rival politicians give of each other, the country, in its public men, must be suffering from the misfortune of possessing leaders, the majority of whom were blackguards, if not worse. That might be part of the ordinary talk that went on at election time, but he would ask these gentlemen to bear in mind one aspect of the matter—apparently they were all overlooking. The country could not stand two Governments would have quite enough to do to pay

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE County Dublin Constituency.

I have the honour to submit myself as a Candidate at the forthcoming General Election.

I am an Irish Nationalist whose allegiance has always been pledged to Ireland and whose sole aims are the welfare of Ireland, one and undivided, and the happiness of the Irish people. I believe in Parnell's methods of serving the cause of Irish Independence by methods of constitutional action without derogation to the right to uphold it by any and all means whatsoever.

I have supported the Treaty and the Constitution, and the maintenance of peace and order, to the very best of my power, and so far as I have been permitted to do so, but I am not concerned in the sectional quarrels which divide the Cumann na nGaedheal and the Republican Parties.

I am opposed to the administrative and economic policy of the outgoing Government, which I have consistently criticised as misconceived and ill-directed and as threatening our national fortunes with positive disaster. It tends ever more strongly towards the creation of an arbitrary and tyrannical bureaucracy; and it has failed, signally and miserably, to stem the rising tide of economic misfortune. I greatly desire a restoration of democratic methods of government which, so far as they have been brought into existence, are being rapidly undermined; and I advocate a policy of sound economics, sound banking and sound money. I believe that it should be easy to re-establish confidence, to increase production and to produce a greatly-increased wages fund for the employment of Irish labour.

I believe that, to effect these objects, it is absolutely necessary to create a strong, competent, independent Opposition Party in the Dail, which, while maintaining the stability of our new institutions, will insist upon checking abuses and restraining extravagance and will exercise a steady and beneficent pressure upon whatever Government may be in power. Parnell shewed how much an Opposition Party may achieve. We need a real and robust Opposition to replace the provisional opposition of accomplished Parliamentarians who have been, to adapt the old phrase, "feigning to strike but yet afraid to wound," and who, unless the signs mislead, may soon possibly be in open alliance with a Cumann na nGaedheal Government.

I shall, if elected, continue to strive for equal rights in the Irish Free State for all Irishmen of all creeds, classes and sections and in particular for all ex-Service men wherever they may have borne arms in recent wars and struggles.

I stand as an Irish National League Candidate at the request of Captain William Redmond, D.S.O.

HENRY HARRISON.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

For the 152 seats in the Dail 366 candidates have been nominated.—(Page 4.)

There were large entries at the Midleton Agricultural Show yesterday, and the quality of the cattle was the best ever seen at this fixture.—(Page 11.)

It was stated at the Belfast City Council meeting yesterday that the removal of the Free State flag from the City Hall during Empire Week was due to a misunderstanding.—(Page 8.)

The Governors and Guardians of the National Gallery of Ireland yesterday elected Mr. Thomas Bodkin as Director of the Gallery.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Clause 7 of the Trade Disputes and Trade Unions Bill, which provides for the granting of injunctions against certain applications of union funds, was added to the bill in Committee of the House of Commons last night.—(Page 8.)

The Bosworth by-election has resulted in the return of the Liberal candidate, Sir William Edge.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

The British battleships Barham and Malaya have arrived at Alexandria, and the Royal Sovereign is at Port Said. The Egyptian reply to the British Note is ready, and messages from Cairo stated that it probably would be handed to Lord Lloyd last night.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Epsom yesterday Call Boy won the Derby Stakes, Hot Night being second and Shian Mor third.—(Page 12.)

FINANCIAL

The volume of business transacted in the London Stock Markets yesterday was small, but the tone remained satisfactory. Gilt-edged securities were inclined to harden.—(Page 10.)

In Dublin business showed a disposition to improve in places.—(Page 10.)

Racing in Ireland.

Yesterday, throughout the Free State, the Derby imposed a silence on the election campaign, as in ancient days a battle was stopped by an eclipse of the sun. Many thousands of pounds changed hands in Ireland as a result of "Call Boy's" victory at Epsom. We may deplore the gambling instinct, but we must recognise that it is ineradicable from human nature. The situation in the Free State is both curious and, from the economic point of view—apart from any question of morals—highly unsatisfactory. Gambling is an excrescence on nearly every sport and chiefly, of course, on the sport of horse-racing. Alike as a sport and as an industry horse-racing makes a vast appeal to the Irish people and has a vast importance for them. As a sport it holds elements—skill, courage, excitement, a pursuit of physical fitness and beauty—to which every fibre in the Irishman's being responds. As an industry it is the main prop of Irish horse-breeding, which has won international fame, has brought millions of pounds into the country, and is linked intimately with the welfare of our agricultural population. Six months ago the Free State Government legalised betting in connection with horse-racing and imposed a tax of five per cent. on all betting transactions. The result, as it shows itself to-day, can be described in two sentences. On the one hand, the prosperity of horse-racing exhibits a marked and menacing decline. On the other hand, the excrescence of gambling—especially among the poorer classes—has assumed a monstrous growth.

We invite the Free State Government to examine both aspects of the matter. Since it introduced the betting tax the attendance at all race meetings in the twenty-six counties has fallen seriously and continues to fall. Now many of the meetings are being conducted at a loss. If there is no improvement, the number of meetings and the number and value of stakes may be reduced in the near future; and in that event the national industry of horse-breeding also must decay. It cannot flourish without the financial encouragement and the practical tests of breeding that horse-racing affords. The Government wisely has decided to sanction the use of the totalisator in the Free State. If this system is established without delay, under the control of the Turf Club and of the Irish National Hunt Committee, and if an adequate share of its profits is devoted to the upkeep of courses and stakes, the prospects of racing and breeding will improve; but the totalisator alone will not suffice. At present the betting tax is levied equally upon bets made on the race-courses and in the new betting offices, but the people who bet in offices are of no service to racing, which depends upon the public that pays for admission and thus helps to provide stake money and the cost of maintenance. It is, therefore, a reasonable suggestion that the Government shall abolish the betting tax in so far as it applies to the actual betting which takes place on race-courses. There is a good case also for the removal of the entertainments tax from horse-racing, as it has been removed already from other sports. If the Government could be persuaded to make these two concessions, racing and horse-breeding would take a new lease of life.

No friend of the sport and industry suggests any reduction of the present tax of five per cent. on bets made in offices; on the contrary, sound arguments could be advanced for its increase. The legalisation of betting in public offices has produced a swift and huge increase of gambling in the Free State. During the last six months scores of shops, till then empty, have been turned into ready-money betting offices in Dublin. To-day the city has more than 150 of them, and similar offices exist in every town and village of the Free State. They are patronised largely by the poorer classes, and often are crowded throughout the day by men and women, who back horses, to the amount of sixpence and upwards, in race after race. In fact, the betting office is now as great a menace to the welfare of humble homes as ever was the public-house. Everywhere it fosters habits of idleness and recklessness, and the evil is growing by leaps and bounds. A time certainly will come when Mr. Blythe must "shrink from the thing himself has made" and must introduce restrictive legislation. We are discussing the matter now from the standpoint, not of morals, but of mere expediency, and we do not advocate one law for the rich and another for the poor. Nevertheless, we perceive a very wide difference between the poor man who gambles ignorantly—to nobody's gain, as a rule, save the bookmaker's—in a public office and the man who is able to pay for admission to a race meeting, presumably can afford to bet, presumably bets with some knowledge, and by his presence assists a national sport and industry. There is no case at all for a reduction of the tax on office betting, but there is an economic case for the removal of this tax and of the entertainments tax from the actual sport of horse-racing. We believe that if Ministers, even at this late hour, will promise such relief, they will improve their prospects at the general election.

A Greek Crisis.

After a comparatively long period of inactivity Greece once more has begun to stage a political crisis. Since the establishment of the Republican Government the political situation has been highly complex. There has been a kind of truce between the Royalist and Republican Parties, which have combined to form a stable Administration, but during the debates on the new Constitution last week a crisis arose that may have a serious sequel. One of the clauses of the Constitution provides that the form of government in Greece shall not be subject to further revision. This apparent ban on revolutions was resented by some members of the Popular Party, one of whom suggested that the matter should be referred to a plebiscite. The Royalists, as a party, objected to this course of action, on the ground that the present Coalition Government was not sufficiently representative of public opinion to conduct a plebiscite; but the suggestion was adopted with enthusiasm by the Republicans. M. Michalakopoulos, Minister for Foreign Affairs, moved a formal motion in favour of a plebiscite to determine, once and for all, whether Greece should be governed by a Republican or a Monarchist régime; and this step incensed the Royalists so much that they left the House in a body. Then M. Venizelos, who has resumed his abode in his native Crete, took a hand in the game. Early last week he had a long interview with General Othonaios, one of the principal military men in the Republican movement, who seems to have given him some rather disturbing information concerning the condition of the Greek Army. As a result of this interview M. Venizelos proceeded, under his own name, to publish an article in the Kyrix, of Canea, his old newspaper, strongly urging the immediate proclamation of a plebiscite. As the present Minister for the Interior is a Royalist, M. Venizelos suggested that he should be replaced by General Metaxas, adding that, if the General should refuse to take office, a purely Republican bloc should be formed. This article has caused consternation throughout Greece, but the ex-Premier declares that his motives are purely disinterested. He asserts that there never can be peace in the country until the Royalist-Republican issue has been settled permanently. The bulk of the Greek Army is Republican in its sympathies, and, if M. Venizelos should place himself at the head of his old party, he undoubtedly would have a very large following. His return to power, however, would have a disturbing effect throughout the Balkans. It would revive ancient feuds between Greek and Turk, and generally would be likely to create a serious situation in Near Eastern affairs. A proposal to reinstate some 350 Royalist officers who were dismissed for mutiny suggests dangerous possibilities, and important developments are expected.

The Lure of Names.

Once a year, if not twice, that portion of the public which is not interested in horse-racing begins to speculate, mentally if not financially, on "form." Science and system may rule the fancy of the experts, but it is probable that equine nomenclature influences, as much as anything else, the redistribution of wealth on the day after the Derby. Even for those who do not indulge in a "flutter," but cannot escape those names which reach "the general ear," there is a certain fitness in the triumph of horses so appropriately styled as "Sceptre" and "Flying Fox." This year's Derby winner bore no such name of pride and swiftness, but the sagacious detected in "Call Boy" an ingenious disguise. Before many seconds it was apparent to those who watched the race, or listened to it, that, instead of being the most obscure functionary in the performance, he was the principal actor. The classic tastes of Lord Rosebery once were illustrated by the success in the Derby of "Cicero." There has been a Hannibal among the victors, but not a Cæsar. The designation "Lapdog" may have been intended to evoke a pardonable resentment in that noble beast, and it is to be hoped that he was rewarded with a name better becoming his dignity when he conquered at Epsom a century ago. The list so anxiously scanned yesterday morning was rich in promise for those who are influenced in backing their fancy by the glamour of a name. If we may judge by the odds offered, "Jack's Son" must have seemed too stolid and "Flashing Star" too brilliantly remote; but the Celtic impetuosity of "Shian Mor" rightly was thought to indicate better results. "Knight of the Grail" was distinguished by his eagerness to start in the quest: it was only what we should have expected. "Hot Night," who finished second, may have deceived some backers by the idea that he conveyed the languor of the tropics; but the name more probably derived from an ancestor of the fiery sands of Arabia, where formerly were bred the swiftest horses in the world.

Hotel Libraries.

Wise men, when they go on a journey, pack two or three books of substantial length in their bags, as insurance against bookless nights in strange hotels. "I often wonder," says a writer in Chambers's Journal, "why a little more effort is not made by hotel proprietors to provide a really readable library." This writer describes what he found in a bookcase at a hostelry in a popular resort. There was "Asiatick Researches, or Transactions of the Society in Bengal," dated 1807, and a fifth edition. A novel by Mrs. Henry Wood stood beside an odd volume of the "Miscellaneous Works of Tobias Smollett, M.D.," and a book called "Doctor Adrian." A book by the late Marie Corelli supported two by Mr. H. G. Wells, "Tarzan of the Apes" and a copy of "Faust" in very small type. There was also a tattered copy of a book by "Sapper," with a leaf from a bridge scoring-card and a badly written advertisement for "a high-class maid" serving as book marks. Faraday's "Experimental Researches in Electricity" completed the array. This writer was lucky. How often, in Irish hotels, having omitted to supply our own reading-matter, have we not found ourselves shipwrecked on a far more arid coast? In Irish hotels there will be found several pious novels written in the early nineteenth century, and now intended for the edification of commercial travellers; some out-of-date directories, a prize volume of ancient history, "for good conduct," that never was read, and, perhaps, an odd volume of an encyclopædia. If hotels ought to be furnished with more attractive literary reserves, still greater is the need in hospitals. A few dozen cheap, well-bound copies of Dickens would make every hospital a happier place. People who, when they are sound of wind and limb have small taste for books often discover the delights of literature when an enforced loneliness quietens the restless mind.

CLAIMS OF SOUTHERN IRISH LOYALISTS.

MR. AMERY'S STATEMENT.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Basil Peto asked the Secretary for Dominion Affairs whether he was aware that many Southern Irish Loyalists were suffering financial embarrassment in consequence of the long delay in settling their claims, and that many were unable to make arrangements for their future owing to the want of knowledge of what compensation may be ultimately payable to them, and the uncertainty as to payment being made; and whether he could indicate any date by which a decision on the claims already made could be announced.

Lieutenant-Colonel Howard-Bury asked the Secretary for Dominion Affairs if he was aware that considerable dissatisfaction existed at home and in the Dominions as to the treatment of Irish Loyalists, and the delay in redeeming the pledges for their compensation; and, seeing that this question had remained so long unsettled and with over two thousand cases still remaining to be investigated, could he state whether, before his departure for the overseas Dominions, arrangements would be made for the final settlement of these cases?

Mr. Amery—I will answer the questions together. I am aware that in a number of cases persons who have submitted applications to the Irish Grants Committee are suffering financial embarrassment owing to the time which has inevitably elapsed before their claims could be dealt with, and it is for this reason that I am very ready to receive and act upon the recommendations which, as I have informed the House, I receive from time to time from the Committee for immediate interim payment or advances. I regret it is not possible for me at present to make any forecast of the date when the Committee will have finished their work, so that His Majesty's Government can consider their recommendations as a whole, and reach a final decision thereon; but I can assure the House that the Committee are dealing with the cases before them as expeditiously as is consistent with a proper consideration of facts in each case.

NEW LONDON REVUE.

"WHITE BIRDS" AT HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT
LONDON, Wednesday.

The new revue, "White Birds," staged by Mr. Lew Leslie at His Majesty's Theatre, will doubtless prove very entertaining when it has been drastically cut and pulled into shape.

At present it lacks what the film critics call "continuity," and much that is worth while and attractive is obscured by pretentious settings and stupendous spectacular effects.

The items which stood out as being particularly praiseworthy on the first night were the dancing of Anton Dolin and Ninette de Valois, Miss José Collins' gorgeous frock and setting in her song, "Flower of Spain," Maurice Chevalier's charming personality and skilful rendering of French and English songs, and the energy, good temper and talent of Mr. Ed. Lowry.

Miss Maisie Gay, one of the finest comediennes on the English stage, was wasted on silly songs and sillier sketches. Miss Gwen Farrar merely contributed a slight variation of her usual music hall turn; and Mr. Chick Farr, Mr. George Gee, Miss Florence Brady, and others worked hard and did their best under trying conditions.

The whole production is at present so haphazard that it is difficult to form a trustworthy opinion of the show, but I imagine that it can be made into a success if the producer has the courage to use the shears with sufficient force.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—An anti-cyclone centred north of the Azores is spreading eastward. A belt of low pressure from south of Iceland to Germany, including a cyclonic centre off Holland, is moving north-east. There will be local showers, but considerable fair periods, except in north-east Scotland, where rain is probable.

Ireland, all Districts.—Wind between west and north-west, light or moderate; considerable fair periods, but local thundery showers; local morning mist; moderate temperature.

South-West Seaboard, Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Wind between west and north-west, light or moderate; considerable fair periods, but local thundery showers; visibility mainly good; sea slight.

North-West Seaboard.—Wind southwest or variable, light; local showers; visibility good; sea slight.

CURRENT IRISH STAMPS SOLD FOR DOUBLE VALUE.

Current Irish stamps sold at Glendinning's, London, yesterday, realised over double their value. A sheet of half-crown stamps of the value of £5, obtainable in Ireland a week or two ago, sold for £11.

A stamp expert explained that the value of the stamps had been increased by a slight error in the printing. The first letter in Saorstat Eireann was defective and had been written in by hand. Three stamps of the Irish Free State (1922), 2s. 6d., 5s. and 10s., brought £5.

This was not the only surprise, for a Great Britain, 1913, £1 green stamp was sold for £7, and a Cyprus, 1923, £1 stamp for £9.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

IRELAND'S CHANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Since the Bolshevist Russians have cut themselves off from the trade of this country and have been expelled, Ireland should not overlook the fact that Russia has been shipping into England yearly many millions of pounds' worth of farm produce, such as eggs, butter, etc. There is here a new opening for Irish produce. To-day England is importing over £3,000,000 of farm produce every week. The British people do not care where the produce comes from, and New Zealand, Canada and all overseas shippers are right on their toes to get the extra business.

You hardly ever hear Ireland mentioned over here now. Not one man in ten thousand knows that we have an election just at present, and even those who know are quite indifferent as to results. Mr. Hogan, our Minister for Agriculture, has done good work in improving the quality of our exports of produce, but we still have a long way to go; and, as the prosperity of Ireland almost solely relies upon her exports of the products of the land, all good, sensible Irishmen ought to support Mr. Hogan's policy and to give him a chance to finish his work for the people of Ireland.—Yours, etc.,

R. M. KELLY.

London, May 31st, 1927.

THE DUBLIN UNIVERSITY ELECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The propriety of Mr. Bolton Waller's candidature has been challenged. May I submit to the electorate that he has not merely the fullest right to stand, but a unique claim on our votes? The supreme proof of public spirit is willingness to die in the public cause. Mr. Waller has given that proof. He has the fine war record of four and a half years' service, mainly in Mesopotamia.

A long term of soldiering makes a sad lacuna in a man's civil life. The break came at a peculiarly critical juncture in Mr. Waller's life—namely, at the conclusion of his brilliant College course and at the start of a career full of promise. He is the last man to ask votes on the foot of gratitude. A distinctive merit of his election address is that it looks forward, not back. Still this, at least, should be said: he has been on active service for us. Something is due from us to him. He has the ability, the time and the taste for a public career. He has earned the right to it. Let us do our part to give him his chance.—Yours, etc.,

A. A. LUCE.

LOCAL OPTION IN THE NORTH.

CONGREGATIONAL UNION DISCUSSION.

There was a sharp division of opinion upon local option at the Congregational Union of Ireland Conference in Belfast yesterday.

The Rev. David Hill, B.A., B.D., said that he knew that local option was a question widely discussed, and on which there was a wide difference of opinion amongst the people of the Churches. They had got to recognise that it was no harm to test the feeling of the Assembly on the matter, and as he was himself a firm believer in local option he moved: "While this Assembly, representing the Congregational Churches of Ireland, is deeply grateful for the measure of temperance reform already passed by the Northern Parliament, we earnestly urge upon our legislators the serious consideration of the widespread demand for a further measure granting local option to the whole community."

Mr. A. D. Taylor (Albertbridge, Belfast) seconded.

Mr. James A. Cleland said that he wished to make a strong protest against the resolution and to move as an amendment: "That this union, while affirming its position regarding temperance, awaits a detailed definition of the phrase 'local option' before it expresses its views on the subject." He spoke that day because he thought that the resolution would not be for the best interests of the land. They must not forget that as a union they were representative of all Ireland. It was not right that a resolution should be brought up there which affected only one portion of Ireland. Many great causes had been damned by precipitate action and ill-digested proposals, and he thought that local option was one of those.

Much better work for temperance could be done by educating the people on the subject, and by building up the character of the young. The resolution raised hopes that would not fructify, and for that reason he appealed to the Assembly not to take what looked like an easy and simple course, of voting for local option, but to weigh well the points he had raised.

The Rev. J. L. Hurn, Cork, seconded the amendment, and said that in the South the temperance movement was far behind the North. There were many forms of intemperance besides drunkenness. They should remember that the prodigal son found the sins of the elder brother were greater than drunkenness. If they had a revival in the Church they would have all the temperance reform they needed. God forbid that temperance work should be left to the Government. God would send the bill to the Churches and not to the Government.

The Rev. James M. White (St. Johnston) supported the resolution.

The Rev. Mr. Hill said what was meant by local option was that it was only a step towards prohibition.

The amendment was lost and the resolution was adopted.

OBITUARY.

PROFESSOR J. B. BURY.

The Times announces, with much regret, that Professor J. B. Bury, Lord Acton's successor as Regius Professor of Modern History at Cambridge, and a historian and scholar of encyclopædic range and learning, died yesterday morning at Rome from the effects of cerebral hæmorrhage. He had been seriously ill for several months. He was 65.

Born on October 16, 1861, in the County of Monaghan, at the rectory of his father, the Rev. E. J. Bury, afterwards Canon of Clogher, he received his early education at home and at the school of Mr Hime, in the neighbouring town of Monaghan. Entering Trinity College, Dublin as a sizar, his answering in his earliest tests astonished his examiners, and their prophecy of a brilliant university career was justified. There was no honour on the classical side that he did not win—a scholarship in 1879, the Berkeley Medal in 1880, the Vice-Chancellor's prizes for Greek verse in 1880, and for Greek prose in 1882; the Senior Moderatorship in Classics, with large gold medal, and in Ethics and Logic, in 1882; B.A., with prize, in 1882; the Madden prize in 1884, and finally a Fellowship of Trinity College in 1885.

Those were the days when students profited by the lectures of Arthur Palmer, Tyrrell, and Mahaffy, and Bury, no doubt, owed much to their stimulating influence.

It was, we believe, by the advice of his tutor, Professor Mahaffy, that he devoted his studies particularly to late Roman history, the result of which was seen in the two volumes which appeared in 1889, with the title "A History of the Later Roman Empire, from Arcadius to Irene, 375-800 A.D.," a work which is still considered his best. It was undoubtedly his favourite subject, for he announced its continuation more than twenty years later.

DR. A. Y. STEWART.

The death of Dr. Alexander Young Stewart, L., R.C.P., Edinburgh, took place on Tuesday last at his residence, Otteran place, Waterford. Dr. Stewart qualified at Edinburgh in 1876. About forty years ago he moved from Northern Ireland to Waterford, where he acquired a very successful practice.

ALEXANDRA COLLEGE GUILD.

REUNION DINNER IN LONDON.

Some sixty friends and old students of Alexandra College, Dublin, attended the annual dinner of "Old Alexandrians," which was held at the Criterion Restaurant, Piccadilly, London. The Hon. Lady Lyttelton, Vice-President of the Alexandra Guild, presided, and the hostesses, all Vice-Presidents and former students, included the Countess of Mayo, Isabel Lady Talbot de Malahide, Dame Millicent Fawcett, Miss Haldane, Miss Janet Cunningham, and Miss Marion Beard, Headmistress of Putney High School.

The toast of the King and Queen was proposed by the Hon. Lady Lyttelton, and the toast of Alexandra College Guild by Dame Millicent Fawcett, who spoke with admiration of the work carried out by the Guild since its inception twenty-seven years ago, when she delivered the inaugural address at the first meeting of the Guild in May, 1900.

Mrs. Cecil Watson, Hon. Treasurer of the Guild, responded, and read a letter from the President, Dr. H. M. White, LL.D., in which she reminded the members of the significance of the Guild badge, which is a reproduction of the letter "A" from the Book of Kells.

The toast, "The Guests," was proposed by Miss Marion Beard, who referred with gratitude and pleasure to her six happy years in Alexandra College.

Miss Haldane, responding for the guests, alluded to her recent visit to Dublin, when she spoke at the Guild Conference, and had been much impressed with the varied activities for the benefit of others, so cheerfully undertaken by those whose lives seemed filled with educational work. It was a great gratification to her to be associated with an organisation such as the Guild.

Among the guests present was Mrs. McNeill, wife of the Free State Commissioner in London.

In the evening Miss Isolde Guinness and Miss Edith Vance contributed to an enjoyable programme of music.

LONDON LETTER.

DERBY DAY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

London is so huge that the absence of a few hundred thousand people seemed to make little difference in the streets to-day, except that during the early morning the traffic suffered from greater congestion than usual. The King and the members of the Royal Family abandoned precedent, and went down to Epsom in one party, driving in seven cars in order that general traffic might suffer as little interference as possible. At Epsom there were several features of interest. It was the first dry morning for a Derby Day for three years, and the early morning crowd on the famous Downs was much greater than has ever been seen before. Women and girls were present during the day in such numbers that they far exceeded the men, and it was noticed that many motor omnibuses contained a majority of women.

In Parliament.

The House of Commons was not overcrowded this afternoon, and there were gaps on all the green benches, although most of the leading members seemed to be present. It was noticeable, however, that the Lobby was nearly deserted through the afternoon, except that three o'clock saw a number of members eager for information enter from the House. These members stood about in little groups discussing not only Derby prospects, but the prospects at Bosworth, where the announcement of the election result had been deferred by a re-count. When the Derby result became known several members hastened into the House to whisper the name of the winner, and it was amusing to watch the interest of members as the news approached them. One could see Call Boy framed on many lips, with an anxious interrogation as to the second and third. Viscount Curzon acted as Mercury for the Treasury bench, where the result was received with as much interest as on the other benches. The House of Commons is a very human place.

The Bosworth Result.

The result of the Bosworth election came later in the afternoon, and was received with great elation by the Liberals. In the Lobby there was much talk by the few Liberals present of the flowing tide and so on. Really, there is nothing of very great importance in the result, since it only reveals that Bosworth has returned to its old-time allegiance. Captain Gee, V.C., was a fine candidate at the election in 1924, and it must be admitted that Brigadier-General Spears was not exactly the best of successes. He put up a great fight, but his Liberal traditions must have been against him to some extent.

The Egyptian Crisis.

It is unusual for a Cabinet meeting to be held on Derby Day, but the Egyptian situation necessitated consideration in view of the statement to be made by the Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons in the afternoon. The Cabinet had before it information as to the effect of the British Note on Egyptian political opinion, but it was not sufficiently definite to enable it to appreciate with certainty how the British warning is likely to be taken. The attitude of the Cabinet is that on no account can the British Government permit the exclusion of British representation on the Egyptian Army Council, or permit a movement designed to secure that the Egyptian Army shall be beyond British control. The statement made by Sir Austen Chamberlain during the question hour in the House of Commons was a long one, and it was heard with deep interest by the House. Loud cheers greeted its termination, and even the Socialists seemed satisfied that the Government was taking measures absolutely necessary in the circumstances.

An Autumn Session.

The Prime Minister announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that there is to be an autumn session, since the state of public business will not permit of a prorogation in August, with a new session beginning in October. The date of adjournment has not been fixed, but it is expected that it will take place at the end of July. It is possible that an effort will be made to bring proceedings to a conclusion on Thursday, July 28th—a convenient date, as the Bank holiday falls on the 1st of August.

The Soviet Luncheon Party.

Sir William Davidson made a further attempt this afternoon to secure a pronouncement regarding the luncheon given last week by Socialist extremists to the members of the Russian Mission. He addressed a question to the Speaker, but he was unable to give a definite answer, except that the rooms were available for members when not otherwise needed. Sir William Davidson managed to score the point, however, by saying that it was to be understood that the House relied upon the honour of individual members not to abuse its privileges. Mr. Maxton, not waiting to hear Sir William finish his sentence, jumped up at the word "honour," and protested vehemently against an attack on the honour of members on his side. The Conservatives were highly amused, because it was obvious that Mr. Maxton had been too precipitate, as he himself saw when Sir William was allowed to finish his remarks.

The Russian Exodus.

There was little news to-day regarding the expulsion of the Russians from London, but it is understood that the police have prepared a list for the Home Office of those Russians whose absence is considered desirable. This list is to be submitted to the Home Secretary, and when it has been approved it is to be sent to Sir Austen Chamberlain for transmission to M. Rosengolz, as a reply to his demand that there should be an extension of time for a number of his compatriots. It is understood that the number of Russians connected with the Soviet Mission and Trade Delegation allowed to remain in this country will be very few. A "Red" club in the City of London, run by the employés of the Trade Delegation and Arcos, has been closed as a preliminary to the exodus.

Quick Work.

The Australian Press Association and the Australian Newspapers' Cable Service, working in collaboration with the Exchange Telegraph Company, Limited, and with the co-operation of the General Post Office, succeeded in sending the result of the Derby from Epsom to Australia to-day in the "record" time of three seconds by means of the Australian beam service. Three seconds after Call Boy passed the winning post the Melbourne Central Telegraph Office acknowledged the receipt of the message giving the winner's name. Seven seconds later the names of the second and third horses were acknowledged, and in another four seconds—fourteen seconds after the finish of the race—the full result was known in all the principal newspaper offices in Australia. The previous "record" for the transmission of the Derby result to Australia was sixty seconds last year. This "record" for a message to Australia was surpassed on Budget day this year, a few days after the beam stations had been handed over by the Marconi Company to the General Post Office, when the first news of the Budget to arrive in Australia was contained in a thirteen-word message, which was transmitted via Empiradio to Australia, in thirty seconds.

The Donegal County Council have decided to insure the three courthouses in the county, which had been destroyed during the civil strife and which have been rebuilt.

THE CANDIDATES.

PROSPECTS IN DUBLIN CITY AND COUNTY.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

Yesterday was the last day for the nomination of candidates for the Free State general election. In all, 366 candidates submitted their papers and deposited the necessary fee entitling them to ask for the suffrages of the people at the polls.

There was little excitement at the various nomination centres and hardly a single surprise candidate. The majority of the candidates in County Dublin and the two city constituencies, at all events, had been nominated during the two previous days. To Mr. Denis Neary, the blind man candidate, belongs the distinction of being the first to be nominated in Dublin County, and probably in the whole country. He handed his papers to the returning officer on Saturday last.

SUPPORT FOR GOVERNMENT PARTY.

With eight parties, including the Independents, in the field and 366 candidates, anything may happen on polling day. The feeling is growing, however, that opinion in the country is hardening in favour of Cumann na nGaedheal. The party organisers are hopeful of gains in some parts of the country, notably in the Gaeltacht areas, but are frankly doubtful of success in others. The position, as it was put to me by an official of the organisation, is: "What we lose on the swings we shall gain in the roundabouts, and, perhaps, a good deal more."

It is now only seven days till polling day, and a good deal of ground remains to be covered. This week-end will see the election activity at its highest point. Meantime, every available hoarding and gable is being plastered with election posters.

ALL CONFIDENT.

All the parties, of course, assert that their nominees will be returned, and in a good many constituencies the results seem fairly apparent. In the Dublin County and City constituencies, however, he would be a wise prophet, indeed, who could foretell the outcome of the election.

In the county no fewer than twenty candidates are fighting for eight seats.

Curiously enough, Dublin City, the seat of Government, had not a single representative in the Ministry in the last Dail, but the county had two, Mr. Kevin O'Higgins and Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, and the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Thomas Johnson, as well. The county candidates are representative of many interests, and there are few electors who will be able to say that none of the nominees deserves their support. The Government Party are bidding for four of the seats, but Fianna Fail, greatly daring, is asking for five. Labour would be content with the return of Messrs. Johnson, Norton and Curran.

The election of Major Bryan Cooper and Mr. John Good, both of whom have excellent Parliamentary records, is regarded as certain. The position of the National League candidates is different. All three were late in the field, and have much leeway to make up. Captain Harrison, however, who was formerly a member of the British House of Commons and private secretary to Parnell, will have a big pull among the ex-Service men, a large number of whom live in the county.

NORTH CITY.

In the North City Dublin constituency, where there are nineteen candidates for eight seats, Mr. Richard Mulcahy is the best known of the Government nominees, while Mrs. Collins-O'Driscoll and Mr. P. Leonard, although both regular in attendance at the Dail, seldom addressed the House. Mr. Alfred Byrne (Independent) is expected to poll well. Of the Labour men, Mr. R. J. P. Mortished may win a seat. He is an ex-civil servant. Mr. Coghlan Briscoe, a National League candidate, whose nomination papers were signed by ten doctors and sixty-five hospital nurses, regards his prospects as good.

SOUTH CITY.

Among the fifteen candidates for the seven South City Dublin seats, perhaps the best known are Dr. Myles Keogh (Independent), Mr. P. S. Doyle (Government), and Mr. Sean Lemass, who is Mr. de Valera's chief lieutenant. The first two sat in the last Dail, but Mr. Lemass, although elected, did not take his seat. Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., is standing as an National League candidate, and is said to be receiving a very large measure of support, while Mr. M. J. O'Mullane (Independent Republican) has declared his intention of taking the oath and his seat if he is elected.

THE UNIVERSITIES.

In Dublin University the three sitting members—Mr. E. H. Alton, F., T.C.D.; Sir James Craig, M.D., and Professor W. E. Thrift, F., T.C.D.—are opposed by Mr. B. C. Waller.

In the National University, where there are only two seats to be filled, Dr. Hayes, the Speaker of the Dail, being already elected, the position is complicated. Of the five candidates the chances of Mr. P. McGilligan, Minister for Industry and Commerce, the sponsor of the Shannon scheme, appear to be best. I am informed that most of the 600 votes which have been added to the register since the 1923 election will go to him, and these, together with the other votes he will receive, ought to place him high up in the list on polling day. It appears as if the election of a member for the second seat will be a scramble. Dr. John MacNeill, former Minister for Education and Free State member of the Boundary Commission, has been assured of a large volume of support. Professor Magennis, leader of the Clann Eireann Party, is confident that he will be returned, as are also Miss Agnes O'Farrelly (Independent) and Dr. Arthur Clery, who is standing as a Republican.

Only one thing may be confidently predicted. The personnel of the Dail will have undergone drastic change, for better or worse, when it reassembles three weeks hence.

LATE LABOUR MAYOR'S DEATH.

Mr. Robert Barley King, the first Labour Mayor of Grantham, who held office in 1926-9, was seized with a stroke on Tuesday, and died yesterday morning, aged seventy-seven. He was for forty-eight years in the service of the Great Northern Railway.

A SOVIET BOGEY.

THE "INEVITABLE WAR" SCARE.

PROLETARIANS TOLD TO BE PREPARED.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

RIGA, Wednesday.

The Soviet authorities and all the Communist organisations continue to work up the war scare. What effect the statements of the leaders as to the "imminence of war" may have on the mass of the people it is difficult to judge, but travellers from Moscow and Leningrad say that no influential Communist believes in this bogey, which is raised in order to deflect the attention of the people from the significance of events in China and from the fresh party discords at home.

Following the manifesto issued by the Communist International yesterday, the Soviet Trades Union International and the Executive Committee of the Communist Party have also issued appeals which the Soviet Press to-day publishes as "important warnings" to proletarians, lest the "inevitable war" should find them unprepared.

The Communist Party's appeal cites Mr. Lloyd George as their authority, alleging that "even he" has publicly proclaimed the inevitably of an Anglo-Soviet war, and, therefore, proletarians may be doubly sure that war will come, although the moment is uncertain when the "enemy may fall upon us."

THE DIPLOMATIC RUPTURE.

RYKOFF AND THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Wednesday.

Speaking before the plenary session of the Moscow Soviet to-day, Rykoff, President of the Council of Commissars, said that the importance of the immediate future depended mainly on what forces the U.S.S.R. would be able to rally to the flag of peace, and what measure of success would attend the Conservatives' policy of preparing for a big war under the guise of intervention in the U.S.S.R. An unbiassed analysis of facts and events of the past two months yielded no good reason justifying a rupture of relations between Great Britain and the Soviets.

Dealing with the charges made against the Soviets by the Tory Government ever since 1921, Rykoff said that the sources of such charges was always forged documents which had repeatedly been exposed by the Soviet Government. The raid on Arcos and the rupture of relations synchronised with the session of the International Economic Conference at Geneva, where even Sir Arthur Balfour, the chairman of the British Delegation, was forced to recognise the necessity of peaceful co-operation between the U.S.S.R. and capitalist countries, particularly Great Britain.

THE SEARCH AT ARCOS.

Referring to the search of the Arcos and Soviet Trade Delegation's offices, Rykoff said that, as recognised in the European papers, the search, which resulted in the discovery of no secret document, "was more fitting for use as a movie thriller than as an argument in Parliament for the rupture of diplomatic relations between two great States."

After referring to what he described as the "violent and illegal actions committed during the search by the police," Rykoff said that there was evidently a desire to see something criminal in the measures of precaution taken by the Soviet personnel as regarded the raid.

POINTS FROM THE SPEECHES.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE.

The Government of this small State has as high a conception of national duty as the Government of the oldest nation in Europe. After four years of office we leave the country without a penny of debt for the Great War. We have reduced taxation by £4 a head. We come fearlessly before the people asking for their judgment on our work, and if they are satisfied with it I am sure they will have no hesitation in recording it either in this or any other constituency.—At Ballina.

MR. O'HIGGINS.

You will only get this entire country within a single political system by agreement, and I believe that you will get that agreement only by going ahead and building up conditions here that will constitute an attraction to the good people who have been led to believe that the greatest disaster that could happen to them would be to be included in a single political system with the rest of their countrymen.—At Athlone.

MR. E. BLYTHE.

Attempts to prevent speakers from being heard were not attacks on the speakers, but on the electors, and were really another version of the attack that was made upon the people by gunmen three or four years ago.—At Castleblayney.

MAJOR BRYAN COOPER.

State employment is costly and destructive of private enterprise. The province of the State is to create conditions under which private enterprise can flourish, and not to create big business enterprises of its own. . . . I am afraid that the work of the Tariff Commission is being prejudiced. Ministers are going about the country saying that there will be more tariffs.—At Rathmines.

SIR WILLIAM HICKIE.

There are many thousands of Irishmen who would give a great deal to see a united Ireland, with an Irish National Anthem that all could sing with devotion. These things will, doubtless, come some day; but we want them to come quickly. I feel that Major Bryan Cooper has done much, and will do still more, to bring about these ideals.—At Rathmines.

MR. DE VALERA.

Fianna Fail could not have put 95 or 100 candidates in the field if they had not got financial help from those who had been driven out of the country. The credit of those of them who were Irish Republicans was far higher abroad than any credit the Free State could have. Labour and Republicanism were natural allies, and it always had been his earnest desire that they should work hand in hand.—At Tipperary.

SOUTH AFRICAN FLAG.

BILL TO BE SENT TO A COMMITTEE.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Wednesday.

There is a strong Lobby rumour, which I have good reason to believe is well founded, that the Government intends to send the Flag Bill to a Select Committee in order to amend the bill, providing that the Union Jack be flown officially whenever the South African flag is flown, instead of only on four days in each year, as is at present provided in the bill.

The intervention of the Select Committee will not be allowed to delay the passage of the bill, which the Government is determined to get through the Assembly this session.

It is extremely improbable that the Government's new move will be acceptable to the Opposition. The second reading debate, which has now lasted for six Parliamentary days, seems unlikely to finish to-night.

SPYING FOR THE BOLSHEVISTS.

A GENERAL EXECUTED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

RIGA, Wednesday.

General Kleschinsky, former Chief of the Lithuanian General Staff, who was arrested a week ago on a charge of espionage, was yesterday sentenced to death by courtmartial at Kovno, the capital of Lithuania, for receiving a regular salary from the Soviet Legation for supplying Soviet Russia with Lithuanian military information.

The Kovno message adds that President Smetona refused to entertain Kleschinsky's appeal, whereupon the sentence was immediately carried out.

UNADJUSTED WAR CLAIMS.

BRITISH AGREEMENT WITH UNITED STATES.

The British Foreign Office last night issued the following:—

"On May 19th, 1927, Notes were exchanged at the Department of State in Washington, putting into effect an agreement between Great Britain and the United States for the settlement of certain inter-governmental and private claims arising out of the late war and heretofore unadjusted.

"The two Governments approached the problem from a practical point of view, and have been animated throughout their negotiations by a common desire to find a rational solution without sacrificing any question of principle on either side.

"The result of their efforts has been not only to provide a satisfactory disposal of outstanding claims, but also to remove permanently from the field of diplomatic controversy questions which, if permitted to remain unsettled, might have arisen later to embarrass the cordial relations now happily existing between Great Britain and the United States of America."

The agreement provides that neither Government will make further claims against the other on account of supplies furnished, services rendered, or damages sustained by it in connection with the prosecution of the war, all such accounts to be regarded as definitely closed and settled.

BOSWORTH RESULT.

A LIBERAL VICTORY.

The Bosworth by-election has resulted in a Liberal victory. Sir William Edge has been returned by a majority of 271 over the Labour candidate, Councillor J. Minto, and by 4,296 more votes than the total polled for the Conservative candidate, Brigadier-General Spears. At the previous election Captain Gee, V.C. (Conservative) defeated Mr. G. Ward (Liberal) by 358 votes. The present election was caused by the resignation of Captain Gee.

After a recount, demanded by the Labour candidate, the result was declared yesterday afternoon as follows:—

Sir William Edge (Lib.)	11,981
Mr. J. Minto (Labour)	11,710
Brig.-Gen. E. L. Spears (Con.)	7,685
Liberal majority	271

At the previous election the figures were:—

Captain R. Gee, V.C. (Con.)	10,114
G. Ward (L.)	9,756
J. Minto (Lab.-Soc.)	9,143
Conservative majority	358

VIEWS OF THE CANDIDATES.

In an interview Sir William Edge said that his victory showed that Toryism was down and out, and that the country was coming back to ideals and methods which had made Britain great.

Councillor Minto said that Britain had lost because many Tory votes drifted to the Liberal.

Brigadier-General Spears attributed his defeat to misunderstanding and misrepresentation.

IN THE LOBBY.

The Press Association Lobby Correspondent writes:—The result of the Bosworth by-election did not cause any great excitement in the Lobby. The result had been anticipated, and the Liberal members were delighted.

Conservative members explained that the seat had been traditionally Liberal until Captain Gee had won it.

The Labour members suggested that the Government had found it impossible to overcome the feeling against the Trade Unions Bill.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE ON THE RESULT.

Mr. Lloyd George (says the Press Association Correspondent) told that, on hearing the result, he sent the following telegram to Sir William Edge:—"Warm congratulations from my colleagues in the House of Commons and myself on your triumph in the second historic battle of Bosworth." He added: "Now that we are working together as a united party, the people of this country have turned their faces definitely towards the Liberal Party as their surest hope of good government."

MR. CHURCHILL TO ATTEND EISTEDDFOD.

It is officially announced that Mr. Winston Churchill will preside at the Wednesday afternoon meeting during the National Eisteddfod at Holyhead in the first week in August, when the chief choral competition will take place. Mr. Lloyd George is to preside on the Thursday afternoon and Mr. J. H. Thomas on the following Monday afternoon.

BATTLESHIPS AT ALEXANDRIA.

EGYPTIAN OUTLOOK MORE HOPEFUL.

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN'S ACCOUNT.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

CAIRO, Wednesday.

The two British battleships, Barham and Malaya, arrived at Alexandria this morning, and the Royal Sovereign has arrived at Port Said.

What will be the action of the home Government in the event of an Egyptian refusal to accept the present requirements is not clear, though the sending of the British warships is a significant reminder of the manner in which the Arabic revolt of 1882 was handled, and of the actions taken three years ago, when British naval forces seized the Egyptian Customs, on the Zaghlul Government's refusal to accept the British demands after the murder of the Sirdar.

WHY THE NOTE WAS SENT.

FOREIGN SECRETARY'S STATEMENT.

Replying to questions in the House of Commons yesterday, Sir A. Chamberlain said:—For some time past the Egyptian Army has attracted the attention of a section of Egyptian politicians. The aims of this section are—Firstly, to increase the existing numbers of the Army, and to strengthen its armament, and ultimately to convert it into a weapon at the disposal of one political party, the Wafd.

These projects are a matter of direct concern to His Majesty's Government. The defence of the Suez Canal is one of our vital interests, and the protection of foreigners one of our obligations, and we cannot permit our task to be complicated by the presence of a potentially hostile force, such as there is good reason to fear the Egyptian Army might become if subversive influences were to be allowed full play.

Some days ago the War Committee of the Egyptian Parliament published its recommendations to the Chamber of Deputies. These recommendations included the raising of the establishment of the infantry battalions, an increase in the strength and armament of the artillery, the acquisition of numbers of machine guns, and, finally, the cancellation of the budgetary credit for the Sirdarate.

The British Inspector-General of the Egyptian Army is at present the Acting Sirdar or Commander-in-Chief.

The object of the recommendations in question is to transfer this officer's functions, in the main, to the Minister of War. The party in power would, as a result, be enabled to exercise for their own purposes unchecked political influence over the Army.

After consultation with His Majesty's Government, the High Commissioner addressed a Note to the Egyptian Government on Monday last. In the Note was set forth our view that the whole question was one in which Egypt and Great Britain were both interested, and which could properly form the subject of an agreed settlement. This, we consider, could be so framed as to meet the best interests of both countries, and we are ready at once to open negotiations for this purpose. But until an agreement has been reached, we must insist upon the maintenance of safeguards which past experience has shown to be effective.

In the meanwhile, reports indicated that efforts were being made to foment political excitement. This, in the past, has led to serious excesses, as in Alexandria in 1921, and it was decided to despatch three warships to Egyptian waters, in the belief that their presence would exercise a restraining effect on those disorderly elements which constitute the chief danger to the lives and interests of foreigners.

Conversations between Lord Lloyd and the Egyptian Government are in progress, and in these circumstances it would be undesirable for me to add to the statement I have made, and I trust the House will not press me further.

AN EARLY SOLUTION POSSIBLE.

DRAFT REPLY READY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAIRO, Wednesday.

Sarwat Pasha, the Prime Minister, did not pay his expected visit to the Presidency this morning. He apparently intends to see Lord Lloyd after visiting King Fuad this afternoon and discussing the situation with His Majesty. It is understood that the Cabinet's attitude gives ground for the hope that an early solution of the difficulty will be reached.

The draft reply of the Egyptian Government is ready. It is considered probable that Sarwat Pasha will inform Lord Lloyd to-night of the contemplated reply, and it is not anticipated that any serious difficulties will be found in the way of reaching an agreement.

The Ahram's details (given below) of the British Note are stated to be not altogether correct, as, for instance, in the case of Paragraph 8, regarding the submission of the Army Council's decisions to the King. It is the War Minister's duty to submit them to the King, but the Note contains certain stipulations regarding the procedure.

The Ahram says that the first three paragraphs of the British Note emphasise the good intentions of the British Government. The sixth expresses Britain's desire to reach an amicable solution immediately.

The eighth paragraph is said to concern the functions of the Inspector-General, Spinks Pasha, and the administration of frontier districts. It requests that Spinks Pasha's appointment should be renewed for three years, with the rank of Ferik, that he should have control of the Egyptian Army, being responsible for promotions and for discipline, and that he should submit the Army Council's decisions direct to the King, not through the British War Minister. It also requests the appointment of a British officer, with the rank of Lewa, as Chief of Staff. The administration of the frontiers is to be placed under a British officer.

Mrs. Kate Goulter, aged 58 years, of Cardiff, was killed while motoring back from the Derby last evening. The wind-screen of her car was accidentally shattered and a piece of the glass punctured an artery in her thigh. She died on the way to hospital.

LATE NEWS.

JUTLAND BATTLE.

THE RATTLING OF DRY BONES.

In a leading article The Times remarks:—The interest of the Harper record of the Battle of Jutland, which was issued last night, has been sensibly diminished by Admiral Harper's preliminary publication of a popular volume on the same subject. That volume, which was attended by every circumstance of organised publicity, including a newspaper article by the author on why it came to be written, did something for the first time to explain the comparatively slight importance which the Admiralty seemed to attach to the record. The reviewers, not unnaturally, began by taking the book as something of a revelation; for it contains, as they saw, a good deal of authentic detail accumulated from official sources. But further reflection on the conjunction of the two documents has plainly shaken them. There was something more than a suspicion, after the appearance of the book, that the writer was not quite so free from bias as his selection for the work of official recordmakers implied.

The broad conclusion at which most people have arrived, after reading to the best of their capacity the official records, including the present appendix to them, and Admiral Harper's book, and all the previous critics against whom he tilts, is that to the end of time there can never be complete unanimity about the conduct or the consequences of the Battle of Jutland. Fresh details may be produced and analysed, new judgments may be based upon them, but a final verdict will depend for each individual commentator upon his estimate of risks and opportunities, and of the qualities of command required in meeting them, which are not to be measured solely by charts and positions. In the framing of such an estimate, it is quite inevitable that the relative merits of Lord Jellicoe and of Lord Beatty should be brought into sharp contrast, and everyone who knows those two great sailors is well aware that the contrast of temperaments is real and profound.

In our own view, for what it is worth, the supreme service rendered by Lord Jellicoe to the final victory at sea, which was complete and decisive, was not his over-riding sense of these responsibilities at Jutland, but the patient courage and unflagging alertness with which he brought the Grand Fleet through its long and dangerous vigil at Scapa Flow. We are equally convinced that it will be a bad day for the spirit of the British Navy when its teachers come to condemn the dash, the tenacity, the instinct for command in battle, which were displayed, not at Jutland alone, by Admiral Beatty with his battle cruisers. Let us give them each the credit due to their qualities, and let them give it to one another.

SHAMROCK LEAVES KINGSTOWN.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON'S YACHT GOES NORTH.

Shamrock's stay in Kingstown Harbour was short-lived; for she left early yesterday morning bound North, and for the Clyde, of course. Possibly she will put into Belfast Lough on the passage up the coast, and in any case she will visit there for the regatta week, which follows the Clyde "Fortnight."

Kingstown yachtsmen would like to think that she will look into their harbour again on the way down South, and others of her like with her, boats of the biggest class—not with the idea of racing, of course, but just to renew old associations.

The question was often asked during the last day or so: What is the age of Shamrock? As she was launched in 1908, she is now 19 years old. Designed by Fife, of Fairlie, and built by the same famous firm of yacht-builders and designers, her principal dimensions are:—Length between perpendiculars (fore part of stem to after portion of stern post), 96.6 feet; beam, 20.85 feet; depth, 11.2 feet.

Her sail area for rating purposes is a few hundred feet short of 10,000 square feet. Her registered tonnage is 94.02 tons; Thames measurement, 175 tons. Under the International Rating Rule she is 23 metres.

BOYS AND GIRLS MAROONED.

RESCUED BY LIFEBOAT.

Thrilling rescue scenes were witnessed by hundreds of people at Southerndown, a popular holiday resort on the Glamorgan coast, yesterday evening.

While the scholars of a Bridgend Sunday School were holding their annual treat there, five of them, three youths and two girls, who had seated themselves on a rock some distance from the shore, became encircled by the incoming tide.

Finding themselves entrapped they raised frantic cries for help. The lifeboat from Porthcawl was summoned, and navigating its way with great difficulty to the marooned party, owing to the numerous rocks, succeeded in getting them into the boat and safely landing them.

One of the youths, however, fell into the water in jumping for the boat, and was rescued with a lifebelt.

MISSING FRENCH AIRMEN.

ANOTHER SEARCH OFF NEWFOUNDLAND.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, Wednesday.

Major Sidney Cotton, an airman, who has flown extensively in Newfoundland, is leaving New York in a seaplane to-morrow to search along the South Coast of Newfoundland for Captains Nungesser and Coli, the missing French airmen.

Major Cotton, who is planning a very exhaustive search, is having petrol stored at five points on that seaboard.

THE AMERICAN SUBSCRIPTION.

PARIS, Wednesday.

The subscription opened by an American Committee for the families of the ill-fated airmen, Nungesser and Coli, has now reached a sum of 750,000 francs. Among the latest contributions is one from Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, who sends a sum of 1,000 dollars.

CALL BOY WINS THE DERBY.

POPULAR VICTORY FOR MR. CURZON'S COLT FROM HOT NIGHT & SHIAN MOR.

CALL BOY won this year's Derby in 2 minutes 34 2-5 seconds, thus beating by 1-5 of a second the previous record held by Captain Cuttle, who was successful in 1922. When Pommern won the "Substitute" Derby in 1915 in 2 minutes 32 3-5 seconds the race was run at Newmarket. Mr. Frank Curzon, the owner of Call Boy, thus had his optimism regarding his colt's chance confirmed, and, with the exception of a few strides, when Hot Night ranged alongside, Call Boy can be said to have made virtually the whole of the running.

It was also a very popular success with the vast majority of those at Epsom yesterday, as Call Boy was always in most demand, and the easy manner in which he achieved his success left no doubt as to his stamina.

Mr. Curzon, who has been in indifferent health for some time past, was overcome with emotion as he proceeded to the course to lead his horse in, and he just succeeded in congratulating Elliott and patting his great colt before being led away on the arm of a friend. He quickly recovered under medical attention, and when sent for by the King he ascended the lift to the Royal box to receive His Majesty's hearty congratulations on his success.

HOW THE KING SAW THE RACE.

The crowd at Epsom was one of the biggest ever seen on the famous Downs.

The King and Queen, the Prince of Wales, Prince Henry, and Princess Mary arrived on the course shortly after one o'clock, and when they appeared in the Royal Box to take a view of the vast assembly a great cheer re-echoed over the Downs.

The King watched the race with Princess Mary. They stood together in a corner of the balcony, with Lord Lascelles just behind. The Queen was the only one in the Royal Box who watched the race sitting down.

OVATION FOR LINDBERGH.

Captain Lindbergh came with Lord Lonsdale. The crowd recognised him as he walked across the course, and gave him a great reception, which lasted several minutes.

So far as the race is concerned, Call Boy made every yard of the running, and won in the style of a good horse. He was almost caught by Hot Night half-way down the straight, but a hundred yards from home the challenger was shaken off, and Call Boy won a great race.

Call Boy's victory was far from popular with the bookmakers, most of whom lost heavily. The winner had been well backed all through, as also had Hot Night.

CALL BOY'S OWNER.

Mr. Frank Curzon, the owner of Call Boy, is well known in theatrical circles as a manager and producer, and has been racing for some time. For many years he was a popular resident at Newmarket, occupying Primrose House in the High street, which was formerly the residence of Lord Rosebery.

He subsequently disposed of it to Sir Archibald Gold, but retained possession of Primrose Cottage, adjacent to the stables, where his horses are trained by Jack Watts. He has achieved numerous successes on the Turf, one of the most notable of which was when he won the Chester Cup.

In 1923, owing to ill-health, Mr. Curzon contemplated giving up his active interest in racing, but he decided to continue.

When a very large sum was offered for the purchase of Call Boy last year he declined to part with him, declaring that he was not for sale at any price.

DERBY NIGHT IN LONDON.

The King gave his accustomed Derby night dinner at Buckingham Palace last evening, when he entertained the members of the Jockey Club. The diners numbered just under fifty, and included the Prince of Wales, Prince Henry, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur and Viscount Lascelles.

The Queen and other ladies of the Royal Family dined with the Countess of Derby at Derby House.

Most of the big hotels and restaurants in the West End of London had arranged special festivities to mark Derby Day, and there were gay scenes.

Captain Lindbergh was at the Savoy as the guest of the American organisations in London.

At the New Prince's Restaurant some of the jockeys who took part in the big race were present at the dinner and ball.

£7,200 to £5.

A Glasgow commercial traveller, Mr. James Strang, who lives in Pollock street, backed the winners of the Lincoln and the Grand National and the Derby for a £5 treble and has won £7,200. This was the first bet he had ever made.

"I know as little about racehorses as the fireplace," he told an interviewer.

HOW CALL BOY WON.

STORY TOLD BY OWNERS AND JOCKEYS.

MR. FRANK CURZON (The Owner).

I never had any doubt about the result after I had taken my trainer's and jockey views after the Two Thousand Guineas. My horse ran just as I thought he would, and when Hot Night came to grips with him in the straight, I felt sure he would stay on and win as he did.

J. E. WATTS (Trainer).

Call Boy is a good, game colt. I always had every confidence in him, as he went through his preparation without the slightest trouble or interruption.

C. ELLIOTT (Jockey).

I got a good start, and crossed over to the inside as quickly as I could. I think I made all the running, and always felt like winning, even when Hot Night came up to me in the straight.

STEVE DONOGHUE (Lone Knight).

I was lying about fifth or sixth to begin with, but the others were always going too fast, and I soon realised I had no chance at all.

H. BEASLEY (Treat).

Treat was not suited to the course.

J. CHILDS (Applecross).

My horse felt the going and jarred himself on the way to the post. Otherwise I have no excuse to offer.

T. WESTON (Sickle).

I could never get in front of Call Boy.

F. LANE (Shian Mor).

Shian Mor ran a nice race. I went up third at the top of the hill, and afterwards became second, but my horse dropped back as soon as Hot Night passed him.

J. LEACH (Adam's Apple).

Adam's Apple was going well up to the sixth furlong post, but then began to lose ground, and I had to give him a touch with the whip, but it was of no avail.

FRANK BUTTERS (Trainer of Sickle).

The colt was never going smoothly in the race, and quite early Weston had to give him a reminder.

I realised all along that Call Boy was the one I had to beat, and I was disappointed that Sickle had not made the same good show against him that he had always done before.

SWEEPSTAKE WINNERS.

CAPE TOWN DENTAL MECHANIC COMING HOME.

CAPE TOWN, Wednesday.

Mr. Kilpatrick, the young dental mechanic who drew Call Boy in the Calcutta Sweep, received the news of the result of the Derby with apparent calmness.

His first thoughts were for his mother in England, and he intends leaving for home at the first opportunity "to help those who have helped me."

Mr. Kilpatrick, who is a bachelor, is well known for the part he has taken in amateur theatricals, particularly Gilbert and Sullivan, and he is a very popular member of the Cape Town Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society.

Mr. Kilpatrick is a native of Leeds, and his mother and sister now live at Milnbridge, in Westmoreland. He was trained as a dental mechanic, and went out to the Cape in 1915.

WON £3,725.

In addition to the money won through his being a runner, Sickle, who ran unsuccessfully in the Derby, brought in fifty thousand rupees (£3,725) to Mr. T. D. Lowe, a minor official of the Eastern Telegraph Company. He drew the horse in the Calcutta Sweep, and parted with a quarter share to a Calcutta syndicate for that sum.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE WINNERS.

Mr. William Jones, of Swallow's Nest, Allwell road, Felixstowe, who drew Call Boy in the Stock Exchange Sweepstake, sold three-quarters of the ticket, and therefore gets about £18,751. He is a middle-aged man and "semi-retired."

Mr. A. H. Latham, who drew Hot Night in the Stock Exchange Sweepstake, holds the ticket for the second prize of £35,000. When it was announced that the ticket had drawn that horse he was offered £3,500 for half of it, and he closed with the offer. A clerk, employed by Messrs. Coates, Son and Co., Ltd., stockbrokers, of Gresham street, London, he is married and has two children. He lives at Bishops Stortford.

He bought ten tickets and sold nine of them, and would have disposed of the tenth if he could have found a buyer.

NEW PALESTINE STAMPS.

JERUSALEM, Wednesday.

The first of the postage stamps issued by the Palestine Government to replace the surcharged Egyptian Expeditionary Force issue hitherto in use appeared to-day. Only two values have appeared as yet—namely, the three milliene green, bearing a picture of Rachel's tomb, and the thirteen milliene blue, showing the dome of the rock.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET CONFERENCE.

BIG GATHERING IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Wednesday.

The visit to Berlin of M. Chicherin, Soviet Commissary for Foreign Affairs, on his way back from Frankfort to Moscow, will, it is believed here, not be restricted to a conference with Herr Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister.

The Russians intend to hold a big Soviet conference, which will be attended by M. Rosengolz, former Soviet Chargé d'Affaires in London; M. Krestinski, the Soviet Ambassador in Berlin; the Russian representatives at the International Economic Conference, and also by the Soviet Ambassadors in Paris and Rome.

The latter, it is stated, have already received orders to come to Berlin.—(Reuter.)

THE BRAY PLEBISCITE.

"NOT VALID OR BINDING"—GAELIC LEAGUE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the County Wicklow Gaelic League Committee, the Rev. K. Brady, C.C., presiding, the recent plebiscite following on the Bri-Chualann-Bray controversy was considered, and an order was made that, while the League could not regard the plebiscite, in all the circumstances, valid, binding or satisfactory, they extended to Mr. C. Byrne, who had been spokesman in behalf of the League throughout the controversy, their thanks and appreciation for the attitude which he had adopted, and the ardent manner in which he had advocated their cause.

RESTRAINING CITY FATHERS.

BELFAST FLAG INCIDENT.

QUESTIONS AT CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

REMOVAL DUE TO A MISUNDERSTANDING.

There was a reference at the monthly meeting of the Belfast Corporation yesterday to the removal of the Irish Free State flag from the City Hall after the inauguration of Belfast's Empire Shopping Week. The flag, together with those of the other Dominions, formed part of the decoration scheme provided by the Empire Marketing Board.

EXPLANATION NECESSARY.

... ex-High Sheriff (Alderman Oswald ...on), a Nationalist member of the Cor... ...n, said that, as this was a matter ... excited a great deal of interest in the city, he thought some explanation should be given to the public. He would like to congratulate the Lord Mayor heartily upon the assistance that he gave to the Empire Committee in the organisation of Empire Week, which was one of the most successful weeks that they had had in the city. They all knew that Empire Week was instituted for the purpose of developing trade and better relations and co-operation amongst the Dominions of the Empire. Belfast very nobly entered into that work, and he was sure that as a result of the activities of the Empire Committee during the past week a good deal of prosperity would come to the city.

During the week the Empire Marketing Board, which had charge of the decorations in the city, and also at the City Hall, got a small sub-committee, consisting of Major Haslett, Major Duffin, Major Henderson and Captain Boucher, and handed over to them the work in connection with the decoration of the City Hall. Flags of all the Dominions, including the Irish Free State, formed part of the decoration scheme, and that gave pleasure to probably ninety-nine per cent. of the population, who regarded it as a gesture of good-will to their nearest Dominion, the Irish Free State, which was over the border and part and parcel of the British Empire. The removal of the flag gave a great deal of displeasure. On Monday Empire Week was opened by His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, representing the King, with the Free State flag flying on the side of the building, and within a short time the flag was taken down. He (Alderman Jamison) understood that a small "soviet" of irresponsible people came to the City Hall and said this flag must be taken down.

CITY HALL SURRENDERS.

This flag was flown at Wembley as one of the Dominion flags, and also at Whitehall during the visit of the Dominion Premiers; but this small "soviet" made representations that it be taken down, or they would take it down, and those in the City Hall surrendered immediately. He made that protest so that these people, who were probably less than one per cent. of the citizens, should understand in future that no interference can be made or will be allowed to be made with the flags of the free Dominions of the British Empire, nor with any action which in the opinion of the Corporation was right and proper.

He maintained that when this small committee of reasonable and responsible men thought it right to put up the flag of this Dominion, once it was up it should have remained. Instead of that, a small percentage of the people were led to believe that this was the political flag of the old Republican Party, and did not seem to know that it is the recognised official flag of the Irish Free State Dominion of the British Empire.

LORD MAYOR'S SUGGESTION.

The Lord Mayor said that no good purpose could be served by discussing this question. He thought that it would be better to leave the matter as it was. There seemed to have been some misunderstanding in connection with the removal of the flag. Some people thought that it was a political emblem of the Sinn Fein Party, and did not seem to know that it was the recognised Free State flag.

Mr. William McMullan (Labour) said that he thought that if a misunderstanding had been created, it should be countered in the interest of the trade of Northern Ireland. They wanted to establish and maintain good relations with their nearest neighbour. If this incident was due to a misunderstanding, there should be some official explanation that it was not connected with any ill-will against their nearest neighbour.

NEXT BUSINESS MOVED.

The Lord Mayor—I quite recognise what you state. The whole thing originated through a mistake that it was merely a Sinn Fein flag. I think it would be much better to drop ... We wish nothing but the ... relations between the North and ...

Sir William Coates, Bart.—I move that we proceed to the next business.

Mr. McMullan—All I want is an explanation that the whole thing resulted from a misapprehension, and was not actuated by any ill-will towards the Free State. An explanation of that kind would do no harm.

The matter then dropped.

BELFAST ELECTRICITY STATION.

TWENTY-FIVE CANDIDATES FOR A POSITION.

It was intimated at the Belfast Corporation yesterday that twenty-five applications had been received for the position rendered vacant by the retirement of Mr. Johnstone Wright, city electrical engineer and general manager. The committee eliminated the names of the candidates who were over fifty years of age and those who had not wide experience in the control and management of large electrical undertakings.

This left on the list the following:—Herbert Bell (49), city electrical engineer, City and County of Kingston-upon-Hull; Ernest Morgan (41), chief engineer and general manager, Wolverhampton Corporation Electricity Department; John H. Parker (46), borough electrical engineer, West Hartlepool; F. N. Rendell-Gaker (40), borough electrical engineer and manager, County Borough of St. Helens Electricity Undertaking; J. D. Waite (42), chief assistant, Stoke-on-Trent Corporation Electricity Works; Percy P. Wheelright (49), chief engineer and general manager, County Borough of Blackburn Electricity Undertaking; Frank H. Whysall (50), burgh electrical engineer to the Greenock Corporation; John Williams (46), technical assistant to city electrical engineer, Salford, Lancashire.

The Committee is to meet again on Tuesday next to further reduce the list.

BELFAST BOYS IN DUBLIN INSTITUTION.

ARRANGEMENT WITH THE CORPORATION.

The Chairman of the Belfast Education Committee (Alderman James A. BANK CLERKSHIPS.

NATIONAL GALLERY OF IRELAND.

APPOINTMENT OF NEW DIRECTOR.

The Governors and Guardians of the National Gallery of Ireland, by a unanimous vote, yesterday elected Mr. Thomas Bodkin as Director of the Gallery. Mr. Bodkin will take up duty on July 1st. It is understood that, as he will continue to act as Secretary to the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests, he will not receive the full salary paid hitherto to the Director of the National Gallery. The directorship has always been a part-time post, but it is understood that, to enable Mr. Bodkin to devote sufficient time to it, the Government propose to appoint an additional assistant in the Commissioners' office.

NEW DIRECTOR'S CAREER.

Mr. Bodkin, who is thirty-nine years of age, has been a life-long student and enthusiast in art. Educated at Belvedere College, Dublin, Clongowes College, University College, Dublin, and in Paris, he graduated in the Royal University of Ireland in 1908, and was called to the Bar in 1911. In 1917 he was appointed Joint Secretary to the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests, and two years later he became sole Secretary to the Commissioners. He was appointed a Commissioner in 1925.

During the past twenty years he has visited and studied in the great public, private, and loan collections of England, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium, and Austria. He has been a Governor and Guardian of the National Gallery of Ireland since 1917, and a member of the Advisory Committee of the Dublin Municipal Gallery of Modern Art since its foundation. He is a Trustee of the National Library of Ireland, a member of the Council of the Royal Irish Academy, of the Council of the Friends of the National Collections of Ireland, of the Commission to advise the Minister of Finance on Coinage Design, and of the Commission to advise the Minister of Education on the teaching of art in Ireland. Mr. Bodkin is also a member of the Walpole Society, London; the Magnasco Society, London, and the Burlington Fine Arts Club, London.

PUBLISHED WORKS.

Mr. Bodkin is a voluminous writer on art subjects. For many years he has contributed articles to the principal art magazines and newspapers in Great Britain and Ireland. In 1917 he published a volume of verse translations of modern French poems, entitled "May It Please Your Lordships." His critical study, "Four Irish Landscape Painters" (1919), an able work, was very well received by the leading art critics. "The Approach to Painting" has just been published by Messrs. George Bell and Son, at their own commission. In 1925 Mr. Bodkin published a children's book, "A Guide to Capes," which was illustrated by Denis Eden.

Mr. Bodkin has lectured in art at both Universities in Dublin, and at the principal colleges and institutions of the city. Apart from his literary activity, he has discovered and acquired numerous pictures by old masters, and he possesses a valuable private collection.

A close personal friend of the late Sir Hugh Lane, Mr. Bodkin was associated with him in the foundation of the Dublin Municipal Gallery of Modern Art, and in the codicil to his will Sir Hugh Lane wrote:—"I would like my friend Tom Bodkin to be asked to help in the obtaining of this new gallery of modern art for Dublin."

Mr. Bodkin joined the Board of the National Gallery of Ireland two years ago, and since that time he has served on all the sub-committees appointed by its governors and guardians.

FREE STATE EDUCATION PROGRAMME.

SOME BLEMISHES.

Interesting references to the education programme in the Free State were made at the annual dinner in St. Mary's College, Dundalk, of the Past Pupils' Union by the Very Rev. P. J. Byrne, S.M., Superior of the College, and late Provincial of the Marist Order in Ireland.

There was, said Father Byrne, much good in the present system; it allowed greater latitude in many ways to schools and teachers, especially in the choice of books, and in general was less cramped in its methods than the old Intermediate. There was, moreover, amongst the heads of the Educational Department and the inspectors who visited the schools not only willingness but an eagerness, to help the heads of schools and the professors by their valuable suggestions, and to give friendly and useful advice. In addition, efforts had been made to improve the financial position of the schools. He hoped that those means would be continued, and that all teachers would soon be amply remunerated. It was only fair to say that under the new system the financial position was greatly improved.

He wished, however, to deal with some of the drawbacks. He criticised the preparation for the intermediate certificate, which extends over four years. It often happened that there were different teachers for all or some of the four years, and there was a danger of unevenness in the teaching and irregularity in going through the course, with the result that too heavy a burden was placed on the professor in charge for the fourth year. The ideal remedy was that the same professor should teach the four years' course in a particular subject, but in practice this was extremely difficult of education.

Father Byrne also suggested that there should be annual examinations, though, he said, to suggest this might have him branded as old and fossilised. Boys were human, and it was no incentive to a lad of 12 to tell him that at 14 he would have an examination. At the moment he was not obliged to go for an examination; if he did present himself, and got through, he got no reward. If he failed he might advance to the leaving certificate course as proudly as if he had flown the Atlantic in a Ryan monoplane. (Laughter.) Father Byrne said that the style of papers set in certain subjects in the Leaving Examination was so enigmatic and bewildering that it frightened boys off this examination, and made them take the matriculation instead.

THE TRUNK CRIME.

CLERK CHARGED WITH MURDER OF WOMAN.

At Westminster Police Court, London, yesterday, John Robinson (36), a clerk, of De Laune street, Kennington, appeared on remand, charged with the murder of Mrs. Minnie Alice Bonati, whose body was found in a trunk at a cloakroom at Charing Cross station on May 10 last. The hearing was adjourned till next Wednesday.

An alleged confession by the accused man was read by Inspector Cornish, and the magistrate, after argument, held that the statement was admissible.

Mr. Charles Wallace, who prosecuted, read a statement made by Robinson on May 23, which opened: "I want to make a voluntary statement. I am quite prepared for it to be taken down in writing. I will sign it." Mr. Wallace added that the prisoner went on to say that he was doing this with the full knowledge that the statement might be used in evidence, and that he had been cautioned.

A taxi-cab driver gave evidence of taking a very heavy trunk to Charing Cross station. It was similar to the one in Court.

Can you see your fare in Court?—No; I could not swear to him.

The man who sold the trunk said that he could not identify the purchaser.

William Henry Jabb, who went with Robinson to his office on May 6, gave evidence of helping to carry a heavy trunk downstairs.

The case was adjourned as stated.

GLASGOW SHERIFF'S DEATH.

Sheriff William Harvey, of Glasgow and Lanark, while fishing in the upper reaches of the River Clyde, collapsed on the banks, and died yesterday. Prior to coming to Glasgow he was Sheriff Substitute for Orkney and Shetland, and afterwards for Ross and Cromarty.

ARKLOW SAILOR DROWNED.

Peter Neill, an Arklow sailor, who was engaged on an English steamer, was drowned at sea. The steamer left Hull last Friday morning bound for Italy, and sometime later the owners received a wireless message stating that Neill had been drowned. The body has not been recovered.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

TRADE DISPUTES BILL.

APPLICATION OF UNION FUNDS.

From Our Parliamentary Correspondent.
WESTMINSTER, Wednesday.

There were comparatively few members in the House of Commons when business was begun this afternoon with a series of questions addressed to the Foreign Secretary. Sir Austen Chamberlain won the admiration of members generally when he glibly recited a long string of names of Chinese generals and places in an effort to describe the present position of the fighting armies in China.

The Prime Minister, answering Colonel Day, said that he was not in a position to make a statement on the amendment of the present licensing laws. In reply to a question by Mr. Clynes, Mr. Baldwin said that there would be an autumn session.

TRADE UNION FUNDS.

If anything, the debate on the Trade Disputes and Trade Unions Bill this evening was duller than usual. There is little of vital importance left to discuss, and, although the Labour members attempted to put up something of a fight, they made rather a poor show, and the Minister in charge of the bill had an easy time. The debate was resumed on Clause 7, which empowers the Attorney-General to obtain an injunction to restrain any application of trade union funds in contravention of the provisions of the Act, without prejudice to the right of any person having a sufficient interest in the relief sought to apply for an injunction on his own account.

A general discussion of the clause took place on an amendment, moved by Captain Garro-Jones, to restrict the right to apply for an injunction—apart from the Attorney-General's right—to a member of the trade union involved. Sir Ellis Hume Williams, speaking as a lawyer, doubted whether, under the clause as it stood, a court would grant an injunction restraining the illegal use of funds until after a strike had been actually begun. He, therefore, suggested that the clause should be so amended as to avoid this difficulty.

A DIVERSION.

It was almost half-past four o'clock when the result of the Bosworth election caused a mild diversion. A Labour member entered with the figures on a piece of paper, which was handed round to the members of the Opposition. There was a mere handful in the House at the moment, and no demonstration took place until Mr. Lloyd George walked into the Chamber and was enthusiastically greeted by the dozen or so of Liberals present. Mr. Short, the Labour member for Wednesbury, was speaking at the time. Referring to the clause, he spoke of it as "the thin edge of the wedge," but the Liberals took the observation as applying to the victory of Sir William Edge at Bosworth, and cheered heartily.

When the debate was continued, Mr. Harney attacked the clause as a cowardly piece of legislation, because, he said, no judge could refuse an injunction if he was told by the Attorney-General that the dispute was not merely one between master and men. The Government could thus, through the Law Officer of the Crown, stop a strike, and pass the responsibility on to the judge. He challenged the Attorney-General to show another instance in legal history where the Law Officer had the power to step in under such circumstances as these.

Sir Douglas Hogg (Attorney-General) replied to his critics by saying that if, as Labour members suggested—a thing that he did not for a moment admit—Clause 1. of the bill would lead to a flood of litigation, it was all the more important that there should be a means of getting an authoritative decision from the High Court, which would guide magistrates in deciding whether a strike was illegal or not. He entirely controverted Mr. Harney's statement that there was no precedent for an Attorney-General's interfering in a matter in which he had no proprietary interest. He quoted several cases, whereupon Mr. Harney interposed the remark that the learned gentleman was very clever and very offensive, but he had not touched the real point raised.

The Attorney-General—It is very easy when the challenge is met to put up a different one. There were Ministerial cheers and cries of "Withdraw" from the Opposition, and Mr. Harney rose and said—"Instead of making supercilious and patronising remarks, will the right hon. gentleman produce any case where the Attorney-General was allowed to come in and put an embargo on the funds of a domestic institution?" The Attorney-General observed that the hon. member was trying to ride off on a different issue, but he was at once greeted with cries of "So are you."

BACK TO BOSWORTH.

Whilst Mr. Ellis was speaking in support of the clause, the Prime Minister entered the House, and was greeted with cries of "Bosworth" and "Three to one" from the Opposition members. Mr. Baldwin, anxious to have a few words with the Chief Whip (Commander Eyres-Monsell), and seeing that there was no vacant place on either side of that gentleman, made his way to the bench behind, and, tapping him on the shoulder, engaged him in conversation. Mr. Wallhead, noticing this, created a laugh by saying "The question is whether Bosworth has driven the Prime Minister to the back benches."

Mr. Mosley said that this clause was only another instance of partiality and class prejudice.

The Attorney-General denied that the clause discriminated as between the workers and the employers. He pointed out that it applied to employers' unions in exactly the same way as to workmen's unions in the case of funds being used in support of an illegal lock-out, and if an individual employer were to use his private funds for the same purpose he would be liable under the common law to three months' imprisonment.

The amendment, on a division, was rejected by 212 votes to 123.

Two Government drafting amendments were agreed to without a division, and the clause was added to the bill by 235 votes to 125.

Further debate on the bill was adjourned until after the holidays.

HAYLEY MORRISS CASE RECALLED.

LONDON COSTUMIER'S ACTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayley Morriss were the defendants in a case at the West London County Court yesterday. The action was brought by Madame Marguerite Dequidt, costumier, of Auriol road, West Kensington, who claimed £11, balance of an account for dresses supplied to Mrs. Hayley Morriss.

The plaintiff stated that Mrs. Morriss ordered three dresses on February 17th this year, another on February 19th, and the fifth on the following day. Mrs. Morriss gave Pippingford Park, Nutley, Sussex, as her address, and said that her husband would pay.

Mr. Alfred John May Whiteway, solicitor, partner in the firm of Philip Conway, Thomas and Company, who acted for Mr. Hayley Morriss, said that the defendants were married in December, 1925, and within a few weeks both of them were sent to prison. Mrs. Hayley Morriss was released in September last, but her husband was still in prison.

At the end of April of this year, said Mr. Whiteway, divorce papers were served upon Mrs. Hayley Morriss by his firm. Mrs. Morriss was living at Crow's Nest Cottage, Pippingford Park, the whole of the expenses of the upkeep of the establishment being paid by Mr. Morriss. Mrs. Morriss was paid an allowance of £6 a week, all she had to do with this being to pay for her dresses and amusement.

In cross-examination, Mr. Whiteway stated that Mr. Hayley Morriss's approximate annual income was perhaps £2,700.

Counsel for Mr. Hayley Morriss said that the defendants are not living together, and never will.

The Judge—Why do you say, never will?

Counsel—Presumably, they never will, as divorce proceedings are pending. Counsel contended that as his client had made an adequate dress allowance to his wife, she had no authority to pledge his credit.

Mr. Whiteway (recalled) said that a notice inserted in the Press in April that Mr. Hayley Morriss would no longer be responsible for his wife's debts was associated with the divorce proceedings.

Judge Sturges said that Mr. Hayley Morriss's solicitors had taken every step to provide Mrs. Hayley Morriss with all that was reasonably necessary. There would be judgment against Mrs. Hayley Morriss, with costs, and judgment for the male defendant, with costs.

OTHER ELECTION MEETINGS.

one, and it was a business proposition, as well as an honest national sentiment, that they should have an united Ireland.

If an intelligent Ulsterman picked up a newspaper and read the way in which the various Free State politicians gave what they professed to be their opinions of each other at present, then the inhabitants of the six counties would surely say: "Thank God I am out of those matters." Therefore, he asked the politicians for the rest of this campaign to moderate their language and try to make the Free State a country which the rest of Ireland would be glad and desirous of entering, both in the national and economic interest. If he was right in thinking that a coalition Government was inevitable, why could not the leaders do the big thing and take the longest step yet made towards a united Ireland? Let them agree to a political truce for five years. During that five years let the Government of the country be drawn from the best men of all parties, and concentrated upon the improvement of its economic position, a careful examination of its means of production and services. The Irishmen of to-day should be Irishmen first and politicians afterwards.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NATIONAL PARTY'S CLAIM.

LARGEST PROPORTION OF RETURNS.

From Our Own Correspondent.
CORK, Wednesday.

"I am confident that of the candidates the National Party is putting forward in this election we will have a larger proportion returned than any other party in the field."

This statement, which was made by Captain Redmond at a largely attended meeting held in Cork to-night, was greeted with prolonged applause. They had been taxed, he proceeded, with not putting a sufficient number of candidates in the field to form a Government, but his reply to that was—and he wished especially to make it in Cork—to ask did Parnell's Party at any time have sufficient numbers to form a Government at Westminster, and did they ever do any good for the people of Ireland? (Cheers.) The Government claimed that if they were not returned to power the Free State Constitution would fall to pieces. Never in the Parliamentary history of the world had such a statement been attributed to any statesman or member of a Government. Even Mr. Lloyd George, who, as they knew, was not by any means a modest man, had never said that to his fellow-countrymen, in spite of all he had done for the Empire during its most critical period of the war.

I can tell you, he added, that the peace and order of the Free State are as safe in the hands of men like John Horgan (the candidate) as in the hands of one-time revolutionaries and Republicans. (Cheers.)

The real issue in that election was not the Treaty or the prospects of revolution in the Free State, but whether they would return the same Government to make the same mistakes. The National Party would be in the Dail as watchdogs over Government expenditure, and to do what they could to put a stop to jobbery and ensure that the Government dealt properly and fairly with all classes.

The candidate, Mr. Horgan, said that they had already canvassed a large portion of the constituency, and from what they could see the Government was the one party of which people seemed not to want to hear anything at all.

CAPTAIN REDMOND AND THE OATH.

There was a large attendance at a National League meeting in Enniscorthy on Tuesday night. Captain Redmond, who was escorted to the Market square by the Wexford ex-Service Men's Band, spoke for over an hour, and the proceedings did not terminate until nearly 11 p.m. Mr. H. A. Lett, Ballynadara, presided.

Captain Redmond said that Mr. Hogan, Minister for Agriculture, stated that the National League were promising the people that they would take the oath out of the Treaty. He (the speaker) utterly and absolutely repudiated that statement. Because he and those with him were against the Government it did not follow that they were against the Constitution. Peace and order were as safe as their Constitution in his hands.

Addressing a meeting of the Election Committee, held last evening at 18 Bachelor's Walk, over which Mr. W. J. Walsh presided, Mr. Coghlan Briscoe, candidate, said that the constituency was a very large one, and steps were being taken in every part of it to see that the people voted. They should remember that it was not the people who voted for the Government at the last election who returned them, but the thousands who stopped away.

FIANNA FAIL.

FUNDS FROM ABROAD.

MR. DE VALERA AND FIANNA FAIL FINANCES.

From Our Correspondent.
TIPPERARY, Wednesday.

Speaking at Tipperary late last night, Mr. de Valera said that Fianna Fail could not have put 95 or 100 candidates in the field if they had not got financial help from those who had been driven out of this country.

"In the past," he said, "you in Ireland have been as generous as you could in giving financial support to uphold the national movement; but at present I believe it would be outside your power to contribute in the same measure the necessary money. Our friends abroad have enabled us to do that, and I have great personal satisfaction in saying that, never at any time when I wanted to do something for the national cause, was I held back for the want of money. Our friends abroad will always be ready to help a real national cause in Ireland. Our opponents, the Free State people, tell you that they can get loans, but that there will be no loans if we get in; but I promise you this—that, without appealing to Wall street or to Throgmorton street, we will be able to get loans if we stand for freedom. Do not be afraid that it is only the Free State people who have the credit to get loans. The credit of those of us who are Irish Republicans is far higher abroad than any credit the Free State could have."

Mr. P. O'Brien, Labour organiser in Tipperary, speaking from the middle of the crowd, took strong exception to references to the Labour Party which had been made earlier in the proceedings by Mr. Sean Gleeson, Thurles.

Mr. de Valera said that it had always been his earnest desire to get Labour and Republicanism to work hand-in-hand, but, somehow or another, any effort Republicanism had made in that direction had been spurned. He saw no reason why that state of affairs should continue. As he had said, Labour and Republicanism were natural allies, and Republicans found it harder to be opposed by Labour than by anybody else.

"ANOTHER ROUND."

THE CONSEQUENCES OF A FIANNA FAIL VICTORY.

From Our Correspondent.
MONAGHAN, Wednesday.

Addressing an enthusiastic meeting in Monaghan Town Hall to-night, Mr. Ernest Blythe, Minister for Finance, said if they wanted to try "another round" with England they knew very well how to vote, because there could be no doubt whatever that if a majority of Fianna Fail candidates was returned at the election conflict with England was inevitable. It would be quite possible for England to act by economic measures, but he did not think Mr. de Valera could restrain the extremists amongst his own followers. If England did not resort to arms Mr. de Valera's followers would do it. If he got the country to-morrow he would not be able to control the wild men. Nothing but humiliation and disastrous defeat would follow in throwing back the Treaty in England's face. If England were to agree to the setting up of a Republic for the twenty-six counties it would only tend to put further away the solution of the boundary. That was why he often said that if they could get a Republic for the twenty-six counties by holding up a finger he would not do it. What Ireland wanted was that the people should turn into civic and economic channels the enthusiasm they had shown in the political sphere. (Prolonged applause.)

Mr. Richard Mulcahy said that if the majority of the people of the six counties desired to join the Free State there was nothing to prevent them doing so.

COUNTY DUBLIN MEETINGS.

Fianna Fail meetings were held last night at Balgriffen, Stepaside, Kilternan, Loughlinstown, Shankill and at Ringsend, Co. Dublin.

At the last-named Mr. J. F. Morris (candidate) said that anything might be proved from the quotation of statistics, but the fact that greater business depression and greater unemployment than ever before existed in the country was obvious to everyone.

The Free State Party had no other remedy than the policy of the last four years, which had brought about the present state of affairs. The Labour Party had an attractive programme, but forgot to mention the all-important point that money had to be raised to carry out any schemes of an ameliorative nature.

Fianna Fail stood for drastic economy and the immediate reduction of the unnecessary Army and gigantic police force to a size commensurate with the needs of the country. When the national income had been saved in that way they would be justified in borrowing capital to start reproductive industries.

REMARKABLE STATEMENT REGARDING OATH.

Speaking at a meeting in Rathdowney in support of Messrs. T. Tynan and P. J. Gorey, Fianna Fail candidates, a Mr. McCann, of Dublin, said that Ramsay Macdonald, when in office, agreed to remove the oath, but O'Higgins did not want it removed, and even as late as two months ago Stanley Baldwin would have removed it, but O'Higgins said "No." He and his party knew very well that if the oath went they would also go. If Fianna Fail were returned with a majority they would go into the Dail and sling Cosgrave, O'Higgins and the rest of them out.

LABOUR PARTY.

KEEPING OUT THE SIX COUNTIES

Speaking at a Labour meeting in Sandymount last night, Mr. William Norton, candidate for County Dublin, said that the Labour Party asked for the suffrages of the people in order that they could bring pressure to bear on any Government elected to deal with the immediate problems of housing, unemployment and industrial stagnation. The Government Party and Deputy Redmond appeared to be holding an election inquiry as to who was responsible for partition, but whether the blame lay with the Government or with the old Irish Nationalist Party was of little consequence now. By its reactionary social legislation the present Government was making sure that the people of the Six Counties would not come into the Free State. Northern Ireland was keeping well ahead in the matter of beneficial social legislation, while in the Free State the Government were taking away the beneficial legislation passed by a foreign Government.

Mr. T. Johnson, another candidate for the county, dealt at length with the Rent Restriction Act, and said that the Labour Party would endeavour to have repealed objectionable clauses in the Act.

A meeting was also held at South Dock street.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S SALARY.

Speaking at Arklow, Mr. Everett, T.D., Labour candidate, said that he stood for Connolly's Republic, and that was the Workers' Republic for the country. (Hear, hear.) If there was one man more responsible than another for the distress and hunger in the country, de Valera and his Party must take their share of the responsibility. They were not prepared to have Tim Healy receiving £104 per day while the workers were in a state of semi-starvation, but they were not in a position at the present time to abolish his job. They would be in a position to reduce his salary if they were given a majority in the Dail. They believed, like Michael Collins, that the Treaty was a stepping-stone to the complete freedom of the country, and it was for that complete freedom the Labour Party were working. The Labour Party was the only party who would unite the country, because they had their party from Belfast to Cork, and they knew no boundary.

MEETING AT BRAY.

Mr. Everett, Labour candidate for County Wicklow, speaking at Bray last night, said that Mr. Blythe had robbed the poor to give to the rich. Who benefited, he asked, by the reduction of 1s. in the pound on income tax but capitalists like John Good and his type? They should not vote for the Government candidate, as every vote for him was a vote of approval for the executions and the Flogging Bill, and the cut in the old-age pensions.

Mr. J. Metcalfe, Co.C., said there would be no coalition between the present Government and the Labour Party while the Government crushed the working classes. Mr. E. Byrne, C.U.D.C., presided, and Mr. E. Doyle also spoke.

FOR THE BLIND AND AGED.

CANDIDATES ADDRESS MEETING AT BLACKROCK.

A meeting was held at Blackrock last night in support of the candidature of Mr. Denis Byrne, one of the candidates going forward in the interests of the blind.

Mr. M. Tobin, who presided, said their appeal was made in the cause of justice and humanity. People asked: What did the blind want? Had they not got institutions to take care of them? The first answer to that was that the existing institutions could not take care of more than 10 per cent. of the blind. What, he asked, was being done for the other 90 per cent.? They could not believe that it was the height of the ambition of the blind to live their lives in institutions. The blind had the right to live their own lives so far as they could like ordinary people. To do that they wanted education. It was impossible to secure a position in life without education, but there was no compulsory education for the blind, and the State did not seem to care about their helpless condition. In 1924 the Government had exercised its economy on the two most helpless classes in the community—the blind and the aged.

Mr. Neary, who is the blind candidate for Dublin City, North, said he had come into the county to appeal to the electors to vote Number one for Mr. Denis Byrne, who had such a fine record as a member of the Pembroke Urban Council. They made no complaint about their blindness, but they would not submit to the poverty that too generally accompanied it. They knew the people had not got hearts of stone, and, therefore, they were looking to the people at this election to put them in a position to remedy their wrongs.

Mr. Denis Byrne said that as a member of the Pensions Committee of the Pembroke Council he had had experience of hundreds of people who had been mercilessly treated by the Local Government Department of the Free State Government, and that experience had suggested to him the idea of coming forward as a candidate in the cause of the blind and the aged. It was not generally known that there had been installed a secret service system of spying upon old people, with a view of finding out their incomes, so that if they received a few shillings a week from some other source their pensions might be reduced by that sum. They had also a system of preventing people getting the old age pension. What chance had the old and the blind against a system which was out to crucify them? They wanted the people to return the blind candidates, who were out for restitution and to turn the tables on the Government. The blind were not antagonistic to any party. They were standing in Dublin City and County constituencies because those two constituencies comprised one-third of the entire population of the Free State, and if these came to the aid of the aged and blind the rest of the country would support them in wiping out the cruel system which at present existed.

DUNLAVIN MUSIC SUCCESSES.

At the Incorporated Society of Musicians examinations held in Dublin on May 27th last, the Misses Nancy Ubanks, Bella Bryan and Mai Daynes, pupils of Mrs. R. P. Murtagh, A.C.V., Dunlavin (née S. Barnes), secured high marks in Grade I. (piano).

SEASIDE CAFE MURDER.

POLICE SEARCH FOR A MAN.

Yesterday morning, at the Chinese Lantern Café on the front at Broadstairs, the dead body of a woman, Mrs. Ramsey, was found with the head terribly battered. Mrs. Ramsey conducted the business, but lived at a private house some distance away with her invalid husband, mother and children.

It is understood that she was going to the theatre on Tuesday night, but she did not return home, and when her mother called at the cafe yesterday morning she found no one there. She called a man who has a business opposite the café, and he, going upstairs, found Mrs. Ramsey's body on the floor of the bedroom.

The only statement made by the police is that death was due to foul play. In the room downstairs there was evidence that supper had been eaten by two people.

The police were yesterday searching for a man of 55 years of age, with grey hair and grey moustache, who walks with a slight limp, and generally with his hands in his pockets.

CLARE FISHERMEN'S GRIEVANCES.

MINISTER'S AIM.

Mr. Greene, Inspector under the Department of Fisheries, held an inquiry at Kilrush Courthouse last Tuesday into the grievances of Clare drift net fishermen.

Mr. M. Killeen, solicitor, said that the Kilrush men's contention was that the nets should be lengthened to at least 250 yards.

Mr. Michael Keane, Corbally, a member of the Board of Conservators, and general secretary to the Clare Fishermen's Association, said that he received no notice from the Board that they had passed a resolution opposing the alteration of the present existing by-laws.

Mr. Hickman, solicitor (for the weir owners and rodmen), asked that the inquiry be adjourned to give his clients a chance of giving evidence.

The Inspector said that they had no evidence as to catches by the different parties. The Minister did not want to regulate the catches for anyone, but was out for the general interest of the whole fishing industry.

The inquiry was then adjourned.

THE SLAUGHTERING OF CATTLE.

BELFAST FAVOURS THE HUMANE KILLER.

The Belfast Corporation has adopted a resolution favouring the use of the humane killer for the slaughtering of cattle. At yesterday's meeting of the City Council a deputation representing the ratepayers of Belfast urged the adoption of the model by-law recommended by the Ministry of Health making the mechanical slaughtering of animals compulsory in the local abattoir.

The deputation, which attended under the auspices of the Ulster Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, consisted of Mr. A. C. Houston and Mr. Geoffrey Garrod, M.A.

Mr. Houston said that it was proved beyond controversy that the humane method of killing in no way affected the quality of the meat, and that the instruments were in every way effective.

The Lord Mayor pointed out that the Markets Committee had already taken action, and had suggested to the Northern Ministry of Home Affairs the desirability of "holding an inquiry into the methods of slaughtering animals for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the use of mechanically operated instruments for the stunning of animals should be made compulsory with the view to the introduction of legislation upon the subject to be made applicable to the whole of Northern Ireland, and not to the city of Belfast alone."

Subsequently, when the minutes of the Markets Committee came up for consideration, the resolution relating to the use of the humane killer was adopted.

BURNING OF KERRY STORES.

COURT STORY OF A SECRET MEETING.

At Tralee District Court, Thomas Flaherty, Sallins, County Kildare; Gerald Murphy, Strand street, Dingle, and John Lynch, Dingle, were charged on remand with conspiracy to burn the co-operative stores at Dingle, and with having maliciously burned the stores during the night of August 3, 1920, with intent to defraud.

William Bowler, one of the guarantors for £500 and £2,000 to the Munster Bank, Dingle, told the Justice of a special meeting of the Committee, which was held in a back room of the stores about two months before they were burned. Thomas Flaherty, one of the accused men, who was chairman of the Committee, said to them: "This is a secret meeting, and on our oaths we will not divulge whatever will take place here today." He added that they were poor devils of farmers, that the place was insolvent, but that he (Flaherty), who brought them into it himself, had a way out of it; that the insurance company was a rich company, and would not feel the pay, and suggested to burn the stores and obtain the insurance. All the members protested against the suggestion.

Other members asked did he (Flaherty) mean to burn the town, and the people in their beds, and he said that they could call the people, and that all of them had their furniture insured, and would be paid for it if it got burned.

Thomas O'Donnell, another guarantor, gave similar evidence, and John Moran, who became manager three and a half weeks before the burning, told how he got three writs within a fortnight.

The accused men were remanded on bail to 29th June next.

NEWRY MAN'S MOTOR BICYCLE.

TAX PAID IN THE FREE STATE.

At Newry Petty Sessions yesterday, Malachi Quinn, Newry, was fined £30, with a recommendation that the amount be reduced, for using a motor bicycle on which duty had not been paid in Northern Ireland.

The evidence showed that the tax on the machine was paid in the Free State, and that the defendant resided in Northern Ireland, and was, therefore, liable.

Mr. J. H. Collins, who defended, explained that Quinn had been prohibited by the Northern Government from residing in the six counties, and he had got this machine in connection with his business in Carlingford. He had been arrested, and when liberated the order prohibiting him residing in Northern Ireland was not enforced.

DRUNK IN CHARGE OF MOTOR CAR.

PORTADOWN MAN'S LICENCE SUSPENDED.

At Newry Petty Sessions yesterday, David McCullough, contractor, of Ballagh, Portadown, was fined £5, and his licence suspended, for being drunk in charge of a motor car at 1.30 a.m. last Monday.

U.S. MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSED FIRM.

(Reuter's Telegrams.)
NEW YORK, Wednesday.

At the opening of the Stock Market to-day, Eastern and South-Western Railroads were bought extensively, these touching new high peaks on the speculative belief that important changes in the railroad map are pending. Pools were active, disregarding the large increase in the volume of brokers' loans, which, however, caused uneasiness in some quarters. Central of New Jersey advanced 15, Laclede Gas 13, Texas and Pacific 7, and New York, Chicago and St. Louis and Delaware, and Hudson 5. Foundation Company fell 9, but many minor specialities rose 3 to 8, testifying to the growth of pool operations, which are seemingly successful in attracting a public following. The market closed strong. Government Bonds easy; Railroad Bonds easy. The day's sales amounted to 2,294,000 shares.

Money on call closed firm at 4½ p.c. bid and 4½ asked. All business during the day was concluded at 4½ p.c. Sterling exchange steady. Silver unchanged at 57c.

FORGED WILL CASE.

PENAL SERVITUDE FOR "JOSEPHINE O'DARE."

Josephine O'Dare, who pleaded guilty at the London March Sessions to charges relating to the uttering of a forged will, purporting to be that of Edward Docker, a Birmingham solicitor, and to cheque frauds, was sentenced at the Old Bailey, London, yesterday afternoon, to four years and six months' penal servitude. With her in the dock were five other prisoners, who had pleaded guilty to, or had been convicted of, offences associated with those she had admitted. They were sentenced as follows:—

William George Davis, twelve years' penal servitude.

Adrian Morton, three years' penal servitude.

Dolita Morton, fifteen months' in the second division.

Frank Miller, five years and six months' penal servitude.

John Noonan, three years and six months' penal servitude.

The Recorder, in passing sentence, described the forgery of the will as a very clever plot, and he was sure that the parties to it were Davis, O'Dare and Adrian Morton. The second part of the case referred to the forging and uttering and stealing of cheques—cheques forged so cleverly that even experienced bank cashiers were deceived by them. Davis had rightly been described as the captain and leader of the gang. It was dangerous that a man like that should be at large.

"A SOCIAL ADVENTURESS."

Turning to Josephine O'Dare, whom he had allowed to be seated, the Recorder said that it was immaterial to him what her real name was. She had a bad upbringing and the misfortune when seventeen to become associated with Davis. "I dare say," he proceeded, "a good deal of your subsequent course of conduct may have been directed by him. I do not say that against him, but I say it in your favour. All the same, it is clear that for some years you have been living as a social adventuress, and amassed a large sum of money by means into which it is better not to inquire."

O'Dare heard the sentence calmly, and walked unassisted from the dock.

Before the sentences were passed a detective inspector from Scotland Yard stated that there had been no previous conviction against O'Dare, whose correct name was Teresa Agnes Skryme. Born at Homer Cottage, Wellington, Hereford, in 1899, she was the youngest of a family of six. Her father was a hard-working farm labourer, and as a girl she attended a Catholic school, but some years ago she, with her mother and her sister Mary Jane, left her father, and went to live at Barton Manor, Hereford, where they took in lodgers, and developed a bad reputation locally.

A THIEVES' KITCHEN.

They came to London in 1922, and the prisoner was associated with convicted thieves, and lived at various addresses in the West End. She went to Mayfair early in 1925, and, while sometimes entertaining in a perfect manner some people of repute in the upper part of the maisonette, the lower part of the establishment was nothing more or less than a thieves' kitchen. She obtained money running into thousands by fraudulent methods. A receiving order was made against her in May, 1926, and she was adjudicated bankrupt a month later. The deficiency was well over £11,000, the only assets being the £15,000 alleged to have been left her in the forged will of the late Mr. Edward Docker, and a mythical sum of £2,000. While in London she had obtained approximately £20,000, in the majority of cases by sharp practices.

The Judge—You say there is no suggestion against Mr. Docker?

The Officer—I do, my lord.

ENTERTAINED ARISTOCRACY.

The Inspector said that while on bail O'Dare used a Daimler car and had as chauffeur a convicted thief. It was only right to say that since she had been in custody she gave the authorities every assistance with the inquiries. The inspector said Davis was 29 and had three previous convictions. At one time he called himself Captain Helier, Lord St. Helier, and Captain Danvers, D.S.O. As a forger, in the true sense of the word, Davis had not an equal in that country, both in perfect penmanship and in deftness of execution.

George Poole, formerly a butler in O'Dare's service, asked by counsel for Davis if, until the time of O'Dare's arrest, he was satisfied that she was a perfectly respectable young woman, replied emphatically "Yes," adding that the house was well conducted and the finest English aristocracy sat at her table.

The inspector said there was no evidence at all that the late Mr. Edward Docker was in any way on good terms with O'Dare. The sum of £1,825 taken from him was a loan taken on a false representation.

The Recorder told the inspector that the thanks of the public were due to him for having rid London of "this nest of hornets." "I hope," he added, "that socially and commercially London will be better for their enforced absence. Your conduct and that of your officers will be reported for the commendation of the commissioner."

Davis was described as a journalist; Morton, who is aged 30, as a director; Miller, over 30, as a clerk, and Noonan, aged 37, as a clerk. Dolita Morton is Adrian Morton's wife. The detective inspector said Morton's real name was Cole.

DIVORCE DECREE FOR LADY CURTIS-BENNETT.

Lady Curtis-Bennett was granted a decree nisi in the Divorce Court, London, yesterday, on the ground of the adultery of her husband, Sir Henry Honywood Curtis-Bennett, at a hotel in Paris. The suit was undefended. An affidavit of evidence by Lady Curtis-Bennett, who is abroad, was read, as was an affidavit of the evidence of French detectives, and of the reception clerk and a chambermaid at the Hotel Westminster, Paris.

CLERGYMAN'S "RECORD."

At Clogher Presbytery the resignation was received of the Rev. Thomas Edwards, of Cavanaleck (Fivemiletown) congregation, who is retiring from the Ministry.

Mr. S. Kyle, one of the deputation from the congregation, said that when Mr. Edwards came to the congregation they had a dilapidated old church building, no Sabbath school, and no evening Service. To-day they had a new church, a large Sabbath school, renovated sexton's residence and manse, and improved church yard grounds. Twenty years ago the stipend was £17, to-day it is £80; and then the congregation was 20, whereas to-day it was on an average 130, with 112 communicants.

Mr. Edwards was appointed convenor of the Commission in charge of the vacancy.

BOYS AND A HANDBALL.

Four boys who were summoned at Dundrum District Court yesterday for playing football on the public road at Churchtown gave the excuse that they were not kicking a football, but a handball.

The Justice (Mr. Reddin)—The question arises: When does a handball become a football? (Laughter.)

In cases where defendants had been previously warned they were each fined 2s., and the other cases were dismissed.

FERMANAGH SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

Mr. Richard Lowry was admitted to the Fermanagh County Hospital last Tuesday night following a shooting accident at Lawnakilla, near Enniskillen. Mr. Lowry had been out shooting, and when crossing a fence his gun went off, wounding him on the right hand.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

[T]ONE AND COMMENT.

[DU]BLIN—SOME FEATURES.

COURTAULDS BUOYANT.

[illegible] few exceptions, the Dublin Stock [m]arkets were again subservient to influences making for temporary stagnation. The Funds scarcely [illegible] Port and Docks 5 per cent. [illegible] ex-div. of 50s. was bid for. Im[illegible] were paid and bid for Bank [illegible] Royals, but Munsters and Pro[illegible] to ease. The Guinness market [illegible] a slight show of strength, and [illegible] but the only business marked was [illegible] at the later market the quotation [illegible] better than 50 7/16, a decline of 1/16 on [illegible] British and Irish Steam Pref. and [illegible] Canal Ord. were both strong markets. [illegible] Ord. passed over par, and quoted 20s. 4½d. There were some fluctuations in the Railway Ord. market. Great Northern Ord. closed bid for at a slight advance, but the Guaranteed marked 60¾, an apparent rise of ¼, though quite recently several points more were for a day or two called, and the Debs. gave way. Great Southern Ord. repeated recent reduced price, but the Pre-Ord. issues were all about ¾ lower. Dunlop Rubber Ord. were a few pence better. Bolands Ord. gave way, and the price quoted still includes the year's 3s. dividend. Imperial Chemical Industries Ord. were bid up to 26s. 7½d. at the close, after opening 26s. 1½d. Special buoyancy developed for Courtaulds, and Bradford Dyers Ord. rallied strongly in answer to the other side. Tobaccos were inclined to ease. Merchants Warehouse Shares again fetched 30s. 6d. for a small lot, but did not offer in the Ordinary way.

LONDON VERY QUIET.

HOME RAILS NEGLECTED.

Epsom attractions diverted the attention of members and public alike yesterday, and as a consequence little interest was shown in the Stock Markets. The volume of business transacted remained on a small scale, but a satisfactory tone was manifest, and in a few directions a firmer tendency developed. Although business was small, gilt-edged securities were, if anything, inclined to harden, and War Loan Fives closed better, while elsewhere quotations were much the same as before. A generally steady tone ruled in Foreign Government Stocks, and, with the exception of Chinese 5 p.c. 1912, which fell back rather sharply, final values were practically unaltered. Home Rails were neglected, but a steady to firm tone ruled, and there also little change was registered. The traffic returns show the following increases over 1926:—Midland £412,000, L.N.E. £380,000, Great Western £179,000, and Southern £30,000. A slightly easier tone was [illegible] among the leading Argentine Rail[ways] and little movement was shown. [illegible] Grand Trunks and others were [illegible] Cordoba Central 2nd Prefs. [illegible] Dominion, [illegible] Tobaccos were generally remained. [illegible] Textiles several of the [illegible] shade. Dunlops stiffened, [illegible] firmer tendency. [illegible] going on in Rubbers, and [illegible] were mostly against holders. [illegible] somewhat irregular, but mostly unaltered. Tin ad[vanced] £291 17s. 6d. per ton, but the share market was steady. Dealings commenced in Kampai Malaya at 16s. 6d.

LONDON CHANGES.

There was not much business passing in the gilt-edged section yesterday, but a slightly firmer tendency was manifest. Actual price movements, however, were few and far between, prices, as a rule, being content to repeat overnight levels. War Loan Fives, however, were an exception, and here an advance of ⅛ was scored to 100⅛.

There was also very little movement recorded in Foreign Government Stocks. French Loans and Reconstruction Loans were all the same as before, while Brazilians, Argentines, Japanese and Mexicans also remained at Tuesday's values. Peruvian Corporation Ord., however, advanced to 12¼, or ¼ better, but Chinese 5 p.c. 1912 fell back rather sharply, the final quotation of 40½ showing a decline of 1½ on the day.

RAILS UNALTERED.

A quiet and steady tone characterised dealings in Home Rails, and, despite the satisfactory traffic returns, no material alteration was recorded in share values. All the leaders finished without alteration, while the Pref. issues were also unchanged. Dealings commenced in the Southern New 5 p.c. Guaranteed Pref. Stock, and the price was ¼ prem.

A quiet and steady tone prevailed in Colonial and Foreign Rails, and at the end of business quotations were much the same as before. "Canpacs" repeated 187 x.d., and Grand Trunks, Mexicans and Argentines were all unaltered on the day. "Leos" repeated their higher value of the previous day, as did San Paulo Ord. and Entre Rios Ord.; but Cordoba Central 2nd Pref. eased the turn to 58½, or ½ lower.

RUBBER SHARES DULL.

There was again very little business transacted in the Rubber share market yesterday, while a dull tone prevailed. Actual price movements were not numerous, but, while in a couple or so instances firmer values were returned, the vast majority of alterations were in the downward direction, and a quiet tone ruled in the commodity market. Spot and June sold 1s. 7⅞d., July to September 1s. 8⅛d., and October to December 1s. 8⅞d. per pound. In the share market Highlands went back rather sharply to 55s., or 1s. 10½d. lower, while General Ceylon at 51s. were 10½d. lower. Kuala Lumpur and Malacca were each 1s. 3d. easier, and Kuala Muda dropped 6d. to 51s. 3d., while Tandjong Malim at 42s. 6d. were 1s. 6d. down on the day. Serdang Central were another dull spot, and here a depreciation of 1s. 3d. was marked to 40s. x.d. Sendayan, on the other hand, were marked 1s. 3d. better to 47s. 6d., while Sungei Choh at 30s. were also 1s. 3d. firmer.

OIL SHARES IDLE.

Idle conditions characterised the Oil Share market yesterday, the attendance of members being small, the absence of many being due to the counter attractions of Epsom, while those present evinced more interest in the Derby than in share dealing. In addition, public interest was almost negligible. The only feature of interest was a sharp fall in Lobitos, the shares being offered on fears that the distribution for the past year may be at a lower rate than for 1925. Apart from the fall in Lobitos, price movements were unimportant. Shells, in which business was on an extremely small scale, fluctuated within narrow limits, and finished without alteration at 4 13/16, the bearer shares remaining at 4⅞. The few transactions put through in Royal Dutch were without influence on the price of the shares, which closed at 31¼. Anglo-Americans were steady at 3 13/16. Anglo-Persians, which were firm in the early hours at 4½, weakened later to 4 7/16, and closed with a loss of 1/16 at 4 13/16. Favourably influenced by the showing made by the annual report, Burmahs strengthened at one time to 6, but demand was small, and the shares receded to the overnight's level of 5 13/16. Mexican Eagles remained dull; the Ord. touched 15s. 7½d., and finally registered a small loss at 15s. 9d., and the 8 p.c. Participating Prefs. also eased to 15s. 9d., but the 7 p.c. First Prefs. remained steady at 17s. Very little attention was devoted to Venezuelans. V.O.C. Holdings hardened at one time to 3⅞, but they left off without alteration at 3 13/16, and the Prefs. remained at 3 7/16. In other directions, the feature was the sharp fall in Lobitos, the shares finishing with a decline of 3/16 at 5 13/16.

SMALL BUSINESS IN INDUSTRIALS.

The Stock Exchange is usually dull on Derby day, and yesterday proved no exception to the rule, as far as the Industrial market was concerned. Some activity continued among recent features, but as a rule business was of quite small dimensions. Opening at 60, American Celanese fell away to 58½, but recovered smartly on New York support to, close 4 better at 61; Canadian Celanese added ½ to 14. British Celanese were inquired for, both Ord. and Pref. advancing 10½d. Courtaulds were well in the picture again with an advance of 3/16 to 6⅞, but Snias sagged to 44s. 6d. Bradford Dyers, after being bid for at 50s. 6d., eased to 49s. 3d. at the close. Coal, Steel and Engineering shares were generally easier, Ruston and Hornsby being offered down to 9s. 9d. on the report and passing of the dividend. Consetts lost a further 6d. to 13s. 9d. on the dividend disappointment. Cairn Lines provided the feature in the Shipping group, advancing 2s. 6d. to 22s. bid, on amalgamation talk; P. and O. Def. were harder at 295, but Royal Mails inclined to ease at 81.

Electrical Equipments were featureless, but in Telegraphs and Telephones Marconi Wireless rose on good buying to 20s. 6d., with Marconi Canadians a shade better at 4s. 4½d. Anglo-American Def. closed ¼ higher at 24¼, and Easterns were marked 1 higher at 182½. Movements in Breweries were trifling. Watney Def. were better at 273½, but losses of 1/16 were registered by Ashbys at 2⅛, Bass at 3 7/16, and Distillers at 2 11/16. In Tobaccos, Albert Baker at 35s. and Godfrey Phillips at 3⅞ were both 1s. 3d. better. "Imps" shed the turn to 101s. 4½d., as did "Bats" to 102s. 3d., but Copes gave way a full ⅛ to 2⅜ on the poor report. Land Shares, apart from a fall of 1s. 3d. in Duffs to 21s. 6d., were neglected. Cements were against holders to the extent of a few pence. In the Traction group Brazilians reacted on profit-taking to 156, a loss of 3½, but inquiry was made for Shawinigans, which closed 3 higher at 97½; Sidros lost ½ to 15½. Newspapers were the turn harder. Associated Defd. picking up 1/16 to 6⅛, "Mirrors" a like amount to 6⅝; "Pictorials" were steady at 4 1/16, as were Inveresks at 5 7/16. Among Stores and Drapery Shares, Swears and Wells were 1s. better at 26s.; while in the Motor Car and 'Bus section small improvements were shown by Humbers at 2, Rovers at 8s. 6d., and National Omnibus at 28s. 6d. Dennis Bros., however, declined 1/16 to 6⅜.

In the Miscellaneous section Columbia Graphophones continued strong, and closed 3s. 6d. to the good at 82s. 3d. Gramophones also were a good spot, adding 1s. 6d. to 90s. 3d. Imperial Chemicals had good business and closed at a slight improvement, the Ord. at 24s. 7½d., the Pref. at 26s. 6d., and the Defd. at 7s. 6d. The Match group was supported, Bryant and Mays being 52s. 6d. bid and Kreuger and Toll steady at 34 ex dividend. Swedish "A" rose 1/16 to 15⅛, while the "B's" hardened to 15 13/16. Elsewhere Nelson Bros. improved 1/16 to 3⅛. Dunlops and Lever 7 p.c. Prefs. were the turn harder at 34s. 10½d. and 20s. 9d., respectively. British Oilcakes shed 3d. to 27s., and Vine Products were again a good market. Among recent issues, Horden Collieries Debs. remained at par, and Waller and Hartley 1s. Ord. improved a trifle to 2s. 9d. County of London Electric Debs. eased ⅛ to 1⅞ prem.

LONDON MINING MARKET STAGNANT.

SMALL PRICE MOVEMENTS.

Epsom proved a greater attraction than the Stock Exchange yesterday. The attendance of members was very thin, and, so far as the volume of trading was concerned, the House might, as one dealer suggested, as well have been closed. There was, of course, the usual trickle of investment business in progress, but in the speculative departments more interest was evinced in horses and sweepstakes than in quotations. In some sections hardly an attempt was made to form a market, and Mines generally had a neglected appearance. Thanks to the reopening of the Johannesburg Exchange and the receipt of a few Paris inquiries, certain Kaffir favourites were inclined to harden, but the lead given by those centres was followed in but half-hearted fashion here, and the movements in prices were again of a trifling character. Amalgamated Mining Trust improved, and of the other Finance shares, Union Corporation, Anglo-American, "Johnnies" and "Generals" were all well maintained. Several of the Far Easterns were in demand, and finished higher, though it needed but a modest amount of buying to lift quotations; indeed, in some cases dealers were chary of marking prices, except in small parcels. A good deal of interest still centred on Platinum issues, and under the lead of Lydenburg Platinum several shares improved. Modder East, East Rand and West Rand were on offer, and fell away, but Sub Nigel left off firm at the overnight's level. Rhodesians were not much in evidence, and Chartered moved idly within narrow limits, closing without alteration. "Tanks" and "Zams" were offered on Continental account, and both lost the turn. In the Diamond section a modest demand for De Beers Defd. added a half-crown to the price, but Consolidated Diamonds were dull. The monthly tin statistics show an increase in the visible supplies of 1,367 tons to 14,326 tons, but the price was 6s. 3d. harder at £291 17s. 6d. per ton. The share market, however, remained quiet and uninteresting. Tin Selection Trust, London Tin, Northern Tavoy, and some other members of the Anglo-Oriental group were subject to profit-taking, but Tronoh, Kamunting, Pengkalen and Idris were well maintained. There was some good buying of Tintos on both Paris and home account, and the price rose sharply. Elsewhere San Francisco hardened on the improvement in the price of lead, and Chemical and Metallurgical were wanted in connection with the rumoured new extraction process and on the approaching completion of the plant at Runcorn, where fuel and salt, which are largely used in the process, can be cheaply obtained. Closing prices:—

The directors propose that 60,000 new Preference shares of £1 each be credited as fully paid up by a transfer of £60,000 from reserve, and that these shares be distributed to Ordinary shareholders as a scrip bonus in the proportion of two for one Ordinary share of £10 each. Each existing Preference share is of £10 denomination, quoted at £34, and on that basis the two new £1 Preference shares would be worth about 33/-. In addition, Ordinary shareholders are to be given the right to take up two new Ordinary shares of £1 each at the price of 30/- per share, the proportion in this case also being two new for one old Ordinary share of £10. These £10 shares stand at £325, on which basis the two new £1 shares would be worth 46/9 each, against the 30/- at which they will be offered to shareholders. The total value of the bonus is approximately equivalent to £3 5/- per Ordinary share.

UNITED FRUIT COMPANY.—Quarterly dividend of 1 dollar per share.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS IN FAIR DEMAND.

DISCOUNT RATES EASIER.

With the turn of the month conditions automatically became easier in Lombard street yesterday, owing to the release of funds previously called in and the payment of the interest on the 5 p.c. War Loan and other dividends, the total disbursements amounting to some £61,000,000. This money, however, did not immediately come upon the market, and it was found necessary to renew a part of the small sum falling due at the Bank. Loans were in fair demand at 3½ p.c., though occasionally borrowers paid up to 4 p.c. Renewals for a day or a week were made at 3½ p.c. The discount market was slightly easier in sympathy with money, but, after being 4½-4⅜ p.c. in the morning, the rate for commercial bills hardened to 4⅜ p.c. for all dates. The new Treasuries also changed hands round that figure.

The Bank of England announced the release of 500,000 sovereigns set aside on account of South Africa, the sale of bar gold valued at £63,000, and the export of 52,000 sovereigns to India. The net efflux for the week is £438,000. The spot price of silver remained at 26⅛d., while forward recovered 1/16d. to 26 1/16d. per oz. The market was quiet. Gold remained at 84s. 11½d. per fine oz.

Once again there was no alteration in the American exchange, but Montreal moved 1/32 more favourably to us, closing at 4.85 3/32. Alterations in the South American rates were trifling. In the European list Italian lire were a little cheaper at 88.35, and, to a slight extent, Belgium, Switzerland, Spain and Austria moved in our favour. The currencies of Hungary, Holland and Greece showed some appreciation.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

POST OFFICE BUILDINGS.

DUBLIN AUCTIONEERS' ACTION DISMISSED.

(BEFORE JUDGE PIGOT.)

A case was heard in which Messrs. Corrigan and Company, auctioneers, Grafton street, Dublin, claimed from William H. Clarke, building contractor, Richmond avenue, Fairview, £75 for work done as auctioneers in connection with negotiations for the sale of the premises, 3 Post Office Buildings, Henry street, between July and October, 1926.

It appeared that the plaintiffs, acting at the request of the defendant, sought to bring about a sale, and got the Donegal Tweed Company, who, they said, were willing to purchase. Some delay, however, took place in obtaining the consent of the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs.

On behalf of the defendant it was stated that his solicitor had obtained similar consents from the Minister in respect of sales of other premises, and he knew that the consent in the present case would be obtained in due time, but that the solicitors for the proposed purchasers of the premises now in question required it as an essential condition for the completion of the contract.

The defendant, it appeared, in order not to have to go on paying a high head rent, had to break off the negotiations, and, in fact, in a sale which had since taken place to another purchaser, the consent of the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs was not obtained for a month after the completion of the sale.

Judge Pigot dismissed the action.

Mr. Herbert Hare (instructed by Messrs. O'Neill and Collins) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. C. S. Campbell (instructed by Messrs. Stritch and Stritch) for the defendant.

BURTONPORT HARBOUR.

By 19 votes to 10 the Donegal County Council decided to allocate £2,300 to the improvement of Burtonport Harbour on the condition that the office of Public Works expend £8,500 on the harbour. This the office of Public Works has agreed to do, so that there will be a total of £10,800 expended on the harbour.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

ADJUDGED BANKRUPT'S SHARES.

CHARGE AGAINST TWO ACCOUNTANTS.

(BEFORE MR. CUSSEN.)

Thomas J. Buckley, accountant, Dame street, and James Lothian, accountant, Exchequer street, were summoned to show cause why informations should not be taken against them for having, as the summons alleged, conspired with P. J. Weymes, an adjudged bankrupt, to conceal shares which the latter had in the Nigerian Base Metals Corporation, Ltd., and in the Rubber Plantation Investment Trust from the Bankruptcy Court and the Official Assignee, Mr. A. G. Hollinshead.

Mr. Cecil Lavery (instructed by Mr. Clarke, State Solicitor's Department) prosecuted; Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, appeared for Buckley; and Mr. L. O'Doherty (instructed by Mr. John Moran) for Lothian.

Mr. Hollinshead was examined at length as to the proceedings in the Bankruptcy Court.

Mr. Hart, stockbroker, in the course of his evidence, stated that Buckley came to him to dispose of some shares in the companies named on behalf of Weymes. He requested an authority from Weymes for the sale of the shares, and Buckley gave it to him. When he discovered that he was dealing with the estate of a bankrupt he communicated with the Official Assignee and put him in possession of the facts. To this Buckley objected, and subsequently he abused the witness for having done so. The witness paid over the price which he got for the Nigerian Base Metal shares to Mr. Hollinshead.

The case was adjourned until Friday at 12.30 o'clock.

SPIRITS FOR BALLINASLOE.

FURTHER REMAND IN THEFT CONSPIRACY CHARGE.

William Sheehy, spirit grocer, Pimlico; William Dwan, his assistant, and James Connell, provision merchant, Blackhall place, were again before the Court on the charge of conspiring to commit larceny, in pursuance of which they were alleged to have taken from railway wagons quantities of whiskey, wine, tobacco, cigarettes and drapery goods, to the value of about £300, the property of the Great Southern Railways Company.

Evidence having been given by a number of traders from Ballinasloe to the effect that they had ordered goods similar to those which had been missed from the railway wagons from city firms within the past two months, but had not received them,

The Justices refused informations in the case of Dwan, who was discharged from custody; and Sheehy and Connell were further remanded on bail.

UNLAWFUL POSSESSION.

A sentence of three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, was imposed on Denis Flynn, aged about 45 years, of no fixed residence, for having illegally in his possession a gold-mounted fountain pen, valued at 25s., the property of Mr. E. W. Eller, Palace Gardens, Kensington, London. Flynn pawned the pen, on which the owner's initials were engraved, for 6s.

Detective-Sergeant Gibney, who had charge of the case, was complimented by the District Justice for his exertions in bringing the culprit to justice.

THE PHARMACY LAWS.

FINES ON TWO SUMMONSES.

(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

The Pharmaceutical Society of Ireland brought a summons against J. Brady and Co., Ltd., 76 Upper Leeson street, for employing in a shop lawfully kept open for dispensing and compounding medical prescriptions an assistant or manager who was not a duly qualified pharmaceutical chemist or licentiate apothecary, contrary to Section 17 of the Pharmacy Act (Ireland), 1875, and the Amendment Act, 1890.

There was a second summons for selling poisons in the shop, where an assistant or manager was not a duly registered chemist and druggist, a registered druggist, a pharmaceutical chemist or a licentiate apothecary.

Mr. W. C. Meeke, solicitor, who appeared for the complainants, said that Miss Brady (the defendant), who was the proprietress of the shop, was not a qualified chemist, and, though she had made some attempts to become qualified, she, unfortunately, did not succeed. She employed an assistant who was a certified druggist's assistant, and in the evening a qualified chemist came and dispensed prescriptions. The Society looked upon this as a very serious offence.

Mr. Brown (Messrs. Brown and McCann), for the defendant, pleaded guilty, and said that Miss Brady believed that she had been acting within the law, and as soon as she was informed that she was not she employed a qualified chemist to manage the shop. She thought it was sufficient to employ a qualified chemist for a portion of the day.

The defendant was fined £1 and £5 costs in each case, the Justice remarking that it was most essential to enforce the law and so protect the people.

COAL HAWKER'S WEIGHTS.

William Keogh, Montague place, coal hawker, was fined £2 for using scales and weights in the weighing of coal which were unjust, and an order for the forfeiture of the scales and weights was made.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

The second of the series of new Methodist churches which are being built in connection with the Northern Ireland Forward Movement has just been completed and dedicated to the worship of God. The church, which cost nearly £11,000, is situated on the Cregagh road, a rapidly developing district of the County Down side of Belfast. The Rev. E. B. Cullen, President of the Methodist Church in Ireland, preached the dedicatory sermon.

The Rev. C. A. Cronhelm, B.A., a well-known minister of the Methodist Church, has just passed to his reward. For thirty-three years Mr. Cronhelm rendered devoted service in the full work of the ministry, failing health compelling his retirement in 1920. His wife predeceased him four years ago. One of his sons is in medical practice in Dublin.

On the kind invitation of a number of laymen, the following Irish ministers are spending this week at missionary conferences in Swanwick, in Derbyshire:—The Revs. F. Bennett, B.A. (Wexford); John Bertenshaw (Roscrea), R. H. Gallagher, B.A. (Portadown); W. W. Hutchinson (Dublin), H. H. Cornish (Dublin), Ernest Shaw (Omagh), Edward Whittaker (Enniskillen), and W. J. Wilson (Bangor).

Mr. Robert Morgan, of Dublin, lectured recently to a large audience in the McArthur Hall, Enniskillen, on "The Romance of the Hymn-book." Musical illustrations were rendered at intervals by a large choir.

In connection with the effort to unite in one the three Methodist Churches of Great Britain a series of important Committees has met in London—first those of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, then a joint meeting of the Committees of the three Churches, and again the Wesleyan Committees. The Primitive Methodist Church and the United Methodist Church are almost unanimously in favour of union, but there is a minority in the Wesleyan Methodist Church which is resisting the movement for union by every means in its power. The voting at all the Committees was overwhelmingly in favour of procuring an Enabling Act whereby union could be effected. In order, if possible, to placate the minority, the Wesleyan Church has pledged itself not to proceed with the Enabling Bill unless there is a seventy-five per cent. majority of both the Representative and Pastoral Sessions of the Conference.

Those who represented Irish Methodism at these Committees were the Revs. James M. Alley, W. R. Budd, J. W. R. Campbell, M.A.; W. Corrigan, and Mr. Richard W. Booth.

BELFAST MONTHLY FAIR.

Belfast monthly fair was held yesterday in fine weather in the Corporation Cattle Market, Oxford street. There was a good average supply of cattle on offer, but trade was rather slow at slightly easier prices. The live pig and calf market was well stocked, and good prices were obtained. The horse fair was held in the May's Market, where there was a fair show of useful animals, which met a quick trade. The following are the quotations:—First-class springers and milch cows from £24 10/- to £28, second-class ditto £20 to £23 10/-, third-class ditto £18 to £19 10/-; two-year-old bullocks and heifers £15 to £16 10/-, six-quarter-old ditto £12 to £13 15/-, one year-old ditto £10 to £11 10/-; dry cows and strippers £9 to £14; store pigs £3 10/- to £5; suckers, per pair, £4 to £5 15/-; young calves £3 to £5; horses £10 to £30.

MUNICIPAL 'BUSES FOR BELFAST.

SUGGESTED EXPRESS SERVICE.

The manager of the Belfast Corporation tramway system recommends that the Corporation should purchase a fleet of 'buses which should operate within a radius of fifteen or twenty miles outside the city. He says that privately owned 'buses have facilities for traversing the city streets, and he thinks, therefore, that the municipal authorities of Belfast should have similar facilities for operating outside the city.

He points out that on several routes, such as Glengormley, Dundonald, Cregagh and Andersonstown, the existing tram track is laid beyond the city boundary. The Corporation at present have no power to link such terminal points outside the city if they desired to develop cross-traffic. He further points out that several city-owned institutions are outside the boundary, such as Purdysburn, Graymount and other places.

To obtain these powers a special bill would have to be promoted, and he recommends that this step should be taken.

AN EXPRESS SERVICE.

In another section of his report Mr. Carlisle recommends the institution of an express 'bus service on several of the longer routes, these to stop only at a few given stages, and a uniform through fare to be charged higher than the present fare for the same distance. He states that such a service would mean a saving of eight minutes between the city centre and Gray's lane, seven minutes between the city centre and Knock, and seven minutes between the city centre and Balmoral. He recommends the institution of such a service on a number of the leading roads.

The report is under consideration.

CLOGHER VALLEY RAILWAY.

A COMMITTEE OF INQUIRY.

The Clogher Valley Railway, which in times past played its part in the development of the Valley, has been hit since the war by the high wages standards of the present day and by the general increase in competitive conditions. Opinion is divided in the Valley as to whether the railway, which is becoming an increasing liability on certain sections of the ratepayers, should be given further support in funds for modernisation and development or should close down altogether.

To investigate this matter a special committee of inquiry has been set up, with the following terms of reference:—

"To inquire into the affairs of the Clogher Valley Railway Company, Limited, and the administration and working of the undertaking; to report whether, and under what terms and conditions, the railway should continue working, or, in the alternative, what arrangements should be made to close down the railway and to liquidate the baronial guarantee; and also to ascertain if, and what, alternative transport facilities would then be required in the districts concerned."

The personnel of the Committee is as follows:—Government representative: Mr. Walter Abbott, O.B.E. (Northern Ministry of Commerce); County Tyrone representative: Mr. Arthur H. Coote, J.P.; County Fermanagh representative: Mr. H. Kirkpatrick, J.P.

Expert assistance will, moreover, be given to the Committee by Mr. Robert Killen, C.B.E., of Glasgow, general superintendent of the Northern Division of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company.

It is expected that the Committee will commence its investigations at an early date, and, in the meantime, it is prepared to receive representations from any public authorities, companies, bodies, or persons interested in the railway and in questions of transport in the Clogher Valley district.

RATHMINES TRADERS' REQUIREMENTS.

COUNCIL'S CO-OPERATION.

Replying to a deputation from the Rathmines Traders' Association, which waited on the Urban District Council at the Town Hall yesterday, the Chairman (Sir Simon Maddock) expressed what he believed to be the general desire of the members of the Council to co-operate with such an association for any purpose that would benefit the traders or residents of the township. The four subjects upon which the deputation desired to speak, he said, formed part of the active policy of the Council, and were being attended to. Plans had been prepared for the widening of Upper Rathmines, and, at the request of the Minister for Local Government, the concreting of Parnell road and the widening of Harold's Cross road had been proceeded with instead as an alternative scheme. It was hoped, on the first favourable occasion, to give effect to the policy of the Council with regard to the widening of Upper Rathmines.

'BUS AND POSTAL SERVICES.

The widening of Classon Bridge was being undertaken by the County Council at a cost of about £5,000, and the Government had consented to contribute £1,500 towards the project. The plans could be inspected at the County Council's office.

The omnibus services and routes were controlled by the Government, and from time to time the Council had conveyed their recommendations as to proposed routes. The Council would, however, be glad of information as to the efforts of the Association with regard to the establishment of further postal facilities, as any effort in the direction of affording greater facilities would have the full support of the Council.

CONTRACTS.

The question of placing contracts with local traders had been a settled policy, whenever possible, of the Council for many years; but it should be borne in mind that the tenders for work were usually invited by advertisement in the public Press, and also that the Government had compiled a list of firms with goods and prices, and from this list local authorities must make their selection.

Mr. J. Rooney, on behalf of the deputation, stated that a deputation had been very favourably received by the Secretary to the Post Office last Tuesday, and they had been given to understand that the matter was under consideration.

A resolution was passed tendering deepest sympathy to the relatives of the late Canon Hatton, who was associated with the Council's Library Committee and School Attendance Committee for many years.

CHURCH MUSIC.

Speaking at a luncheon given to the members of the Clogher Presbytery, in Enniskillen, a Rev. A. J. [illegible]ins, Enniskillen, referred to one question put that day: What steps had they taken to provide effective church praise? Their reply was choir practices. But the members of the congregation did not attend these. Why should they not have occasionally a praise Service, and an address, instead of the usual sermon, delivered by someone qualified to speak on church music?

MIDLETON SHOW.

GREATLY IMPROVED CATTLE.

LARGE ENTRIES.

FROM OUR AGRICULTURAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Wednesday.

Through the efforts of the East Cork Branch of the Irish Dairy Shorthorn Breeders' Society, under the direction of Messrs. Ryan, McLoughlin and O'Donovan, a new lease of life has been given to the cattle section of Midleton Agricultural Show, which was held here to-day. Entries in this department were a hundred per cent. better than last year, while in point of quality they reached a standard never previously attained at this fixture. Members of the Dairy Shorthorn Breeders' Society and Cow Testing Association combined in putting forward their best cows and bulls. These were equal to some of the best at Ballsbridge, and competition was exceptionally keen. This is only to be expected in a district where dairy shorthorn bulls were recently introduced at 75, 100, 170 and 180 guineas.

In addition to a good display of shorthorn dairy cows, there was also in evidence a fine lot of Friesians. One of these in a twelve-hour test gave 44lb. of milk, so that her approximate yield for 24 hours would be over eight gallons. Young stock hardly showed the same level of merit as their elders, but with the introduction of good bulls this defect is certain to disappear. There was also, as might be expected in this horse-breeding district, a fine muster of horses, and three-year-olds were exceptionally good. There was also a promising lot of two-year-olds and yearlings. Made hunters were a strong section, the whole section being one of considerable merit. All the classes for poultry filled well, and there was a particularly good display of eggs and chickens. In the dog section, Alsatians were an outstanding feature.

Including the jumping competitions, which took place in the afternoon, there were over 500 entries, the ordinary competitive classes accounting for 350, while the actual number of dogs forward was 142, some of these competing in two or three classes. The weather was fine, and there was a large attendance. The secretarial and stewarding arrangements were carried out in a most efficient manner. In this connection a word of praise is due to the Ladies' Committee that looked after the catering arrangements.

THE JUDGES.

The judges were:—Horses — Major W. Gibson, Cashel; W. P. Hanley, Thurles; A. Hunt, Kilmacthomas, and J. C. Higgins, Clonmel. Cattle—M. J. Cronin, Banteer, and T. J. O'Sullivan, Cloughduv. Sheep and swine—W. Hamilton, Lismore, and Charles Watt, Crookstown. Poultry—Miss M. Slattery, Mallow.

THE HORSES.

The only thoroughbred stallion forward was Mr. Terry O'Brien's Political, by Joe Chamberlain, which was given first prize.

For weight-carrying hunters 5 years and upwards, Mr. R. T. Forrest led with the chestnut gelding, Uncle Bill, by Strong Drink. Mr. D. Sheedy's bay mare, Carrigdhoun, by Kentford II., was second, and Mrs. M. Barry's five-year-old chestnut gelding, Old Times, by Ben Alder, third.

For hunters, to carry from 12st. 7lb. to 14st., Miss D. Musgrave's gelding, Nigger Brown, was first out of seventeen. Eamon Rohan's well-knit chestnut mare by Cockhorse was second, and John Barry's chestnut gelding by Canon's Pride third.

Out of nine four-year-olds, to carry from 12st. 7lb. upwards, James Barry's brown gelding by Reynard was first, E. Rohan's Son of Gold, by King's Ransom, second, and William Kelly's Danny, by Waveless Boy; Thomas Dineen's chestnut filly by Canon's Pride was second, and D. W. Garde's gelding by Stingo third.

In the two-year-old class, J. H. Smith was first with the brown gelding, Knockane, by Munster King; Miss Moloney second with a brown colt by Marint, and third with a chestnut.

In the hunter yearling class, E. Stack led with the bay Alder; William Lawson was second with Minstrel Boy, and Terry O'Brien third with Eves.

In the class for hunter brood mares, Thomas Dineen's chestnut, by Reynard, with foal at foot by Canon's Pride, was first; Denis O'Shea's grey Molly second, and H. J. Smyth's bay third.

ROCKWELL COLLEGE.

THE UNION'S PROGRESS.

Satisfactory progress, since its inauguration a year ago, was reported at the annual meeting of the Rockwell College Union yesterday, the secretary's report, which, with the treasurer's report was adopted unanimously, stating that every Rockwell man was proud of his alma mater.

The Right Rev. Monsignor Innocent Ryan, P.P., Dean of Cashel, President of the Union, who offered to give up the chair but was unanimously re-elected, said that the Union had come into existence at an opportune time, and he hoped that it always would play its part for the advancement of the college and for the advancement of the country. He appealed for co-operation among the members to promote the ideals which the Union had at heart.

Mr. E. de Valera, the outgoing vice-president, was proposed and seconded for re-election, and was declared unanimously chosen for that office.

Mr. J. J. Sewell, M.P.S.I., Killarney, and the Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Fairview, Dublin, were unanimously elected hon. secretaries, and Mr. F. T. Byrne was re-elected hon. treasurer.

BELFAST TRAMWAYS.

REDUCTION OF FARES.

Councillor Megahey, Chairman of the Belfast Tramways Committee, made an important statement when moving the adoption of the minutes of the Committee at yesterday's meeting of the City Council. He said that the total revenue amounted to £584,797 for the year ended 31st March last, as compared with £607,689, or a decrease of £22,892. This was accounted for by bad trade conditions experienced during the year, and the effect of the coal strike, which had held up the delivery of materials to their principal industry. The buses were also having an influence on terminal passengers.

The working profit amounted to £179,802, and, after providing £139,727 for loan charges, £14,294 for income tax and other net revenue charges, and £25,000 for the annual contribution to depreciation fund, there was a surplus of £5,780 on the year's working. He might mention that during the year an additional expenditure of £7,874 was incurred by reason of the payment of ex-Service men's claims under the Local Government (War Service Payments) Act (Northern Ireland), 1926.

The Committee had been giving consideration to fares and stages, and they had adopted a scheme drawn up by the general manager. This scheme was principally to overcome 'bus competition from the various termini, and with the view of popularising Bellevue and Hazelwood. The single fare to Bellevue would now be 3d. instead of 4d., with a return fare of 5d. A special concession had been made with regard to children's fares, all penny stages being a halfpenny and all other stages one penny, which meant that one penny was the maximum fare for a child under 14 years of age.

WHIT SUNDAY AT GLENGARRIFF.

Among the attractions of the coming Whitsuntide one of the most pleasant will be the tea dance and tennis party, which will be held on Illaculin Island, Glengarriff, on the afternoon of June 5th next. This beautiful island is being availed of for the occasion by the kind permission of Mrs. Annan Bryce, and a motor boat service will be available from the Eccles Hotel pier. The proceeds will be given in aid of the Jubilee Nurse Fund of Glengarriff.

MOTORIST'S MISTAKE.

The defendant, offering the excuse that he had mistaken the Guard's signal and driven on instead of stopping, a charge against Dr. Pearson, Lower Baggot street, Dublin, of driving a motor car to the danger of the public at Dundrum on the 5th April last was dismissed at Dundrum District Court yesterday, while a fine of 2s. 6d. was imposed for failing to stop the car.

Guard Golden said that he narrowly escaped being run down.

LAW REPORTS.

CARGO OF COAL CASE.

EVIDENCE CONCLUDED.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

The concluding stages were reached in the hearing of the action brought by Tedcastle, McCormick and Company, coal merchants and importers, Dublin, against William Robertson, shipowner, 94 Brown's Buildings, Exchange, Liverpool, for alleged breach of contract in the sale of a cargo of coal in November, 1926. The defendants denied that there was any breach of contract.

Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C.; Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. Monks (instructed by Messrs. D. and T. Fitzgerald), appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Jellett, K.C.; Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. Robinson (instructed by Messrs. William Findlater and Co.), for the defendant.

Mr. Barrett, manager for the defendant, further cross-examined, said that the coal forming the cargo of the Farnham was brown, and when the witness purchased it from Messrs. Barker he knew that it was brown coal. Witness described it to Mr. Mackenzie as having a brown tinge. Under the contract he held he was bound to deliver anything that could be described as coal. Witness did not agree that the cargo could be called "lignite."

Mr. McLean, of Tedcastle, McCormick and Co., recalled for the plaintiffs, stated that the retail price of Continental black coal from 1st to the 9th December was 62s. a ton; on the 11th December, 80s. a ton; from 11th to 18th December, 72s. a ton; from 18th to 22nd, 50s. a ton. After that there was no market for Continental coal. By Continental coal he meant French, Westphalian, Czecho-Slovakian, and other countries in Europe. There was no market for brown coal. Any imported was utilised by the Government for their own use.

Replying to Mr. Justice Hanna, Mr. Barrett, manager for the defendant, stated that he received verbal intimation of the probability of rejection of the cargo on 9th December, and written intimation of rejection on 15th December.

Mr. Stephen Mackenzie also replying to Mr. Justice Hanna, stated that he heard on 8th or 9th December that the cargo was going to be rejected, but received no notice in writing.

This concluded the evidence.

The further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

WICKLOW BUTCHER'S INJURIES.

COMPENSATION APPEAL.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN.)

An appeal by the defendant in the case of Delahunt v. Moody, an action brought under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, from a decision of Mr. Justice Sullivan and Mr. Justice O'Byrne, in the High Court, affirming an order of Circuit Judge Doyle, of the Eastern Circuit, in favour of the plaintiff, or applicant, was heard.

The case had come before the High Court by way of appeal on the 4th of March last against an award of compensation, dated 21st December, 1926, made by the Circuit Judge sitting as arbitrator, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, accompanied by a medical assessor.

It appeared that the application for compensation had been made by the plaintiff, John Delahunt, a butcher, of Rathnew, Co. Wicklow, for injuries sustained to one of his fingers while working in the establishment of the defendant, James Moody, victualler, of Fitzwilliam square, Wicklow, his employer, on the 2nd of June, 1925. No notice of the accident had been served on the defendant until the 20th of May, 1926.

The alleged injuries were denied, and the usual objections were made with respect to compliance with the provisions of the Statute. It was alleged in the case that the condition of the workman, as stated, was not due to the accident.

When an application was first made on behalf of the plaintiff to the Circuit Judge for arbitration the Judge stated that he was not satisfied that the condition of the plaintiff (or applicant) was due to any alleged accident, and accordingly he refused the request for arbitration without prejudice, and made an order directing that the applicant should pay the defendant (or respondent) his costs and expenses, amounting to £23 15s. 9d. Subsequently, on the 19th of July, 1926, a new application or request for arbitration was issued; and on the 21st December the order appealed against was made by Judge Doyle. The plaintiff, or applicant, was awarded £1 a week compensation, as from the 29th October, 1925.

It had been contended that the Circuit Judge had no jurisdiction to make the order; and the High Court decided that he had jurisdiction to make the order.

The net question in the appeal was whether a Circuit Court Judge, sitting as an arbitrator under the Workmen's Compensation Act, had jurisdiction to make an order dismissing a request for arbitration without prejudice; and, if he had not such jurisdiction, what was the effect of the order so made in this case.

Mr. F. FitzGibbon, K.C.; Mr. M. Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Cunniam (instructed by Mr. Augustus Cullen) appeared for the appellant and respondent; and Mr. Joseph O'Connor, K.C., and Mr. C. S. Campbell (instructed by Mr. J. H. McCarroll) for the applicant.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose.

DUBLIN MAN'S WILL.

ASSETS BETWEEN £5,000 AND £6,000.

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

In a probate suit of Thomas E. F. Bennett, a minor, by Augustus E. Bennett, 25 Upper Beechwood avenue, Ranelagh, Dublin, against Ellen O'Callaghan, Milford House, Plassy, County Limerick, Eugene O'Callaghan, Daniel O'Callaghan and Arthur McCoy,

Mr. Wood, K.C., with whom was Mr. Tobias (instructed by Mr. C. Rupert Robinson), on behalf of the plaintiff, applied for an order to fix the date and mode of trial.

Counsel said that the suit was brought to establish the will, dated 7th July, 1921, of Edward O'Callaghan, late of 62 Eccles street, Dublin, who died on the 16th June, 1926. Mr. O'Callaghan attempted to make a codicil on the 3rd May, 1926. The plaintiff, who was a legatee under the will, sought to prove the will in solemn form, and asked that the codicil be pronounced against. There were no grounds actually set out in the statement of claim against the codicil, but from the evidence of all parties it was not executed according to statute. There were the three usual defences, and a plea of undue influence had been entered, but notice had been served by the solicitor for the defendants that they wished to withdraw it plea. They all agreed that the suit should be tried before a judge with a jury.

Master—What are the assets?

Mr. Wood—About £5,000 to £6,000.

The Master made an order for the trial of the suit next term before a judge and jury, the issues being the three usual issues, and also one as to whether the codicil was duly executed. He gave an order for discovery to both sides.

Mr. Binchy (instructed by Mr. T. O'B. Kelly) appeared for the three O'Callaghan defendants; and Mr. Joseph Healy (instructed by Mr. J. J. Dundon) for the defendant, Arthur McCoy, a legatee under the alleged codicil.

FOOD INSPECTOR'S ACTION.

SEQUEL TO MILK CONTRACTOR'S LETTER.

In an action brought by Alfred T. Tutty, of 10 St. Anne's road, South Circular road, Dublin, Inspector of Food and Drugs for Dublin, against Maurice J. Collins, of 5 Iona Drive, Glasnevin, milk contractor, claiming damages for alleged libel and slander,

Mr. Lupton, K.C., with whom was Mr. Arthur H. Burne (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.), applied on behalf of the plaintiff to have a consent to stay all proceedings, on terms, received and made a rule of Court. The only reason why this came before the Court, said Mr. Lupton, was because the action was one of some consequence. Mr. Tutty, the plaintiff, was a Food and Drugs Inspector for Dublin for 14 years, and the defendant, Maurice J. Collins, was a milk contractor up to two or three of the military barracks in Dublin. In November last Mr. Collins made statements to some of the soldiers against Mr. Tutty, alleging that he improperly dealt with samples of his milk and refused to do his duty in not taking samples from others. The defendant, on the 2nd December, signed a public apology, which was to be published, and which was, in fact, published; and then, about the 10th December, believing that the thing would not become public and that he could give Mr. Tutty a stab in the back, he wrote to Mr. Commissioner Hernon, one of the Borough Commissioners, reaffirming these statements, and charging bribery against Mr. Tutty. The Commissioners sent a copy of that letter to Mr. Tutty, and said that one of two things must be done—either there must be an action to clear his name or there must be a public inquiry. An action was taken and the pleadings were closed, and some short time ago the Master gave the plaintiff liberty to serve interrogatories, and the result was that the charges were withdrawn. "Of course," said Mr. Lupton, "that letter of the 10th December, which came to our notice, was never intended to come to us. It was intended to injure us behind our back, and, of course, the game was up when we got the letter and started the action."

Counsel then stated what the terms of the consent were—namely, that the defendant agreed to pay to the plaintiff, as and for damages for the libels and slanders, the subject of the action, £200, and, in addition, £150 towards plaintiff's costs of the action as between solicitor and client. The defendant apologised to the plaintiff for having uttered the slanders and written the libels complained of, withdrew them, and admitted that they were untrue and without foundation. The defendant consented to a perpetual injunction to restrain him from repeating any such, or other, slanders and libels against the plaintiff or his character or reputation; to the consent being made a rule of court, and to pay the costs, if any, of the plaintiff, as between solicitor and client, incurred by reason of any inquiry to be held by the Local Government Department, or the Public Health Department of the Dublin Commissioners or the Dublin Corporation, as to any allegations made by the defendant against the plaintiff, verbally or in writing.

Of course, said Mr. Lupton, Mr. Tutty had a good, a very good, record in the Corporation as inspector of food and drugs in the city, and during the number of years that he had been taking samples of milk he, with other inspectors, had done a great deal to improve the standard of milk which was offered to the citizens. It was for the purpose of explaining the nature of this action that he came in there, and he asked the Master to say that this was a proper consent to be made a rule of court.

The Master said that the consent was a very proper one. He received it and made it a rule of court.

MISSING PROPERTY IN PORTMANTEAU.

SERVANT RETURNED FOR TRIAL.

In the Belfast Custody Court yesterday Letitia McGratten was returned for trial in custody at the Commission, charged with the theft of twenty-five brooches, ten bracelets, two ladies' gold chains, silver brush and comb, £23 5s. in money, and other articles on June 3, 1926, belonging to Mrs. Letitia Cooke and Miss Hester Cooke, of Caledonian terrace, Rugby road, Belfast, where prisoner had been employed as a servant.

Constable Elliott said that in consequence of a statement made to him by the prisoner about her luggage he communicated with the Civic Guard, Cork City, who forwarded to him a portmanteau belonging to the accused woman, and which contained part of the stolen property.

Mrs. Cooke stated that the prisoner had been in her employment for upwards of three years. On June 3 last year witness and her daughter left the accused woman in the house, and on returning in the afternoon prisoner was missing. A quantity of jewellery was taken, a cash-box was broken open and over £23 in money carried off.

Miss Hester Cooke identified several articles produced as her property. Apart from the money, over £140 worth of property had been stolen.

MILK PROSECUTIONS.

In the Dundrum District Court yesterday, John Timmons, dairy proprietor, Churchtown, was fined 20s. and 20s. costs for having sold a sample of milk, which, on analysis, was proved to contain 5½ per cent. of added water. A similar penalty was imposed on Campbell, Churchtown Park, Dundrum, having sold a sample of milk, from which 9 per cent. of the fats had been abstracted.

At Callan pig market yesterday 7 cwt. was the top price paid for fat pigs.

CALL BOY WON.

DERBY VICTORY FOR MR. FRANK CURZON'S COLT.

KING AND QUEEN AT EPSOM.

CALL BOY (C. Elliott)	- - -	4/1
HOT NIGHT (H. WRAGG)	- - -	9/2
SHIAN MOR (F. Lane)	- - -	22/1

Two lengths; 8 lengths between second and third; Stampede last.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

EPSOM, Wednesday Night.

THERE was one very dramatic moment this afternoon after Mr. Frank Curzon's colt, Call Boy, had gained an easy victory in the Derby by two lengths over Hot Night, after making all the running, and it was when his owner seemed for a moment about to collapse. Mr. Curzon has not been in good health for a long time past, and the emotions aroused when he saw his colt pass the post first were almost too much for him. He became deathly white, and as he walked down to the gate of the enclosure to lead his horse in he had to be assisted on the arms of two friends.

As he gave Call Boy a pat in the unsaddling enclosure he swayed a little, and was promptly hurried off to a seat in the Stewards' room, where he rested for some time preparatooy to going to receive the congratulations of the King and Queen. The incident robbed the ceremony of the return of the winner and the weighing-in of some of its usual exuberance.

It was a fine victory that Call Boy gained. Elliott rode him with the most supreme confidence, dashing him to the front the moment the tapes went up. He was never headed again, and though Hot Night drew almost level with him half-way up the straight Sir Victor Sassoon's colt soon weakened, and Call Boy drew away again. It was Shian Mor who [illegible] third place eight lengths behind the winner. Buckfast was fourth, Sickle fifth, Adam's Apple one of the last half-dozen, and Stampede, who looked as if she had just come [illegible]s, beaten half a mile.

A WONDERFUL SCENE.

If the race itself was a little colourless the scene was a wonderful one. The new stands do at last give the Derby a back-ground worthy of it. They were packed to-day. The crowd stood fifty deep on the stands side of the course right away to Tattenham Corner, and the [illegible] on the open down was a mass of people. [illegible] have there been more cars and vehicles of all kinds on the course. The attendance [illegible] have approached a record, even compared with the years following the war.

Early in the day there was a heavy mist on the course, but it gradually lifted until by the time the Derby was to be run the light was excellent. The King and Queen and the Princes were there, as well as the lion of the moment, Captain Lindbergh, whom Lord Lonsdale was chaperoning. Altogether it was an unforgettable sight.

The Derby field, I thought, did not quite rise to the occasion. Apart from the frank rubbish, the general level of the horses seemed a little below the average. Some people denounced them as a bad lot, though as Call Boy accomplished record time for the race—2 mins. 2-5 secs.—he cannot be exactly a slouch. The best-looking colt in the paddock was, I thought, Sickle, stones heavier than when he ran for the Guineas, all muscle, and [illegible] of a high-class racehorse.

Call Boy was lighter than when he ran at Newmarket, but was well trained, and a credit to his young trainer, Jack Watts, a son of the famous jockey of the closing years of the last century. Adam's Apple did not impress, but Shian Mor, who was very well, [illegible] and ran well. Hot Night [illegible] a little, but, on the whole, he [illegible] nough. However, it could by [illegible] imagination be described as a good field, such a field, for example, [illegible] how no Spearmint won.

HOW THEY STARTED.

[illegible] started on account of the [illegible] so Harry Beasley had the [illegible] led the parade of the [illegible] one of the prominent [illegible], so there are no [illegible] for any failures on that [illegible] who was always favourite, Hot Night threatened him very [illegible] the finish, was drawn No. 22 on [illegible] side, but many jockeys—Danny Maher [illegible]—have preferred to be drawn on the [illegible] and certainly would rather have it [illegible] inside, from which position the [illegible] of being cut off is so great. [illegible] apes were broken twice, but the start [illegible] good enough one, from which Call Boy [illegible] off with Flashing Star. When they [illegible] a quarter of a mile Sickle had [illegible] up second, but coming over the top of [illegible] Shian Mor headed him. Coming [illegible] the hill to Tattenham Corner Sickle was losing his place, and Shian Mor was not acting well round the turn and changed his legs. Adam's Apple was then in the first half-dozen, but Donoghue was driving Lone Knight hard to keep a place in the middle of the field.

Coming into the straight the chance of Sickle had gone completely, Shian Mor was losing ground, and the horse who appeared to be going as well as anything, except Call Boy, was Knight of the Grail, well out from the rails. Winter told me that then he would not have changed mounts with any jockey in the race.

Then there appeared Hot Night, and he became the serious challenge of Call Boy. He got to his girths, but he could get no further, and, staying on the better of the two, Call Boy beat him comfortably. All the same, Hot Night ran a really good race. Wragg was blamed for having come a little too soon on him, but I thought the jockey waited until the last possible moment. He had, however, no reserve once he got to Call Boy.

FINISHED IN THE RUCK.

In the straight, Adam's Apple dropped right out and finished in the ruck, and he will probably be remembered as a very lucky winner of the Guineas, of whom we have seen the best. Sickle's poor display is very hard to explain. He had been a little unlucky when Buckfast, to whom he was giving 19lb., beat him at Liverpool; but at evens, Buckfast finished in front of him here. The form between him and Call Boy, as compared with the Guineas, varies by about fifteen lengths, and the jockey said that he had no excuse for him.

Donoghue's confidence in Lone Knight had been steadily growing, and when he went to the post he fully expected to win outright. He ran just about as his public form suggested that he would, but he had shown a good deal better than that in his trial with Embargo, from which it appears that Embargo does not always do his best at home.

Like last year's winner, Coronach, Call Boy is by Hurry On, and he is bred on exactly similar lines; for while his dam, Comedienne, is by Bachelor's Double—Wet Kiss, the dam of Coronach is by Tredennis, the sire of Bachelor's Double. The cross of Hurry On on Tredennis has, therefore, won two successive Derbys.

Comedienne was a fair-class mare, whom Mr. Curzon acquired during the war. She is out of Altoviscar, whose dam, Navaratta, was by Kilwarlin. It was the first Derby winner which Elliott has ridden, and he handled the colt as if he had supreme confidence in his stamina.

The day began with the hottest selling plate we have seen for a long time, for it included Temible and Merriment, who were joint favourites, and Proconsul, who won holding off Temible all the way and beating him by a short-head.

THACKERAY'S 4th SUCCESS.

Then Thackeray, with long odds laid on him, gained his fourth success, when he took the Wallington Plate by three lengths from Opal. This son of By George has been a great bargain to Stanley Wootton at the 375 guineas given for him when Mr. E. Connolly sent him to the Dublin Sales.

In a bumping finish for the Stewards' High-weight Handicap Grandisson beat Sonny and Roman Emperor by a length and a half-a-length. The Duke of Portland won the Caterham Stakes with Pontifex, a colt by Caligula, who had been down the course at Salisbury behind Brown Princess, but was here too good for Song of Summer and Petitcodiac. A dead-heat between Queen's Bower and Sporting Kit in the last race concluded a great day.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

To-morrow we have Coronach making a re-appearance in the Coronation Cup, where he will be opposed by Embargo, Foxlaw, Pons Asinorum and Review Order, among others. I see no reason to suppose that CORONACH will be beaten, for, improved colt as Embargo is, I cannot believe that he has yet attained the standard of the most remarkable St. Leger winner in recent times.

Mr. Joel's Irish purchase, Fohanaun, is to run for the Royal Stakes. Earl likes the colt very much, since he had him in his stable, but, remembering the storming victory of JENNIE DEANS on this course in the Spring, it seems so ideally suited to her that she may give the 4lb. to Fohanaun. STYRIA may be the best of the two-year-olds in the great Surrey Foal Plate, and THE CHEETAH may win the Durdans Handicap.

LIMERICK JUNCTION

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

To fill the breach created by the falling through of the Tipperary meeting at Barronstown, the Limerick Junction executive arranged to-day's fixture, and that their enterprise was appreciated by owners was made manifest by the excellent entries received for the various events. The hard state of the ground caused by the protracted drought may affect the strength of the fields, but nevertheless the sport should prove very interesting. A special train leaves Kingsbridge this morning at 11.15 and returns at 6.10. Selections are appended:—

Kilmallock Plate—Bonnie Kate.
Ballykisteen Plate — Clowanstown or Common Good.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

Trinity Week.

The introduction of external competition should prove an additional attraction in Trinity Week this year. Thus at the Swimming Club Gala, fixed for Tuesday evening, June 14th, at the Iveagh Baths, a London United Hospitals water polo team will be present. In addition a squadron race, in which Dublin, Clontarf, Sandycove and Pembroke will take part, should prove quite a feature. On Thursday afternoon, when the lawn tennis club finals will be played in the Park, the club will also play a match against a team from Glasgow University.

Leopardstown Produce Stakes.

The Produce Stakes to be decided at Leopardstown next Saturday will be the richest two-year-old race so far run for in Ireland this season, its value being close on 800 sovs. Philip Behan, the Mountjoy Lodge trainer, will saddle both Poor Man and Dione, both of which have won good races. Barcelona, Heather and Marlhill Lad will also contest this nice prize, as well as the English trained filly by He Goes out of Noor Mahl, and several others.

Injured Jockey's Condition.

On inquiry at the Epsom Infirmary last evening it was ascertained that there was no improvement in the condition of N. Carroll, the injured Epsom apprentice, who lies critically ill as the result of a collision between his bicycle and a lorry last week.

A. Garnett to Ride for Irish Stable.

A. Garnett, who had the mount on Birthright in the Derby, informed a Press representative at Epsom yesterday that he has been engaged to ride for Mr. R. Fetherstonhaugh's Curragh stable. Garnett, who was apprenticed to Harvey Leader, rode fifty-six winners in 1920, and has had plenty of experience abroad as well as in England. He rode for Mr. S. Joel in South Africa in 1921, and was also very successful for Mr. Reed in Belgium. He can go to scale at 7st. 9lb., and carried 19lb. overweight on Birthright yesterday.

T. Perry's New Quarters.

T. N. Perry, the trainer of Knocklong Boy, Maureen M., etc., will shortly transfer his string from his present quarters, Westenra, Kildare, to Sunnyside, Newbridge, which establishment he has purchased.

Liverpool Cup Entries.

The Liverpool Summer Cup, of which this is the centenary year, closed on Tuesday last, with the very satisfactory subscription of forty-nine. There were thirty entries last year.

Oaks Gallops.

At Newmarket yesterday morning Beam was accompanied by Donnina in a good pace gallop over five furlongs. Composure took matters easily over seven furlongs. Cinq-a-Sept, with Kanaka, was subjected to a nice pace gallop over six furlongs. Esclarmonde went a smart five-furlong gallop with Peace River. Spectra was slipped along over a mile in company with Mountain Slip. Mousme and Grande Vitesse were sent a good-pace seven-furlong gallop with Exarch and Her Excellency. Cresta Run was ridden by her Oaks jockey, Balding, in a smart mile gallop with Tugela. She went in grand style.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES.

THE CURRAGH, Wednesday.

A fine morning, but owing to the hard ground the majority of teams were restricted to work on the ploughed gallops in the vicinity of the home quarters.

BEHAN'S Khedive (A. Barrett) and Vesington Hero went five furlongs at half-speed; Baytown, Poor Man and Millbrook came three furlongs sharply.

DOYLE'S Major Ray (James Doyle), Minnetonka and Benne Act travelled a mile at a good pace; Reilly, Sable and Flashing Dawn were sent five furlongs; Marten's Light, Ezra, Don Pat and May Orb galloped a like distance, while Sapphire Stone and Rossmore's Pride were sharpened up over four furlongs.

GRUNDY'S West Indies and Coinage went seven furlongs steadily.

HARTIGAN'S Gainsharp covered seven furlongs at a good pace, and the Baldoyle Derby candidate is in nice trim; Nanette, Roseault and Southerner were sent five furlongs; Shrewd King, Clough and others of the team were restricted to healthy exercise.

RANKIN'S Sonning's Bon cantered five furlongs.

ROGERS'S Archway, Brannockstown, Royal Miller, Queenstown and others were usefully employed.

[illegible]'S Lady Wembley and Gallowglass were sent five furlongs at half-speed.

Shortly after going a quarter of a mile Shian Mor raced up into second place, followed by Sickle and Adam's Apple, these being clear of Hot Night, Knight of the Grail and Applecross, the field at this stage being well strung out, with Stampede tailed off. Call Boy continued in front, racing towards Tattenham Corner, attended by Shian Mor, who had drawn up to the girths of the leader, these being clear of Sickle and Hot Night (who was improving) and Adam's Apple. After making the turn into the straight Hot Night held second place, with Knight of the Grail third, in front of Shian Mor, Sickle, Buckfast and Son and Heir, with Adam's Apple (who was weakening) heading the others. Below the distance, Hot Night drew up to Call Boy, the pair being well clear of Shian Mor, who was staying on. Below the distance Roman Emperor held a slight lead of St. Mary Abbots and Uncle Woody, with Sonny and Grandisson improving. YACHTING.

THE WATER WAGS.

At the third time of trial the first tie of the season for the Buckingham Cup was sailed to a finish last evening in a very light and tricky S.E. breeze. Moosmie won it, she robbing Pansy of the lead at the last mark on the last round. Pansy in turn having done the same thing to Blue Bird at the first mark on the second round.

It was not a suitable evening for a handicap start, but the only boat to lose time at the outset was Mollie. Blue Bird led away at 6.37 p.m. Amyl followed 1½ minutes later and half a minute ahead of Pansy. Then came Barbara 1 minute after the last-named and 1½ minutes before Vela and Tomboy, who in turn had one minute lead of Moosmie and Mollie, and last of all (5 minutes 15 seconds behind the limit boat) Coquette and Phyllis, the two scratch boats, got away.

There were only faint airs at the time, but they gathered a little strength after and they began to travel. A beat, a reach, a run, and a beat again covered each round. At the close of the first, Blue Bird was leading Pansy, Moosmie, Amyl, Coquette, Barbara, Vela, Mollie, Tomboy in the order named, the last four getting the worst wind while beating up the fairway. At the jetty buoy on the next round Pansy slipped in ahead of Blue Bird, while Moosmie was within dangerous nearness of the latter. Coquette had crept up a lot also, and at the close of the round the order was Pansy, Moosmie, Blue Bird, Coquette, Phyllis, Amyl, Tomboy, Vela, Mollie.

At the last mark on the final, Pansy appeared to have the race just won, but Moosmie overhauled her half-way up the fairway, and the finish was:—

CRICKET.

INTERPROVINCIAL AT CORK.

GOOD INNINGS BY R. A. HALL.

But for a seventh wicket partnership by R. A. Hall and G. N. Goodbody, Munster would have fared very badly against Ulster at the Mardyke, Cork, yesterday. Hall batted steadily for 44, but Goodbody hit out for his runs, four boundaries going to make up his total.

Batting first in ideal weather, Munster lost two good wickets for 15, both falling to J. Harris, but T. H. Williams and J. H. Foley pulled the game round slowly. Then came the partnership referred to, after which the batting broke down completely, and the innings closed for 173, of which no less than 34 were extras.

W. Irwin and C. Morrison, who opened for Ulster, played careful cricket, and 50 was hoisted before the separation came. At this stage A. Dinan was bowling well, and three wickets in quick succession put a different aspect on the game. It fell to W. Andrews to stop the rot, and he got good support from J. Harris. The pair were still together when stumps were drawn with the total at 147 for six wickets.

UNEVEN BATTING BY M.C.C.

ERNEST TYLDESLEY'S 143.

Surrey took the field against Sussex at the Oval yesterday without Hobbs, but, nevertheless, made an excellent start, thanks to a first-wicket partnership by Sandham and Jeacocke, which produced 134 in two hours. Subsequently the batting fell off, and the next six wickets fell for exactly the same number of runs. Peach hit hard for 66 not out, which included a 6, a 5, and seven 4's.

The batting at Worcester was poor. Middlesex never recovered a bad start, and could only total 157 on a pitch which did not appear to favour the bowlers. In turn, Worcestershire did none too well, and at close of play had lost five wickets for 105, a paltry aggregate of 262 runs for five and a half hours' batting.

Ernest Tyldesley (143) and L. Green (82) defied the Gloucestershire bowling to the extent of adding 145 runs for the fifth wicket, and were chief contributors to the Lancashire total of 367 runs for six wickets.

Bad light at Ilkeston may have been responsible for Derbyshire's early mistakes, but the tail wagged to some extent, with the result that 254 was on the board when the innings closed—a much better total than seemed likely early on.

Northamptonshire failed almost completely against Robinson's bowling on a soft wicket at Huddersfield, and were all out for 89. He claimed eight wickets, six of them falling to catches in the slips. In reply Yorkshire put together 173 for 5.

ATHLETICS.

BLACKROCK COLLEGE SPORTS.

The grounds at Williamstown yesterday presented quite an animated appearance, when the annual sports of Blackrock College were successfully carried through. The programme was a lengthy one, but a hard working band of stewards finished it off shortly after the scheduled time. The weather could scarcely have been better, with the result that the parents and friends of the boys turned up in force. The racing was keen throughout, and it was good to see the way the competitors fought out the various issues. Chief honours for the day's performances went to J. Donovan, who won three firsts and two seconds, thus winning the cup and gold medal presented by Mr. Vincent Kelly for the best all-round athlete. In addition, he won the President's cup for the 220 yards senior race. The McLoughlin Cup, presented by Professor E. P. McLoughlin for the boys' high jump championship, went to J. Hayes with a jump of 5ft. 1½ ins., while the Hickey Cup, presented by the late Rev. J. Hickey, P.P., for the junior event selected by the committee (220 yards), was won by L. McMahon, who also won several other prizes. During the afternoon the Army Band, under Cadet Doyle, discoursed pleasing selections.

O'CONNELL SCHOOL SPORTS.

The inaugural athletic meeting of the O'Connell School, North Richmond street, was brought off yesterday at Croke Park under the happiest auspices of weather and attendance. This great school, under the management of the Christian Brothers, set a headline in efficiency and organisation. There are over one thousand boys on the rolls, and the entries for the sports totalled 985, yet a huge programme of over forty events was gone through in a little over four hours; indeed, the meeting was well under way a quarter of an hour before the advertised time. The attendance of the Artane School Band and a capital gymnastic display by the O'Connell schoolboys, who won the Physical Culture Challenge Cup at Portobello recently, greatly enhanced the proceedings, a squad of some forty boys, under Sergeant-Major McDowell, carrying out many different evolutions amidst plaudits. For the excellent arrangements, praise must be given to the officials, especially Mr. J. J. Tallon, starter, and Messrs. Kenny, Doran, G. D. and A. Ford, E. Daly, A. McCabe, McNamara, J. H. Kane, J. Murphy, Doyle, and Curran. The most promising performance at the meeting was the fine long jumping of J. J. Doran, who won from scratch at 18ft. 1½in., and covered well over 19ft., but was disqualified for a slight infringement. The prizes, which were very appropriate, and cost over £100, were presented by Sir F. Conway Dwyer.

FRENCH HARD COURTS CHAMPIONSHIPS.

LAST FOUR IN MEN'S SINGLES.

FRAULEIN AUSSEM DEFEATED.

ST. CLOUD, Wednesday.

To-day's play in the French Hard Courts Championships cleared the way to the semi-finals of the Men's Singles, P. D. B. Spence (South Africa) and R. Lacoste (France) adding their names to those of Tilden and Cochet, who had previously entered this stage.

Spence only fulfilled expectations in disposing of Borotra's conqueror, A. Gentien, whom he had defeated at Dulwich in March. He won in four sets with comparative ease, the much greater variety of his game and his greater mobility enabling him to counter all Gentien's tactics of swift, deep drives and high lobs. Moreover, the Frenchman could not reproduce the same form that he had shown in defeating Borotra. He will now meet Lacoste in the semi-final, and as the latter won in straight sets for the loss of only five games when the pair met in the final of the British Hard Courts' Championships at Bournemouth in April, the result of this match is a foregone conclusion.

Lacoste to-day defeated his compatriot, Brugnon. The Wimbledon champion took matters fairly easily. He did not attempt to meet many of Brugnon's brilliant volleys and smashes at the net, but relied on his usual base-line driving game. On the whole his success appeared to be due to good luck more than to the quality of his play.

In the Women's Singles, Mrs. Peacock scored a fine victory over the young German girl, Fraulein Aussem, who had beaten Mlle. Contostavlos in a previous round, but her young protégé, Miss Tapscott, was outclassed by Mlle. K. Bouman, of Holland, who won 6-2, 6-0. Against Mrs. Peacock Fraulein Aussem endeavoured to repeat the tactics she had employed in defeating the Franco-Greek lady. The South African captain, however, is far too much of a strategist to beat herself, and after she had lost the first set in measuring her opponent's capacity, she played a skilful, aggressive game. Fraulein Aussem was kept on the defensive. She could do nothing but attempt to return the skilful placements of Mrs. Peacock, who, when she had manœuvred the German out of position, came up to the net to finish the rally most convincingly.

Miss Tapscott, who is noted as a forceful and vigorous player, met her equal in Mlle. Bouman, who outdrove the young South African and eventually tired her by her clever placing to the sidelines. Many of Miss Tapscott's forehand drives were overhit and went outside. Details:—

FITZWILLIAM CLUB TOURNAMENT.

A start was made with the annual Club Tournament at Wilton place yesterday, when a number of Singles matches were completed. The men's programme worked out as arranged, but in the Ladies' Handicap Singles several postponements were found necessary owing to the claims of inter-club competitions.

Quite the best tennis of the afternoon was provided by the meeting of E. A. McGuire and N. Good. The former was playing well and with much greater confidence than earlier in the season. Good was driving with length and placing well, but failed to counter his opponent's experience. Details :—

THE LAST FOUR.

SURPRISES IN IRISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

HOLDER AND FORMER CHAMPIONS BEATEN.

Miss Blake (Woodbrook), Miss B. Oulton (Greystones), Miss McLoughlin (Kingstown), and Mrs. Hall (Foxrock) are the semi-finalists for the Irish Ladies' Championship at Dollymount to-day. The first pair will start at 10.30, and be followed at 10.45 by Miss McLoughlin and Mrs. Hall.

Yesterday, to say the least of it, was a day of surprises. From the outset the most unlooked for results came to hand, and the uncertainties of the game were exploited right up to the close of play, when Miss Janet Jackson suffered defeat on the nineteenth green by Mrs. Hall.

The remarkable thing about this championship is that the semi-finals will be contested by four golfers, all comparatively new to the tournament. Miss Blake is a young player who was formerly a member of the Kingstown Club; Miss McLoughlin took part in a children's tournament at Foxrock a few years ago; Miss Oulton, it is stated, plays off a nine handicap at Greystones, and Mrs. Hall, though she played in the recent international matches at Newcastle, has no more experience of championship golf than any of the others. Such a state of affairs is certainly good for the game. It shows that the younger school of Irish lady golfers are making progress, and that they will have to be reckoned with in the future. For many years the championship had been dominated by a few of our leading players, and it is gratifying to find that, as they are dropping out, there are others to take their places.

The semi-finalists are there by sheer merit. There was not the semblance of a "fluke" about the successes of any of the four, who have reached a stage when one and all can look forward with every confidence to winning the title for which they fought so hard during the two days on one of the most difficult links in the country for ladies. Even now it would not be easy to name the winner of the championship. If, at the beginning, it was an open tournament, it is even more so at the moment. It is a toss up between the four.

A HARD-FOUGHT MATCH.

During the day none played with the consistency of Miss Blake, who, in the morning round with Mrs. Beatty, had matters very much her own way. In fact, for the first nine holes she had an approximate thirty-nine to the turn, with sixes at the seventh and eighth, and in the evening she accounted for a good match-player in Mrs. King, winning at the home green. This was a particularly fine match all the way. Early on Miss Blake won two holes, but when the turn was reached the Woodbrook lady held a bare lead, having gone out against the slight wind in forty-three. All square at the tenth, they fought it out keenly to the thirteenth, where Mrs. King went ahead, but playing to the last hole they were again on level terms. Mrs. King having taken six strokes to the seventeenth hole. Miss Blake, however, had a five at the home green for the match, her score for the enighteen holes being eighty-six.

The luck of the draw brought the sisters Oulton into opposition in the fourth round. Miss Dorothy had upset all calculations by defeating the holder, Miss Jameson, by three and two in a match which was splendidly contested to the turn. At that point they were on an equality, but the fight which the Greystones lady was putting up was bound to tell, and when she took the first two holes on the way in she gained confidence, and winning the fourteenth and fifteenth she settled the issue on the sixteenth green. Miss Jameson was out in forty-three to forty-five, but her opponent had thirty-one for the remaining holes against the holder's thirty-five.

MISS JACKSON BEATEN AT 19TH.

The Greystones club played a big part in the day's proceedings. Miss Beatrice Oulton brought about the disappearance of Mrs. Wilson in the morning, her victory being achieved at the sixteenth; and in the afternoon the winner was too steady for her sister. Five holes to the good at the turn, she won comfortably. Steadiness also brought Miss McLoughlin into the semi-final. She seldom made a mistake in her match with Miss Hirsch, who had the better of it with the wood, but in the play through the green the Kingstown lady was always well down the middle, and in that way was able to bring the match to a close at the fifteenth green.

It was evident in the forenoon that Miss Jackson had not regained her true form; for though Miss Wardell was not playing brilliantly, she brought the former champion to the home green. Nor did Miss Jackson play championship golf in the evening against Mrs. Hall. It was a ding-dong struggle to the turn, where Mrs. Hall held the lead, having had a three at the ninth to gain her advantage. Miss Jackson had the misfortune to be trapped off her drive to the fourteenth, and that cost her the hole, for she failed to get out in one. Mrs. Hall, however, was too strong on the fifteenth, to which her opponent played a dandy approach from the left to win the hole in five. Eventually they had to go to the nineteenth, the three previous holes having been badly played by both, though Mrs. Hall won the seventeenth for the lead in five. Mrs. Hall won the tie, but for an instant after her ball had reached the edge of the hole it seemed as if they would have to go to the next. The ball, however, after rolling round the edge of the hole dropped in, and so the winner of the title on six occasions dropped out of the tournament.

Miss Blake (Woodbrook) beat Mrs. Beatty (Castle), 6 and 5.

WONDERFUL HANDC[RAFT]

Niello engraving—used by the early Masters to ornament silver and gold plates or vessels—was first evolved in the 15th Century. This process of cutting into the metal and filling the lines with a black composition gave clearness and beautiful effect to the incised design.

Perfect handcraft to-day always wins appreciation as exemplified by State Express No. 555 Cigarettes which are perfectly made by hand—one at a time—under ideal hygienic conditions. They are the only cigarettes that contain the Unique "555" Virginia leaf—the finest the World produces.
